ADMITS CUBA LOBBY ASKED TARIFF FIGHT BY LATIN AMERICA

H. C. Lakin Tells Senate Inquiry He Is "Ashamed" of Letter on Fostering Protests.

CARAWAY REBUKES WITNESS

Shattuck, According to Testimony, Saw Mr. Hoover Before Accepting a Retainer.

CALLED ON HIM AT MIAMI

Senators Endeavor to Gain Admission That Island Interests Were Hiring Influence.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—President Hoover's name was drawn into the Senate lobby hearing again today when Herbert C. Lakin of New York, head of the Cuba Company which has huge investments in the island, testified that Edwin P. Shattuck, New York lawyer, had consented to serve in seeking higher sugar tariffs only after a conference with Mr. Hoover at Miami, Fla.

Previously Mr. Lakin had testified that he had retained the services of Mr. Shattuck as a result of information that the latter was a friend of Mr. Hoover.

Replying to Senator Caraway, chairman of the investigating committee, Mr. Lakin stated Mr. Shattuck had asked the then President-elect whether it would cause him any embarrassment should he, Mr. Shattuck, consent to work for lower sugar duties. Mr. Hoover had stated that it would not, according to the witness.

Senator Caraway and the other members of the committee endeavored to obtain an admission from the witness that the interests seeking low sugar rates were attempting to "hire" influence. No statements were made today, however, which would indicate that President Hoover was aware of the campaign against higher sugar duties which was carried on by Mr. Lakin with the advice and cooperation of Mr. Shattuck.

Witness "Ashamed" of Letter.

Two letters were offered in evidence, both written by Mr. Lakin. In one it was shown that the head of the Cuba Company was attempting to stir up opposition in Latin America against the proposals to increase the sugar tariff. In another Mr. Lakin suggested that Masonic influence as well as the influence of Rotary Clubs in Cuba should be employed in an effort to keep the rates down.

The witness said he was "ashamed" of the letters suggesting the stirring up of sentiment in Latin America. It was dated March 5 this year and was addressed to Rafael Sanchez Aball, the Cuban Secretary of Communications. Señor Aball had reproached him for the suggestion, and that was the end of it, the witness said.

Another letter, also written to Señor Aball, bore the date of Feb. 19, 1929. It suggested that Cuban Masons "go quietly and without any publicity whatsoever, to members of Congress who are Masons" in favor of a satisfactory sugar rate. It also suggested that Cuban Rotarians should get in touch with American Rotarians, who in turn might feel impelled to write to their members of Congress.

Senator Caraway rebuked the witness, asserting that "a man must have great disregard for his country so soon after its citizens have fought on foreign soil, with about 100,000 of them laying down their lives; and now you sit here and talk of stirring up other countries against your own country."

"That plan was wrong," Mr. Lakin observed.

Text of Latin-America Letter.

"To Hon. Rafael Sanchez Aball,
"Secretary of Communications,
"Havana, Cuba.

"There is a matter in which I believe you could be of the greatest benefit in connection with this sugar tariff. According to my views, one of our most important arguments is that other Latin-American countries will claim that if Cuba's close relations to the United States result in damage to Cuba, they had better fight shy of having a similar thing happen to them. Therefore, it seems to me that it would be a good thing to call the situation to the attention of the appropriate persons in other Latin-American countries.

"Of course, that could not be done officially by the Cuban Government, but I do not at the moment see any reason why it should not appear to come from the Haciendados Association.

"My suggestion would be for you to have our brief and supplemental brief translated into Spanish and printed; and that copies be sent by

Needs Brass Rail to Be a Bar, Despite Liquor, Judge Rules

A legal definition of a bar and of a speakeasy was obtained yesterday in Federal court, Brooklyn, in the trial of John Rossi of Staten Island, arraigned on a charge of illegal possession of liquor.

Joseph Wackerman, defense counsel, called Rossi's establishment a store and objected when James Wilkinson, Assistant United States Attorney, spoke of it as a speakeasy.

"It had a bar," Wilkinson contended.

"No, not a bar, a counter," argued Wackerman.

"Was there a brass rail before the counter?" asked Judge Byers, and the answer was "No."

"Then we'll call it a counter," he said. "I fine the prisoner $150 for possessing intoxicating liquor."

FINANCIER ARRESTED ON FALSE AD CHARGE

W. T. Hollingsworth Accused of Trying to Injure Concern Promoted by C. V. Bob.

BIG STOCK ISSUE INVOLVED

Advertisement by Neon Lights Head Caused Federal Neon to Halt Sale, It Is Alleged.

William T. Hollingsworth, 69 years old, financier and promoter, was arrested yesterday afternoon in his suite in the Hotel Savoy-Plaza on a charge of having made false representations in recent newspaper advertising. It was reported that Warrant Officer John Devine, who arrested Mr. Hollingsworth, had another warrant in his possession charging a second man with the same offense, but that the latter had left his office in the financial district before the officer arrived there.

The warrant against Mr. Hollingsworth was issued on complaint by Charles V. Bob, banker and mining man, in whose honor Commander Byrd several weeks ago named a newly discovered mountain chain in appreciation for his financial support of the Byrd Expedition.

Mr. Hollingsworth was taken before Magistrate Simpson in the Tombs court. He pleaded not guilty and was released in $10,000 bail pending a hearing on the charge at 11 o'clock next Wednesday morning.

Mr. Bob's complaint, based in an affidavit on Section 952 of the penal law relating to alleged false advertising, was an offshoot of litigation which had been brought into the Supreme Court in the last year on behalf of officials and promoters of the Claude Neon Lights Corporation, of which Mr. Hollingsworth is president, and the Federal Neon System, Inc.

$10,000,000 Stock Issue Held Up.

He charged that on Nov. 26 last, Mr. Hollingsworth and Robert L. Kenter Jr., the vice president of the Claude Neon corporation, which has offices at 41 East Forty-second Street, published an advertisement over their names in this and other large cities which reflected on a $10,000,000 issue of stock of the Federal Neon System, Inc., of which Mr. Bob's firm, C. V. Bob & Co., 120 Broadway, is the promoter. This, he further charged, caused the withdrawal of the issue the same day from trading on the New York Stock Exchange and the Chicago Stock Exchange.

The advertisement, which was addressed "to the public and the stockholders of the Claude Neon Lights, Inc.," referred to a previous statement issued by Mr. Bob's firm and continued in the first three paragraphs:

"Claude Neon Lights, Inc., is not a party to nor has it authorized the association of its name or any of its officers in any way whatsoever, even in the plan set forth in said notice or in the flotation of the shares of stock of the said Federal Neon Corporation.

"No officer of the Claude Neon Lights, Inc., has been asked to serve or has agreed to serve upon the board of directors of the Federal Neon System, Inc., nor has in any way authorized the use of his name in connection with the published statements.

"The litigation which Claude Neon Lights, Inc., has brought against the Federal Electric Company, George L. Johnson and Rainbow Luminous Products, Inc., is still pending. In this litigation is involved the validity of the proposed transfer of two-thirds of the stock in the Claude Neon Federal Company to said Johnson or to said Rainbow Luminous Products, Inc. There has been no settlement or compromise of this litigation."

The complainant laid particular stress in his affidavit to the magistrate on the third paragraph of the advertisement at the arraignment of Mr. Hollingsworth, who had as his lawyers Stanley Richter, son-in-law of Samuel Untermyer, and Alfred P. Seaman.

A not guilty plea formally had been entered to the charge for Mr. Hollingsworth when Charles L. Craig, former Controller, representing Mr. Bob, joined in the request of Assistant District Attorney Albert Bloom Unger that the defendant be held in $25,000 bail, sending the hearing.

Mr. Craig insisted that the bail should be set at that figure because,

GRUNDY APPOINTED TO SEAT IN SENATE; NYE WILL FIGHT HIM

Governor Fisher Names High-Tariff Lobbyist to Place Denied to Vare.

WILL ENTER PRIMARY RACE

Grundy Accepted With Backing of Many State Leaders if Vare and Pinchot Oppose Him.

HE ARRIVES AT CAPITAL

From a Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Dec. 11.—Joseph R. Grundy, bachelor, Quaker, and a leading lobbyist at Washington for a high protective tariff, was appointed Senator from Pennsylvania today by Governor Fisher to fill the vacancy caused by the Senate's rejection of William S. Vare of Philadelphia.

The appointment was made and Mr. Grundy's acceptance announced from Washington, with the distinct understanding that Mr. Grundy will be a candidate to succeed himself in the Republican primary in May against Mr. Vare and possibly also former Governor Pinchot.

The appointment was for a term expiring in December, 1930, and the Senator elected next November will serve until 1933, the end of the six-year term for which Mr. Vare was elected in 1926.

Governor Fisher announced the appointment at 5:45 P. M. He signed the commission at eleven minutes to 6 o'clock, with the words, "the deed is done."

"I have appointed Joseph R. Grundy," the Governor said. "This appointment is made with the distinct understanding that Mr. Grundy will be a candidate to succeed himself."

Governor Fisher will send Mr. Grundy's certificate of appointment to Washington tomorrow morning by special messenger so that Mr. Grundy can present himself to take the oath when the Senate meets at noon.

Had Considered Others for Place.

Governor Fisher said he had considered other persons for the appointment, among them Representative Graham of Philadelphia. He said he had had no communication with Mr. Vare about the appointment.

The appointment was expected at any time after 11 o'clock this morning, but there was a delay for several hours, during which Attorney General Woods prepared the commission and attended to other details. The Attorney General looked over the certificate from Vice President Curtis, notifying Governor Fisher of the vacancy, and then left the city early in the afternoon.

The appointment means a political fight, for Mr. Vare has announced himself as a candidate "to the finish." Whether former Governor Pinchot, who, with former Senator Pepper, was defeated by Mr. Vare in the 1926 primary, will enter the race is problematical.

The entire power of the Mellon-Grundy organization will be back of Mr. Grundy in his fight, and messages received from party leaders in all parts of the State indicate there will be little friction except in Philadelphia.

Mr. Grundy has not always been so generally accepted by the Republican organizations in many counties. In the legislative session of 1913 and at other sessions he opposed child labor, compensation and other welfare legislation. He was in 1912 confronted by a youthful lawyer who represented interests opposed to his and who urged the passage of that legislation, namely, David A. Reed, now senior Senator from Pennsylvania.

In the 1927 legislative session Mr. Grundy fought the demands of organized labor for an increase in the schedule of payments under the workmen's compensation act. He agreed, however, to a slight rise, and this was written into the law.

Many Endorsements of Grundy.

About 6,000 messages were received by Governor Fisher endorsing Mr. Grundy for the Senate seat. County Commissioners E. V. Babcock and Joseph G. Armstrong of Allegheny were for him.

The leaders of Dauphin County, which, with Philadelphia, alone supported Mr. Vare in the 1926 primary, backed him. State Senator William H. Earnest, W. W. Caldwell, M. Harvey Taylor and A. S. Cooper, who now head the organization, said they had heard nothing about any one else. Outside of Philadelphia all the political leaders declared for Mr. Grundy, and his support among the business men of the State appeared to be undivided.

The anti-Vare forces feel that the candidacy of Mr. Vare will not be

Woman Artist to Get $10,000 On Vow to Quit Cigarettes

CARLISLE, Pa., Dec. 11 (AP).—If and when Mrs. Samuel Temple of Boston takes an oath to cease smoking cigarettes, she will receive $10,000 as her share of her aunt's estate, according to terms of the will probated here today.

Mrs. Temple, formerly Ruth Anderson of this place, is a painter, but she has continued to use her maiden name in identifying her art work. Her aunt, Miss Esther M. Groome, died November 29, in Philadelphia and the will was made on May 23. The estate is valued at $25,000.

If Mrs. Temple declines to take the oath, she will receive the interest from the $10,000 fund, which will be placed in trust for her.

TWO FILM OFFICIALS HELD IN FIRE INQUIRY

WHALEN ORDERS ARRESTS

He Acts After the Mayor Begins Investigation—Charge of 'Excusable Manslaughter' Made.

John C. Flynn, vice president of the Pathé Film Company, and Henry Lalley, production manager, were arrested early today on charges growing out of the fire which swept the company's Manhattan studio on Tuesday in which ten lives were lost. The arrests were made after hours of questioning by Commissioner Whalen and other police officials at the West Thirtieth Street police station.

Flynn and Lalley were booked at the police station on charges of violating Section 1052 of the Criminal Code, which involves "excusable manslaughter" and culpable negligence.

The police said that the company had stored between 50,00 and 100,000 feet of film in a storage room that was not fireproof, when under the law they were not allowed to keep more than 5,000 feet of film in such a room.

Frederic R. Coudert, the unsuccessful Republican candidate for District Attorney in the recent elections, who appeared as counsel for the film company officials, immediately attempted to raise bail for the prisoners, which was unofficially reported to be $15,000 each.

Commissioner Whalen, who had joined in the investigation last night, said that Mayor Walker would probably sit as an investigating magistrate in the case and order a sweeping investigation into the storage of films by various companies throughout the city.

Commissioner Whalen last night had gone with members of the police emergency squad to the studio and directed the removal of some reels of the film from the ruins to the police station.

Mayor Directs Inquiry.

With Mayor Walker directing the investigations yesterday the work was pressed by the Fire Department, the District Attorney's office and the Police Department.

Although the fact that firemen were still working on the smoke-blackened ruins in the studio at Park Avenue and 134th Street prevented a full investigation, a preliminary report sent to the Mayor by Fire Commissioner John J. Dorman revealed some of the developments.

These included an expression of opinion by Fire Marshal Thomas Brophy that the cause of the blaze was a large electric lamp burning close to a velvet "drop" on the "set" in the studio. Marshal Brophy disclosed new evidence to support this from an actor at the scene.

Also it was brought out that while Fire Prevention Bureau officials had

Smith Skyscraper to Have Dirigible Mast Towering Quarter of a Mile Above Fifth Av.

A mooring tower for dirigibles with a be't-in landing platform for transatlantic passenger.. will tower 1,300 feet, a quarter of a mile, above Fifth Avenue at Thirty-fourth Street, when the new Empire State Building is finished, former Governor Alfred E. Smith announced yesterday.

Thus the structure will be not only the tallest building in the world, but the first to be equipped for a future age of transportation that is now only a dream of pioneers in aviation. The mooring mast will add 200 feet to the original plans, giving the structure an advantage of 270 feet over the Chrysler Building and 900 feet over the Eiffel Tower in Paris.

Mr. Smith said the dirigibles would be warped to the mast by an electrical winch; much as an ocean liner is warped to its pier. A ship once moored can swing in the breeze and the passengers go down a gang plank to the elevator in the tower, he declared.

Shreve, Lamb & Harmon, architects of the building, after consulting the world's leading dirigible experts, have decided that the steel frame of the structure can be strengthened sufficiently to withstand the pull of the greatest Zeppelin in anything less than a fifty-mile gale.

"The directors of the Empire State, Inc., believe," said Mr. Smith, "that in a comparatively short time the Zeppelin airships will establish transatlantic, transcontinental and transpacific lines, and possibly a route to South America from the port of New York.

"Building with an eye to the future, it has been determined to erect this mooring tower with elevator facilities through the tower to land people directly on Thirty-fourth Street and Fifth Avenue after their ocean trip, seven minutes after the airship connects with the mast."

The Empire State Building, now rising on the site of the old Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, will probably be ready by the Fall of 1931. It will have 3,000,000 square feet of floor space and room for 60,000 persons.

No estimate has been made, Mr. Smith said, of the cost of adding the mooring tower. The cost of the structure as originally planned is between $40,000,000 and $60,000,000. The former Governor will visit Secretary of the Navy Adams in Washington today to ask for the aid of the department's experts in mooring mast construction.

8 CONVICTS KILLED IN NEW AUBURN RIOT; CHIEF KEEPER SLAIN, WARDEN IS SAVED; TROOPERS' CHARGE WINS 6-HOUR BATTLE

ROOSEVELT TO ACT JAN. 1

Will Ask the Legislature to Expand Prison Building Program.

GETS NEWS SPEEDING EAST

First Planned to Go to Auburn and Take Charge of Situation.

APPROVES LEHMAN'S ACTION

Speaker McGinnies Promises Prompt Action at Albany to Remedy Penal Evils.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Governor Roosevelt will make special recommendations to the Legislature when it convenes next month, he said here tonight, for remedying the conditions which have caused the series of riots and outbreaks in State prisons this year.

Notified of the Auburn prison riot while speeding eastward on a train from Chicago, the Governor contemplated leaving the train at Syracuse and motoring to Auburn to take personal charge of the situation.

When his train reached this city at 5:35 o'clock, however, reports indicated the situation was under control and he decided to continue on to New York City.

Guernsey T. Cross, secretary to the Governor, had come on to Syracuse at the Governor's direction and had made all arrangements for the Executive to make the trip to Auburn in case he decided to do so. Hotel reservations even had been made in this city and in Auburn.

Keeps Informed of Situation.

Although the Governor was not ready to discuss the nature of the recommendations he would make, he indicated that they would include advocacy of a prison building program to continue the expansion already started by erection of the new model State prison at Attica.

With him on the special car at the end of the 5:27 eastbound train were Robert Fitzmaurice, his private bodyguard, and Corporal Earl Miller of the State police. Mr. Cross and a stenographer boarded the train here and continued to New York City with the party.

The Governor had been keeping in touch with the situation as closely as possible by telegraph from Albany and Auburn during the trip.

He had little comment to make on the outbreak except to declare that the steps Lieut. Gov. Lehman had taken in the emergency met with his entire approval.

He deplored the serious overcrowding that exists in Auburn and other prisons of the State, but when asked if he believed this was the chief cause of the desperate efforts to escape at Auburn and other institutions he shook his head.

"One of many causes," he said.

Just what he believed were the other contributing factors he would not state. Asked if he believed the type of guards now manning the prisons had any connection with the problem, he replied:

Will Refer to Guards.

Newspaper men pressed him with

Lawes Let Sing Sing Men Read News of Riot; Troopers Called to Dannemora as Precaution

By The Associated Press.

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Warden Lewis E. Lawes said tonight that no precautions out of the ordinary were being taken at Sing Sing because of the riot at Auburn Prison.

"Everything is quiet here," he said. "Of course, if you're warden of a prison, you've got to figure on outbreaks like that at Auburn. You've got to expect that any day somebody is going to try to get away. All you can do is to keep watch and try to be prepared for anything that happens. That is what we are doing at Sing Sing."

Warden Lawes said that more than 2,000 prisoners in Sing Sing would be permitted as usual to read the newspapers containing the stories of the Auburn riot.

"The effect on their morale of withholding the newspapers would be worse than allowing them to see them," he said. "I expect there'll be a good deal of buzzing when they read them."

Special to The New York Times.

PLATTSBURG, N. Y., Dec. 11.—More than 100 State police are spending tonight at Dannemora Prison as a precaution against an outbreak like the one at Auburn.

With the first reports of the Auburn trouble, Warden Harry M. Kaiser telephoned Malone and fifty troopers were sent from there. Later fifty more came from Troy.

ASCRIBES OUTBREAK TO LONG SENTENCES

Dr. Hart of Russell Sage Foundation Also Blames Discipline and Lack of Paroles.

SEGREGATION IS URGED

W. L. Butcher of State Crime Commission Supports Plan Suggested by Warden Lawes.

Strict prison discipline and long sentences which have caused convicts to lose hope of liberty are contributing factors to disturbances such as yesterday's at Auburn Prison, in the opinion of Dr. Hastings H. Hart, president of the Russell Sage Foundation.

"We know that the shops and the kitchen were burned last Summer at the time of the last outbreak," he said, "and that it has been the means of keeping the men in close confinement. This would induce considerable dissatisfaction and dissatisfaction tends toward disturbances.

"On the other hand, it ought to be pointed out that possibly four-fifth of the inmates probably have no liking for disturbances at all. It is always a small number who inspire and carry forward these things and, unfortunately, all the inmates have to suffer for it.

Old Privileges Cut Off.

"Another inducing cause has been the fact that hope for the prisoner has been very largely shut off. He is no longer able to earn one-third of his time off for good behavior. Then, too, the parole board is not so much inclined today to release prisoners on parole as they used to be. Also the judges are giving longer sentences, in many cases made necessary by the recently enacted laws, and all this tends to diminish hope for the prisoner."

William Lewis Butcher, member of the New York State Crime Commission, said:

"I have only the same reaction to this that I had when it happened last Summer. That is that society has got to provide proper sanitation, proper conditions and proper food, and classify and segregate prisoners as Warden Lawes has recently suggested, or we will have trouble.

"Prisoners should be trained in prison for gainful employment on their release. Otherwise they are going to be enemies of society instead of friends when they come out."

Mr. Butcher said that he thought the problems would be solved in some measure by the $30,000,000 State program of prison improvements. He thought the pay of prison keepers should equal that of policemen.

Similar views were expressed by E. R. Cass, corresponding and general secretary of the Prison Association of New York. Richard C. Patterson Jr., Commissioner of Correction, would not comment.

Ex-Guard Suggests Segregation.

Segregation of long-term prisoners in well-guarded sections of prisons was suggested as a means of preventing outbreaks, by Thomas O'Brien of 320 East Ninetieth Street, a former guard at Sing Sing, now employed in this city.

In commenting on the outbreak at Auburn, Mr. O'Brien said there was little doubt that it was planned by life-term prisoners who were willing

WARDEN RELATES STORY OF CAPTURE

'Cover Us!' Convicts Demanded as They Pressed Guns Against Him, 'Or We'll All Die Together.'

BOMB WAS TURNING POINT

'Astounding Bravery' of Trooper Who Tossed It in Face of Armed Prisoners Is Praised.

By The Associated Press.

AUBURN, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Warden Edgar S. Jennings of Auburn Prison told The Associated Press tonight the story of his capture by a group of rioting convicts. He gave the account from his bed, where he was recovering from the effects of tear gas used by troopers as they wrested the warden and seven guards from the clutches of the maddened inmates.

His account follows:

"Soon after 10 o'clock this morning I was informed that there was some disturbance brewing in the prison, so I went down at once to the kitchen, where I knew I had some reliable men who could ascertain what was wrong.

"I was returning from the kitchen and had reached the stairway leading up to the principal keeper's office and the chapel door when a convict suddenly stepped out and shoved a gun into my stomach.

"'Do not move or say anything, warden, or I will kill you,' he said quietly.

"At the same time two other convicts, one with a knife and one with a razor, came on each side of me and threatened to kill me if I made any outcry. I glanced at the gun and saw that the convict meant business. The convict then said:

"'Just come with me, warden. We want you to accompany us to the punishment gallery, and you will have to cover us, or we will kill you.'

Demanded Order of Release.

"On reaching the punishment gallery, the three officers in charge, seeing me, and not suspecting anything wrong, suddenly found themselves held up at the points of guns, and they, too, were relieved of their weapons and were forced to open all the punishment cells, releasing most of the men who figured in the subsequent shooting.

"We were then handcuffed together in pairs and taken to the upper back hall of the south wing, and presently several other guards were also taken prisoners in the same manner.

"I do not recall who were taken altogether, but the group of guards included Dempsey, Rythes, Atkins, Holzhauer, Salley, Hugunin and the former woodshop keeper, MacTaggart.

"Sullivan and Pawiak (convicts) appeared to be among the leaders, and Sullivan said, quietly:

"'Warden, we are going to ask you to instruct the men out front to let us go out with you and these other officers. You will have to give the order, or we will kill you. We are determined to go out or die, but if you fail we will all die together.'

"They issued instructions simply, telling the men in front to open the doors and to keep all officers from any gun-play as they marched out with us as their prisoners. They handcuffed us in pairs and they said:

"'Warden, we intend to put a convict behind every two keepers. He has a gun and will shoot his pair at the first indication of treachery. You will march out with us and we will place you in the cars with us.

"'We plan to seize enough automobiles from the streets of Auburn

HOLD WARDEN HOSTAGE

Convicts, Under Death Threat, Force Him to Ask Their Release.

TWELVE GUARDS WOUNDED

MAKE CELL BLOCK FORTRESS

Troopers and Militia Close In on Them in Night Combat Which Forces Surrender.

By F. RAYMOND DANIELL.
Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

AUBURN, N. Y., Dec. 11.—The principal keeper at Auburn Prison was murdered, a dozen other keepers were wounded or gassed and eight convicts were killed today when, for the second time in five months, a desperate group of long-term prisoners attempted to seize the prison and escape.

The band was partly in control of the prison for six hours before the authorities obtained the upper hand and announced that the last of the rioters had been caught or killed.

Throughout the evening troopers and militiamen had conducted a dramatic hunt through the dim cell blocks where the beleaguered convicts had made a last stand, ready to shoot down any person that blocked their path. Machine guns had been mounted on the prison walls and trained down into yards as light as noontime under the beams of great floodlights.

A list of the dead and injured was issued tonight at the prison. It was as follows:

KILLED.

GEORGE A. DURNFORD, principal keeper.

HENRY SULLIVAN, prisoner, serving twenty to twenty-one year sentence, shot down by troopers while attempting to escape.

PERRY JOHNSON, prisoner, serving life sentence, killed while attempting to escape.

ALEXANDER TUCHOLKER, lifer, who acted as spokesman and leader of the rebels, killed in the final rush.

STEVE PAWLAK, lifer, recaptured after escaping last Summer, shot and killed in the final rush.

STEVEN SPORNEY, prisoner, serving fifteen years, killed in the final rush.

LUKE POWELL, prisoner, serving twenty-five to thirty years, killed in the final rush.

INJURED.

GEORGE E. ATKINS, guard, shot and wounded so critically that he is expected to die.

J. F. VAN HOUSEN, guard, slightly wounded.

ARTHUR HOLSHOUE, guard, beaten by convicts, condition not serious.

JOHN ERUTON, captain of prison guard, shot in stomach but expected to live.

CLARENCE DEMPSEY, guard, wounded but not seriously.

MILTON J. EYTHER, guard, wounded but will recover.

MAX BECKER, convict.

EARL UDWINE, convict.

CLARENCE SCRIBER, convict.

SERGEANT E. A. LA POINT, trooper, shot in right cheek.

WILLIAM STEVENS, trooper, grave wound in forehead.

EARL EGGARTY, trooper, bone grazed by bullet.

Staged by Fifty Convicts.

The backbone of the rebellion, staged by fifty convicts in solitary for leading last Summer's rioting, was not broken until after dark. Surrender came finally after a company of State troopers charged into the building where the ringleaders were barricaded and shot down six of the mutinous convicts. While the shock troops ran in, shooting, the walls and gates of the prison were covered by a small army of National Guardsmen and armed citizens.

The uprising started a few minutes before 11 o'clock this morning when the company of fifty men, held in solitary confinement, were being marched through a corridor on their way to the yard for the one hour's exercise they are allowed to have. As they passed a door leading to the chapel, Warden Jennings, returning to his office after inspecting some construction work made necessary by the destruction wrought last Summer, happened to be passing.

One of the prisoners grabbed the warden, who called for help. Durnford, the chief keeper, ran down the stairs. A convict who had obtained a pistol somewhere stopped him with a bullet. The principal keeper died a few hours later in the prison hospital. One by one other guards, who ran down the stairs to see what was happening, were captured and held prisoners.

Then began an bold an attempt at barraining for freedom as any of the recent attempts at escape has produced. The convicts sent out word that unless safe conduct was given them from the jail to freedom "we'll all die together."

"Let them have what they want," urged a message purporting to have come from the warden, still a prisoner.

"The warden will have to take his chances. There will be no compromise," was the word telephoned from Albany by Acting Governor Herbert H. Lehman and Dr. Raymond F. C. Kieb, State Commissioner of Correction, to Captain Steven McGrath of Troop D of the State Constabulary from Oneida, who telephoned for instructions.

Troopers Lay a Trap.

But the State troopers first attempted a subterfuge, hoping to save the Warden and at the same time break the riot. They ordered three automobiles drawn up in front of the main gates to the prison. They left the engines running temptingly. Then they barricaded themselves behind other automobiles, fences, telegraph poles and trees. They ordered the big prison gates opened wide. Only Sullivan and Johnson were taken in by the ruse. They made a sprint through the gates. As they leaped for the running board forty guns sputtered and the two men fell.

Captain McGrath ordered his men to get ready to charge. Tear bombs sent by airplane from other cities had arrived.

"If they won't come out, we'll smoke them out," he said.

In they went, forty or fifty State troopers behind Captain McGrath, hurling tear bombs like hand grenades.

Warden Staggers from Gas.

When they came out they brought the warden. A keeper named McTaggart, whom the prisoners had shackled to him, came too. Both men were half blinded temporarily by the gas that had been used to deliver them.

For the rest of the afternoon the men inside the walls settled down to desultory but futile sniping at the army of prison defenders. All afternoon units of the National Guard in nearby cities were being mobilized. Some 1,500 armed men had gathered for the attack when the zero hour struck.

When the final push came it was again Troop D of Oneida that went in. Some fifty men fought their way into the topmost tier of the south wing cell block and there they cornered the leaders of the rebellion. The prisoners, who had armed themselves with pistols taken from guards, and perhaps weapons from outside the prison walls, made a stubborn stand.

The troopers, with orders to "shoot to kill," shot them down one after another. Trooper E. F. Fogarty of Troop D was credited with killing Pawlak after chasing him from one cell to another. A bullet from Pawlak's pistol grazed the end of the trooper's nose before the convict fell.

Prison Warden Captured.

Earlier in the day the rioting convicts had captured Colonel Edgar S. Jennings, warden of the prison, and seven guards. They covered him and the keepers with revolvers and handcuffed them. Henry Sullivan, a convict who got away from Auburn last March and was captured three days later, acted as leader of the band. He told Warden Jennings that he and the guards were to be shot unless safe conduct outside the walls was granted to the rioters.

The warden wrote an order for the gates to be opened. The message was sent to the main gate. State troopers, who had responded to an alarm given by a guard who had eluded capture read the message. The officer in command telephoned to Dr. Raymond F. C. Kieb, State Commissioner of Correction, in Albany. Dr. Kieb told the troopers to shoot their way into the prison.

"There will be no compromise," declared Acting Governor Herbert H Lehman, when told of the demand of the rioters and their death threat against their prisoners, and the stand of the State was made clear to the group of twelve men who were standing guard over Colonel Jennings.

Charge Follows Tear Gas.

While the convicts were debating what to do, the troopers rushed into the building. They put down a barrage of tear gas and, as the rioters and their captives poured into the main hall, the troopers charged. The convicts opened fire. Sullivan was shot down as he succeeded in getting through the swirling clouds of gas. Warden Jennings and five of the guards were rescued as they fell to the floor, overcome by the gas. Three of the rioters were caught as they collapsed from the effects of the fumes.

The convicts retreated, taking with them the two guards who had failed to reach the troopers. Apparently as they fell back the desperate criminals opened the cell blocks and induced other inmates to join their ranks, for prison officials estimated that probably a dozen men were hiding behind barricades tonight in the shadows of the south cell block, where they had established themselves for their last stand.

Shots Resound From Cell Block.

Five companies of the 108th Infantry, a regiment once commanded by the warden, were aiding more than 100 troopers in the siege. Reports of sporadic firing from inside the cell block could be heard outside and it was reported that five convicts had been killed by machine gun fire.

Pending the herding of all the convicts into their cells and a roll-call, prison officials said no official list of the casualties would be given out. They also refused to disclose how many of the 1,754 prisoners in the jail had participated in the disturbances. It was said that not more than twenty men led the riot, the remainder of the inmates remaining quiet in the yards under the threat of machine guns and rifles.

Revolt Starts In Mess Hall.

The maniacal efforts of the ruthless band to take possession of the prison and execute a general jail delivery began at 11 A. M. At that hour the mess tables had been set up and the inmates in small groups were coming into the mess hall for the midday meal. They were composed largely of the "idle company."

This detachment of 200 had been formed from among those regarded as having played a big part in the riot of July. They were usually under close watch and inspections were made regularly to see that no weapons were smuggled into them. Apparently the surveillance had been lax because on the dot of 11 o'clock, as if by pre-arrangement the ringleaders of the band drew revolvers from under their gray blouses.

The convicts covered the six guards who were on duty in the men's hall and ordered them to hand over their revolvers. This was done and the captives were marched down the hallway to a room known as the "punishment gallery." This is near the welfare offices and in a building adjoining one in which Warden Jennings has his office.

Capture the Warden.

There had been some slight indications of the brewing trouble at 10 A. M., according to Warden Jennings, but an investigation had failed to intimate that the trouble would go beyond the "rumor stage." The warden had toured the prison and had found nothing out of the way.

He was at his desk an hour later when a trusty came in and said that Colonel Jennings was wanted. The warden had started from his office and was in a hallway when a convict stepped up to him and jammed a revolver against his side.

"Do not say anything, warden," urged the convict, "or I will kill you."

Colonel Jennings was led to the "punishment gallery" where he was lined up with the six guards. Another guard was brought in and at that time the band consisted of twelve men.

"Warden, you write a note to the guard at the gate and tell him to let us out," said Sullivan. "If you don't do it, we are going to kill you and the others. We might as well be dead ourselves as in here and we mean business."

Warden Asks for Convicts' Release.

The note was penned and John Sullivan, sergeant of the prison guards, who had been taken prisoner in the interval, was dispatched to the gate with it. While he was on the way Principal Keeper Durnford had encountered three of the rioters further down the hallway. When they told him to surrender he make a break for liberty. He was shot three times through the side and died instantly.

The program of the rioters, however, unknown to them had been upset. David Winney, another keeper, had encountered two of the rioters. When they told him to put up his hands he fell to the floor and jerked himself quickly to one side. By this he avoided the two bullets that were loosed at him. Before another volley could be fired Winney got through a doorway and slammed the big steel door behind him. He hurried to a telephone but found that the telephone wires had been cut.

Guard Telephones Alarm.

Winney finally found a line that had escaped the wire-cutters. This connected with the main gate. Winney gave the alarm to the man on post there and the latter started putting in calls for help. He got the headquarters of the State Troopers on the wire and then Police Headquarters here. They in turn sounded the alarm and soon help was converging on the prison from all quarters.

So when Sullivan with the note got to the gate Captain Stephen McGrath, commanding State Troop D at the Oneida barracks, was waiting. Outside were Lieutenant Tremaine Hughes and forty-three gray-clad troopers.

"They've got the warden in the South Hall," Sullivan told Captain McGrath. "They are barricaded in there. They threaten to kill the hostages and they won't come out. They have refused to talk with Father Cleary, the chaplain. What will we do?"

Captain McGrath, rather than take the risk of sending Warden Jennings and the guards to their death by rushing in, decided to consult Dr. Kieb. He sent a trooper to telephone.

"What does the commissioner say?" asked McGrath when the man came back.

Kieb Orders Charge.

"He says, 'Go in and get them.'"

"O. K.," said Captain McGrath, "then we'll do it."

He turned to his command.

"We'll drive them out into the yard," he said, "and you fellows get your machine guns up on the wall. If you see it will help, let 'em have it."

The reference to Father Cleary was one to the Rev. Donald Cleary, Roman Catholic chaplain. Father Cleary had walked in on the scene when Warden Jennings and the guards were standing handcuffed and the rioters were holding their weapons ready to shoot. Apparently, the convicts had no grudge against the priest, because they made no effort to take him prisoner.

Father Cleary tried to reason with the men. He told them that they could not get out, and pointed out that more than 2,500 men, many of them civilians living near by, who had grabbed up any weapon that came to hand, were outside the prison. Silence greeted the efforts of the priest. He was there when Sullivan came back with word that the State refused to negotiate with the rebels.

Convicts Fall Into Trap.

At this point it became evident to Captain McGrath that he could not storm the building. He could get as far as the front hall but no farther, owing to big, steel grilled doors that blocked the way and which had been shut by the retreating convicts. How to get the foe out into the hall was his problem.

To solve it, it was necessary to deceive Father Cleary. He was taken to one side and told that the officials of the prison had finally decided to capitulate to save the lives of the warden and his fellow captives. The priest was asked to tell Henry Sullivan and the members of his gang that they would be allowed to leave by the main gate and that automobiles, with engines running—as the band had specified—were waiting outside.

The chaplain, unaware of the strategy, told the convicts. They promptly put Colonel Jennings and the guards in front as shields and opened the steel doors. As the first of the convicts filed into the front hallway the troopers fired their tear gas bombs.

Warden and Guards Saved.

As the bombs exploded the waves of gas swept forward. At the first thud and the first swirl of gas the convicts began to fire. Colonel Jennings and several of the guards rushed through the gas and then collapsed. Sullivan, furious at being tricked, boldly plunged through the wave of gas and seemed unaffected as he came out in the clear zone beyond.

He faced the troopers led by Captain McGrath. He leveled his weapon but before he could pull the trigger the troopers fired. Sullivan fell face downward. Convicts who were overcome by the gas had fallen just inside the doorway. The troopers charged but the remnant of the rioters beat a rapid retreat, dragging two handcuffed guards with them. Exchanging shots with the pursuing troopers, who took advantage of what cover they could in the hallway, the convicts took refuge in the south cell block.

Sullivan was clad in the blue uniform and reefer of a prison guard's uniforms, stolen from the lockers of the guardroom which was looted. The troopers might have held their fire if the gray prison uniform of Johnson at his side had not sealed the doom of both.

To get to their new fastness the convicts had to traverse one of the prison yards for a short distance. The troopers were hauling their machine guns to the top of the wall, but the frenzied prisoners, ready to take any chance that offered a possibility of escape, made for the wall. For minutes they tried to scale the walls, some attempting to form living pyramids on which others might climb to the top.

Erect Barricade in Cell Block.

While the maddened men were making these futile efforts the troopers abandoned their endeavors to get their machine guns into place. At the point where the convicts made their sortie there were only five or six troopers. These drew their revolvers and fired down at the men.

This caused the convicts to desist and to rush pell-mell over the open ground to the south cell wing. They disappeared into the corridors and apparently mustered reinforcements. They improvised barricades from mattresses, chairs and whatever else came to hand. The barricades were erected, it was reported tonight, from within the prison at corners, so that the men behind them would command with revolver fire two corridors down which the troopers and militiamen must come.

When the convicts took refuge in the south wing the siege of the prison really began. Virtually by the minute reinforcement were arriving outside the walls and the plight of the rioters became more and more hopeless. On orders of Major Gen. William N. Haskell, commanding the National Guard of the State, two companies of the 108th Infantry were ordered to report forthwith at the prison. The companies are the units of the regiments stationed here. They were hurridly mobilized by Major P. H. Johnson and were soon on the scene.

Hand-to-Hand at End.

The raid that ended the revolt was narked by close fighting. The troopers carried no tear bombs. The charge was not designed to rescue hostages but to bring out the rebels, read or alive. Captain McGrath, in accordance with orders from Albany, had issued orders to his men to shoot to kill.

The raiding party found the main hallway barricaded with packing boxes. Under fire from behind these breastworks the troopers advanced, crawling on their hands and knees to withi na few yards of the barrier. Then they leaped and charged. Seven of the fighting convicts, wounded or knocked unconscious in hand-to-hand fighting, were dragged out of the building and taken to hospitals or cells to await trial for murder.

Six others, driven from their breastworks, ran up the grated stairs and balconies. Still shooting at their pursuers, they found themselves, one by one, at last with their backs against the walls. There they were shot down.

Some of the convicts were armed only with bludgeons and knives but the troopers said there was no chance to distinguish between guns and knives in that furious encounter.

The little band of thirteen which fought it out to the last was all that remained of the original fifty rebels. Only about twenty-five of the company from the punishment cells had taken part in the fighting at the start, Warden Jennings said tonight at the hospital, and one or two of these apparently had withdrawn from the battle after Sullivan and Johnson were killed.

Word that the rebellion was quelled was telephoned to Commissioner Kieb at Albany by Philip G. Roosa, chief clerk of the Department of Correction, sent here to investigate the outbreak. Then the sullen convicts had been driven back to their cells and locked in for the night.

With the warden in the hospital and the principal keeper dead, George Sullivan, sergeant of the guard, became acting warden. Under his direction each prisoner was frisked for weapons and a search for hiding convicts was carried to every corner of the old institution. Although it was said a complete check-up and roll-call probably could not be made before morning, it was believed that no man had escaped.

Most of Inmates Aloof.

Only the company of sullen men being disciplined took part in the disorder. The rest of the 1,536 inmates of the prison, free from their cells, in workshops and at tasks about the yard when the fighting started, loitered in the big oblong enclosure within the walls. They were occupied chiefly in dodging bullets that whizzed past their heads from both directions.

Although at first it was reported that Mrs. Jennings, the warden's wife, was held prisoner in her home within the walls, it was learned that she escaped at the first sign of trouble. She emerged from the prison yard leading her pet bulldog a little after 11 A. M. and last night was at the hospital at her husband's side.

So complete was the subjugation of the prison population that by 11 o'clock only twenty of the hastily mobilized army of prison defenders remained on duty on the walls, the same number of extra State troops that have been kept on guard since the desperate outbreak of arson and murder which covered the escape of six men last July.

The rest of the militiamen, troopers, and policemen went trundling home over the roads they had covered at break-neck speed a few hours earlier in motor buses, taxicabs and motorcycles.

Rumblings of rebellion have been heard in the prison for some time. The guards were on the alert for the first sign of trouble. Still their vigilance did not prevent the prisoners from arming themselves. A search of the Prison Welfare League quarters tonight after the uprising was quelled revealed half a dozen blackjacks and about twice as many murderous looking knives stolen from the kitchen.

Militiamen Surrounded Walls.

The militiamen were flung in a cordon around the outside walls, while the troopers were operating inside. Later, when more of the guardsmen arrived, the soldiers were admitted to the prison and took part in the siege.

In addition, every available member of the Auburn Police Department was ordered to the prison. The police were in command of Chief M. L. Cadin of Syracuse, who put all of the men he could spare from his city on the job to assist the local men. It was Chief Cadin who reported that five convicts who had hidden in the south cell block had been wiped out by machine gunners.

He said the convicts had been shot down at 5:30 P. M. when they refused to surrender and had opened fire on the troops. He said that Pawlak had fallen under machine gun fire and that he understood that another victim had been Ernest Pavesi, another of the ringleaders in the outbreak of last July. Chief Cadin said that machine guns had been manned by State troopers.

Johnson Killed Aiding Troopers.

The police official said that no information had been obtained concerning the two keepers who had been dragged away by the convicts. Fears were at first expressed that the guards would be killed by their captors when it became apparent that all hope of shooting a way out of the prison had ended.

The police joined in the search for the men believed to be hiding in dark corners of the cell block. It was during this hunt that Johnson met death at the hands of his companions. It was understood that he had not been among the original rioters.

Johnson, who was serving a life sentence for a murder committed in Broome County, was observed at the edge of one of the barricades. The troopers fired a refuge down a cell corridor ordered him to remove a pile of mattresses which were protecting the men behind the barricade.

Johnson stepped toward the mattresses and was shot dead. A moment later Captain Bruton of the guards fell with a bullet in the side as the troopers and the keepers tried to rush forward a short distance toward the barricade.

As night fell and the searchers began the final hunt, which ended at 9 o'clock with announcement that the siege was over and the work of calling the roll of the prison was well under way, employes of a lighting company rigged the floodlights in the yard. The power was drawn through cables attached to outside conduits.

As the rioting ended and the authorities assumed control, investigations got under way to determine how the convicts obtained their weapons, which, in addition to revolvers, included knives and clubs. Major Philip D. Roosa Jr., representing the State Department of Correction, began one. He conducted the investigation of the rioting and deaths in the disturbance of July 26.

Another inquiry, but one which paralleled Major Roosa's to some degree, was launched by Deputy Commissioner George W. Jones, who said that Commissioner Kieb would be here in the orning to take full charge of the inquiry. Pending the completion of the investigations neither Major Roosa nor Mr. Jones cared to hazard an opinion on the method by which the guns were smuggled in.

Holds Rioters Guilty of Murder.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 11 (AP).—The rioting convicts who did not lose their lives today at Auburn, Commissioner Kieb informed Governor Roosevelt at the Union Station here tonight, "will undoubtedly find themselves faced with charges of murder, first degree."

These men, he said, were implicated in a killing during the commission of a felony, attempting to escape from a prison. Conviction on that score, he said, might mean death for the participants.

"Most, if not all, of these ringleaders should have been in segregation and would have been if there had been provision. We have one segregation building at Clinton Prison, with a capacity of twenty-six."

The State, he said, could not turn the New York Whittemore gang and "Boston Billy" out of the structure to make room for other desperadoes.

'NO COMPROMISE!' WAS LEHMAN ORDER

Acting Governor Declined Any Concessions to Auburn Convict Rioters.

INQUIRY TO BE STARTED

Commissioner Kieb Will Go to the Prison Today to Begin a State Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Acting Governor Lehman, when he was asked today during the Auburn prison outbreak, to permit a compromise with the rioters who were holding the warden and the guards as hostages, declared:

"There will be no compromise!"

He had been told of the situation by Dr. Raymond F. C. Kieb, commissioner of correction; Major John A. Warner of the State Police, and Adjt. Gen. Franklin W. Ward, who were at the conference in the private office of Governor Roosevelt.

It was brief, and at the end the Acting Governor declared the proposition of the rioters to give safe conduct to Warden Jennings and the guards who had been herded into one of the rooms of the prison could not be considered for a minute.

It was a tense time at the Executive Chamber, a situation that probably has never before faced a Governor. Later the warden was released by the troopers and news of this fact was received with enthusiasm at the Capitol.

Mr. Lehman remained throughout the afternoon at the Capitol receiving reports every few minutes from Auburn.

Lieutenant Holvey Perry of Troop G, State police, who was in charge of the situation, was told by Dr. Kieb that if the rioters came out to shoot them and if they did not come out to go in and get them.

Tonight Mr. Lehman said that the situation was clearing up.

"The National Guard and the State Troopers are in there now, and they are returning the prisoners in the industrial shop to their cells," he said. "The men are reported to be moving quietly without any show of excitement and we feel that the situation is well in hand. There are 500 men in the industrial shop."

Dr. Kieb said that precautions were being taken at all of the other State prisons.

"We have an ample force there," he said, "and can handle the situation nicely. We have not increased the number of State Troopers at Sing Sing."

Dr. Kieb said that he had sent Chief Clerk Philip G. Roosa of Albany, and had also instructed George W. Jones, deputy commissioner, who left tonight to make the official investigation for the commission. Dr. Kieb said he probably would go to Auburn tomorrow.

It was reported to Mr. Lehman that 300 National Guardsmen and 125 State troopers were inside the walls at Auburn. This force is augmented by policemen from Rochester and Syracuse, and those of the Auburn city force who were available.

Syracuse contributed tear gas bombs and the New York Central Railroad sent a detail of its police force to Auburn, although this was not requested by Mr. Lehman.

Dr. Kieb explained that there are tear gas bombs at all of the prisons, but that at Auburn they were not where they could be reached because of the fact that the rioters were in charge.

Troopers responding to the first call from Oneida took tear gas bombs with them.

Reports to Dr. Kieb from other State prisons tonight indicated that things were quiet everywhere and though the prisoners had learned of the trouble at Auburn, they were not excited.

"I want to commend the action of Sergeant Sullivan of the Auburn guard force," said Mr. Lehman tonight. "He was third in command. When the warden was taken away and when the head keeper was shot he assumed charge.

"Later I officially appointed him acting warden. His quick work and his nerve helped out in a bad situation."

FOUR RINGLEADERS IN PREVIOUS BREAK

Pawlak, Sullivan, Rose and Bravata Figured in Auburn Riot in July.

Four of the convicts mentioned as ringleaders in the attempted break at Auburn Prison yesterday had escaped previously and been recaptured. All had long criminal records and were facing what virtually amounted to life imprisonment, under sentences ranging from life to forty years.

Steven Pawlak, one of the quartet who escaped during the rioting at Auburn last July, began his criminal career when he was sent to the Erie County Truant School for Juvenile Delinquency on Sept. 10, 1910.

He received a life sentence under a pistol battle with detectives in the Baumes law for robbery in Buffalo on May 28, 1927. After his escape with three others in July he was recaptured in Buffalo on Sept. 11 after which he was seriously wounded. He was convicted of rioting for his part in the July prison outbreak.

One of his two companions in the escape, Samuel Rose, alias Ernst Pavesi, was convicted of assault and robbery and sentenced to forty years. He was recaptured with Sullivan.

Joseph Bravata's record shows three convictions. On Feb. 26, 1921, he was convicted of grand larceny in Brooklyn and sent to the Elmira Reformatory. After his release he returned to Brooklyn, where he was convicted of robbery on June 3, 1926, and sentenced to forty years. He took part in the break at Auburn last July and on Nov. 27 was convicted of rioting.

MANY PRISON RIOTS IN LAST SIX MONTHS

Two in This State, One at Auburn in July and Another at Dannemora.

REVOLT AT LEAVENWORTH

Twelve Lost Their Lives in Mutiny in Colorado State Prison.

The prison riot at Auburn is the second extensive outbreak there, and the third major attempt in a New York State penitentiary. The first riot at Auburn took place on July 28, when several hundred prisoners stampeded. They set fire to the buildings and shot four guards. Four of their number escaped, and two were killed.

Just a week before the riot at Auburn the prisoners at Clinton prison in Dannemora rebelled. They were quelled by State troopers and prison guards after three of their number had been killed. None escaped, however.

While several hundred men took part in the Auburn and Dannemora riots, neither was so well planned as that occurring on Oct. 3 of this year in the Colorado State penitentiary at Canyon City, Col. Prisoners at that time held a number of the keepers as hostages and murdered four of them in an effort to intimidate the warden into giving them their freedom. Three other guards and five convicts were killed, one of the latter, Danny Daniels, shooting his lieutenants and himself when he saw that hope for escape was gone.

The Canyon City riot lasted two days. The prisoners barricaded themselves and their hostages in a cellhouse and they could not be dislodged—even with dynamite. A priest, Father Patrick O'Neil, incensed at the murder of the guards, ran the line of fire and set the explosive, but the blast was not successful. Then, just as the National Guard was bringing up a field gun to attack the cellhouse, the prisoners ran out of ammunition and Daniels fired his last bullet into his own head.

One of New York City's most daring attempts at jail breaking took place on Nov. 3, 1926, when three notorious criminals, supplied in some mysterious way with arms, tried to shoot their way from the Tombs. Two of the gunmen, Robert Berg and Hyman Amterg, were killed, as were two prison keepers, Peter A. Mallon and Jeremiah Murphy. Hundreds of persons watched the battle from near-by roofs and windows.

Another prison break was stopped in this city on May 29, 1927, when three gangsters tried to blackjack their way to freedom from the West Side prison. Dennis O'Reilly, a keeper, frustrated their attempt single-handed. The men who took part were William G. (Baltimore Willie) Unkelback, outside man for the Whittemore gang; James Werner and George Cohen. All three had "squealed" on members of the gang linked with the Tombs outbreak a few months earlier.

On Aug. 1 of this year the 3,700 convicts at the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., broke into a riot. The mutiny started in the mess hall just after luncheon. Warden Thomas B. White took no chances that it might get beyond control and ordered his guards to shoot at once. One of the rioters was killed, but none of the guards was injured. It was the fifth such difficulty in the history of the prison.

BACKS 'CRIME CLINIC' PLAN.

Group Offers to Help Patterson Get a Grant for Project.

While the Auburn prison outbreak was in progress yesterday, a group of psychiatrists, psychologists and crime experts, called together at a luncheon in Town Hall by Richard C. Patterson Jr., Commissioner of the Department of Correction, pledged itself to support a plan to establish a "crime clinic" to treat physically and mentally incapacitated criminals and correct human defects which now prevent their return to society.

In a resolution the group offered its aid to the commissioner in establishing the clinic and promised to support him in a request to the Board of Estimate for an appropriation of $153,200.

Under the plan a committee of psychiatrists, psychologists and others would study a large group of inmates in the convict prisons of the Department of Correction. The appropriation would be divided into two yearly instalments, $78,100 the first year and $75,100 the second year.

ROOSEVELT TO ACT AT ONCE ON PRISONS

regard to the immediate measures he had in mind.

"We have three commissions working on the problem now," he said. "If it would do any good, I would name a fourth."

Asked about calling a special session of the Legislature to deal with the situation the Governor said he would be pleased to entertain any recommendations for relieving the situation.

"But what could the Legislature do between now and January 1," he asked. "You can't build a prison in that time."

McGinnies Pledges Aid.

Consideration of the whole problem of prison policy and prompt action at the forthcoming session of the Legislature was promised by Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies of the Assembly, who sat with the legislative commission on revision of the public service law at a hearing in City Hall yesterday.

After reading reports of the Auburn Prison outbreak, the Republican leader declared that he was seriously disturbed by the news and would bend every effort toward seeking an end to the recurring riots in the State prisons. He said, however, that he did not see how a special session of the Legislature would help the situation.

"For the time being it is a matter of prison administration," he said. "The Commissioner of Correction and the wardens must determine what additional regulations are necessary. It is not in our province to make laws dealing with the details of administration. If there was anything the Legislature could do at once, I would urge a special session, but I do not see that there is. In any case, the Legislature will meet in regular session on Jan. 1."

Whether there is too much mollycoddling of prisoners and whether new types of prisons are needed to house the reckless criminals of the modern era in crime are problems which must be studied, Mr. McGinnies said.

"The trouble seems to be that we have a different type of convict from the old-time burglar," he added. "Instead of the second-story man whose only thought was to get away when he was in danger of being discovered, we have the gunman who shoots in cold blood beforehand. We can't very well keep this type of convict in a cell twenty-four hours a day, but some more stringent control is necessary."

Governor Roosevelt with Guernsey Cross, his secretary, and Robert Fitzmorris, executive clerk, arrived at the Grand Central from Albany in a special car at 12:40 this morning. He promised a detailed statement as soon as an official report came from Auburn.

Knight Against Special Session.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Dec. 11 (AP).—Senator John K. Knight, majority leader of the Senate, declared tonight he could see no need for calling an extraordinary session of the Legislature to take action in connection with today's Auburn Prison outbreak.

The temporary president of the upper legislative House, in an interview at his Arcade residence, expressed the belief that convening of a special session would not hasten steps deemed necessary to curb prison uprisings in this State. At the same time he said he heartily favored giving any remedial legislation with reference to prisons immediate right of way with the opening of the regular session on New Year's Day.

Majority Leader Knight declared that "one of the lessons to be derived from the recurrent prison riots was need for stricter segregation of ring leaders and obvious troublemakers," this reform in policy to be achieved either by legislation or by action on the part of the State Department of Correction.

Senator Knight pointed out that a program of reconstruction and expansion at Auburn has been under way for several years and now is going forward. Approximately $2,000,000 has been appropriated for the project, and the 1930 Legislature is expected to vote an additional $2,500,000 for furtherance of the undertaking, which includes rebuilding of the cell block, erection of an industrial building and other enlargement features.

RADIO BEATS "GRAPEVINE"

Convicts at Great Meadow Hear Details of Auburn Riot.

COMSTOCK, N. Y., Dec. 11 (AP).—While Auburn convicts were battling with their guards today, prisoners in Great Meadow Prison here listened to radio accounts of the fight.

The time-honored "grapevine telegraph" of the convicts gave way to the latest means of swift communication.

Warden Hunt said the sentiment among the prisoners here, all comparatively short-term inmates, was that such riots are "foolish moves." These prisoners feel, he said, that the outbreaks may result in more restricted conditions in the prisons and a curtailment of privileges.

STATE TROOPS BORE BRUNT OF STRUGGLE

Detachment Under Captain McGrath Was the First to Reach Auburn Prison.

LEADER TELLS OF RESCUES

Prisoners, Chained to Chairs, Were Dragged Out, as Rioters Retreated Into Cell Block.

Special to The New York Times.

AUBURN, Dec. 11.—State troopers, led by Captain Stephen McGrath, played a major part in quelling the mutiny in the Auburn Penitentiary today.

These men struck the first blow that resulted in freeing Warden Jennings and the guards imprisoned with him, and they brought about the end of the conflict by killing the last six men, who, when cornered, "shot it out" to the finish.

Captain McGrath was at the troopers' headquarters in Oneida when the call for aid came this morning. He rushed to Auburn, bringing fifty men with him. One hundred others were assembled from other points and these joined twenty who have been here, doing night duty on the prison walls since the last outbreak in July.

Captain McGrath's unit was one of the first of the 1,000 armed men to reach the scene. The troopers arrived at 12:10 P. M., after speeding in automobiles over highways covered with snow.

"Hardly any one was here and it was a question what move we should make," Captain McGrath said. "We heard immediately that the warden and several of the guards were held as hostages.

"The entrance to the prison, which opens on a large hall flanked by offices, is set back about fifty feet from the steel-barred gate. The first barrier in the hall is about twenty feet from the front entrance, and behind this barrier is another hall, with doors opening into the north and south cell blocks.

Feared for Warden's Life.

"The warden and the guards were held prisoners behind the locked grill door that gave entrance into the south cell block.

"We could only think then of the recent outbreak in Canon City, where several of the guards were murdered by the prisoners. Several of us tried to puzzle out a way to rush the building without entailing the sacrifice of the lives of the men held captive, but we finally decided that first we would try a ruse.

"The men in the cell block commanded that portion of the hall behind the bars and part of the outer hall, but we were able to find cover behind the walls flanking the bars at the first entrance.

"We sent a man through that door with a message to the convicts that we would let them out if they would release their prisoners. This man unlocked the door to the cell block, but as he came out the main gate was locked. The men milled into the part of the hall behind the gate, but did not release their prisoners.

"Lieutenant A. H. Hughes, who was on the opposite side of the main gate from me, and I hurled a few gas bombs through it, and as soon as the gas began to take effect the convicts retreated back into the south cell block from which they had come.

"But then they began to smash windows and let out the gas before it could really take effect.

Dragged Out Prisoners.

"Several of us, including my men, guardsmen and policemen, donned gas masks and went in after the prisoners' captives. They all were chained or tied and suffering from the tear gas, and several had been wounded, but we dragged them out, along with one convict who had been shot.

"Whether it was done by one of my men or a convict I don't know, but h edied a few minutes after we brought him out."

There was a lull for several hours, with desultory firing, but no attempt at further rushes. Captain McGrath said that this delay was taken principally in an effort to formulate a plan whereby the riot might by overcome without further loss of life.

However, when it became apparent that the ringleaders had no intention of surrendering, the heads of the forces held a conference and determined to end the riot with one more drive. Captain McGrath was chosen to lead the charge.

"The majority of the men," he said, "had taken refuge in the cells and we held the entrance to the block, but in the darkness it was impossible to get any clear idea of the situation.

Rioters Refuse to Surrender.

"We simply had to push ahead and investigate as we went.

"We called out many times to the men who had the guns, giving them a chance to surrender, but the firing continued, first from one place and then another, our only way of locating it being by watching for the figures who darted out to fire or from the flashes of their guns.

"The raiding party then began a systematic search of the cells, one tier at a time.

"The majority of the men gladly came from their hiding places, and were searched and moved to another part of the building, but those who were firing kept moving to higher tiers.

"Finally they were segregated on one corner of the fifth, the top tier, and we began closing in on them from two sides. Because of the narrowness of the walk, not more than twelve men could take part in the last encounter, but we kept exchanging rapid fire with the remaining rioters.

"Then their firing stopped. At first we thought it was a ruse on their part, but when we investigated we found that five men were dead, and the only other one was so badly wounded that he died soon afterward."

Blast Halts London Subway.

LONDON, Dec. 11 (AP).—London's subways and underground electric systems were held up nearly an hour today by an explosion at the Chelsea power station. Thousands of City workers were delayed. None was injured at the power station, but many windows were shattered.

The eighteenth annual appeal for the Hundred Neediest Cases continues in today's issue of The New York Times.

RUSH TEAR GAS BOMBS TO AUBURN BY PLANE

National Guard Fliers Make Flight With Cargo Provided by the Police Here.

Within little more than an hour after Police Commissioner Whalen had received a telephone call from Major Gen. William N. Haskell, commanding officer of the New York National Guard, yesterday afternoon requesting tear gas bombs for use against the rioting convicts at Auburn prison, a load of 136 bombs was en route by airplane.

On receiving General Haskell's call shortly after 1 P. M. Commissioner Whalen ordered the seven emergency squads on duty in Manhattan and Brooklyn to Police Headquarters. There their bombs were quickly packed in cotton and rushed in a police limousine to Miller Field, Staten Island.

Major George A. Vaughan, commanding officer of the 102d Observation Squadron, N. Y. N. G., and a war flier, took off in a Curtiss two-seater plane. With him was Major Alfred E. Ruedershan, chemical warfare officer of the staff of the Twenty-seventh Division, N. Y. N. G.

First Lieutenant Ronald B. Appell of the National Guard air service also took off for Auburn. It was announced that he would stop at Poughkeepsie to pick up an additional load of the tear gas bombs for use against the convicts.

Four airplanes containing reporters and photographers also left various fields in and about New York for Auburn during the afternoon.

The planes piloted by Major Vaughan and Lieutenant Appell arrived at Auburn about 7 P. M., according to word received at Miller Field last evening.

PRISON HEADS HERE INCREASE VIGILANCE

Precautions Against Outbreak Are Said, However, to Be Adequate Now.

Officials of prisons in and near New York were on the alert yesterday as word came in of the fatal riot at Auburn, the second uprising in that prison within six months.

As a precautionary measure against an outbreak at Sing Sing, three machine guns, 6,000 rounds of ammunition, three lieutenants to instruct the guards in the use of the guns and two searchlights were sent to the prison late yesterday afternoon from local units of the National Guard.

At the Tombs, where on Monday a dramatic illustration was furnished of the speed with which help could be rushed to the prison, Warden Robert Barr said that there was no need of adding to the detail of three policemen now on duty there. This opinion was ratified by Chief Inspector John O'Brien, who said that there was no present intention of increasing the police detail.

Warden Barr pointed out that merely by pulling an alarm he could have the emergency squad from Kenmare Street and Cleveland Place on the scene within a minute. It was explained that a similar system of getting policemen armed with machine guns, bombs and pistols to the point of attack had been installed for other jails and the penal institutions in the East River.

Harry C. Honeck, warden of the Raymond Street Jail, Brooklyn, said that the number of visitors permitted to see prisoners during the next few days would be restricted as a precautionary measure.

At Trenton, N. J., all the prison's resources of defense were coordinated yesterday by Colonel Edward R. Stone, the warden, who was confirmed by the State Senate only a few days ago.

OUTSIDE CITIES SENT AID.

Police Were Sent From Rochester to Help at Auburn.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Dec. 11 (AP).—In response to a call from the Chief of Police at Auburn for all available men and weapons to assist in quelling rioting prisoners at the State institution, four automobiles loaded with police, armed with firearms and tear-gas bombs, were immediately dispatched. Police on outlying beats were called in to follow as soon as possible.

BATAVIA, N. Y., Dec. 11 (AP).—A detachment of State troopers from Batavia barracks, numbering about sixty, was sent from here to help put down the prison revolt at Auburn. The troopers, under command of Captain Winfield W. Robinson, started in train and automobile early this afternoon.

2 CONVICTS KILLED IN PREVIOUS RIOT

Four Guards Were Wounded and Prison Buildings Fired in July Auburn Outbreak.

OLDEST PRISON IN STATE

Long Overcrowded, Conditions There Have Often Been Called Atrocious and Improvement Sought.

In the last few years Auburn prison has seen numerous difficulties with its prisoners, and one serious riot. The latter, which took place on July 28 of this year, resulted in the shooting of four guards, the killing of two prisoners and the escape of four others. Two of them are still free.

The outbreak started with a wild rush from the main corridor into the inner yard. The convicts had arms and ammunition, and before the riot was over, the furniture plant, cane shop, prison kitchen, machine shop and State shop, which was to have been torn down for a new cell wing, and the Bertillion establishment, with its records of identification, were destroyed.

The dash for liberty started soon after noon. Because at least four of the prisoners had pistols, it was believed that there had been aid from the outside, and it was thought that Sunday was chosen as the day for escape because that is the only period of the week when the rules of New York's oldest State prison permit free access to the yard.

Several hundred prisoners stampeded into the main hallway, knocked down one guard, shot another in the arm and then unlocked the door to the arsenal with one of the keepers' keys. They seized riot guns and ammunition and then rushed to the yard with several hundred others who were not in the conspiracy but refused to overlook a chance to escape.

Some convicts began shooting at the guards on the walls, while others ran around the buildings with firebrands. A group of forty or so, who were believed to be the master minds of the plot, made a rush for the main gate which leads to State Street. They were driven back by machine gun fire, but four managed to run up a stairway to a turret on the wall. Then they ran along the wall, despite the shots fired at them, and jumped down to freedom. They escaped in two stolen cars.

After the first alarm, State Troopers and members of the National Guard were called from nearby cities, and fire engines came from as far distant points as Port Byron and Syracuse to put out the fires. The convicts cut the hose and blocked the firemen for some time, but the militia and the police ultimately managed to break up the prisoners into small groups and segregate them. Sunday night almost 800 men stood guard over the smoking ruins.

Auburn was opened in 1817 and it is the oldest penal institution in the State. The cell capacity is 1,226. In July it had 300 more than its capacity. Conditions there have often been called "atrocious," and last October the Commissioner of Correction, Mr. Kieb, recommend that $1,995,000 be expended in bettering them.

to take any chance to gain freedom, and who influenced other prisoners to join them.

"Most of the prisoners know there is little chance for escape," said Mr. O'Brien, "but a man faced with a lifetime in prison is desperate enough to risk his life in a riot on the long chance that during the excitement he may find some means of escaping."

Mr. O'Brien asserted that "favoritism" toward prisoners who had influential friends caused real or fancied grievances against prison authorities on the part of other prisoners. Men sent from Sing Sing to Auburn were often able to have themselves transferred back to Sing Sing through political friends, he said. Crowded conditions at Auburn and the fact that few visitors came there, because of its distance from population centres as compared with Sing Sing, were factors in the unrest of the prisoners, he added.

WARDEN RELATES STORY OF CAPTURE

to provide for us all. If you play fair with us we will take you all out into the country and dump you alive. If we die, you die.'

"They scribbled with a lead pencil instructions and asked me to sign them. I refused to sign the note. Pawlak, when they became insistent, said: 'Warden, you have your hands up, so what the hell more can we ask?'

"But then they put a gun on me and forced me to go to the door and pass out the note.

"Later, when they got no response, they became more threatening, and soon Father Cleary came up bravely under their guns and started to plead with them. He asked them in all decency to drop the effort to escape, which was doomed to failure, and Sullivan, I think, replied:

"'Father, I am a Catholic and would like to obey you, but this has gone too far. Either we are going out, or we shall die, and if we die, these officers are going to die with us.'

Praises Trooper's Bravery.

"The priest returned to the front office and the men then began to discuss the next move. They knew they had killed Durnford, and that all would die in the chair, and they were determined to kill us unless they got out.

"Then we got word that the men in front had some plan of meeting their (convicts) wishes. At any rate they said they would convince the prisoners that the doors were open and the automobiles ready to take them away, and they opened the doors so they could enter the main hall and have an unobstructed view of the open prison door all the way to the street, with the automobiles waiting for them.

"Thereupon, the doors of the main hall were opened from both north and south wings, and we all went out into that main hall.

"The convicts had, up to now, controlled an enfilading gun-fire from these two doors.

"They came into the hall, taking us with them, when suddenly a State Trooper with astounding bravery, stepped into full range of their guns and threw a gas bomb. More followed. One rolled right under me.

Warden Tells of Being Hit.

"The bomb was a signal for a general mêlée and there were shots on all sides.

"Some of the convicts realized they had been tricked and ran back into the south wing hall, while others ran into the north, but they turned on us and fired at our handcuffed officers at close range.

"One evidently tried to shoot me in the head, or hit me with the butt of his gun, or perhaps a keeper struck his hand and I got only a glancing blow, but it landed behind my head at the base of the skull and I began to get dizzy.

"The gas also, by this time, began to render me unconscious, and the last sensation I had was of a pain in my wrist as I was being dragged somewhere by my handcuffs.

"It later turned out that it was MacTaggart, and they tell me that my convict orderly who had run in from my front office also assisted in dragging me out.

"I lost consciousness and the next thing I knew, I was in bed here in the city hospital."

The warden said that the convicts broke into the officers' lockers and took a number of uniforms, which probably accounted for the fact that some of the dead convicts tonight are wearing prison guard uniforms.

He said that his captors acted quietly and coolly. At one time Pawlak said:

"Warden, you are keeping your hands up and playing the game. But we are surely going to kill you if they kill us. Now, warden, let us all go out together and we will all win out!"

CANTON BEATS OFF A REBEL ONSLAUGHT

'Ironsides' Suffer Heavy Losses in Nearly Successful Attack—Thousands Wounded.

SHANGHAI CHINESE IN PANIC

Storm Foreign Settlement at Rumor of Rebel Attack—Police Disperse Them.

CAPITAL EMPTY OF TROOPS

Nanking Reported at Mercy of Disorderly Elements by Last Foreigners to Leave.

CANTON, Thursday, Dec. 12 (AP).—More complete information of yesterday's fighting indicated that the Nationalist victory over the rebelling "Ironside" Division was much greater than at first believed. The Kwangsi rebels, attacking along the West River, also were thrust back.

It was believed that fully half the attacking forces were either casualties or were captured by Nationalist forces. The Ironsides Division, under the leadership of General Chang Fa-kwei, was reported still retreating.

The exodus of civilians from Canton, halted abruptly today with the Nationalist victory, and Nationalist Government Central Bank notes, which depreciated sharply as the result of the Ironsides' thrust returned to par.

Hospitals Full of Wounded.

CANTON, Dec. 11 (AP).—The rebels' initial attempt to capture Canton has been checked by Nationalist Government troops, with many thousands of casualties on each side.

The hospitals are full of wounded men and others are arriving. For a time the issue seemed doubtful. The "Ironsides" Division broke through the Nationalist lines north of Canton and at the height of the battle were within two hours' march of the city.

The Nationalists rallied, however, and thrust the rebels back to the starting point of their drive. The retreating rebels fell into a Nationalist trap, and 5,000 were captured.

The battle caused a condition bordering on panic in Canton. Thousands of Chinese fled toward Hongkong. Men said to be Communist agents were active throughout the city, bomb explosions occurring frequently. Two bombs hurled in the heart of the city caused the authorities to clear the streets and close the schools.

Severe Fighting in Honan.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 11 (AP).—China tonight continued a caldron of revolt against the Nationalist Government. Many thousands of persons were reported killed or wounded in a battle for possession of Canton. Rebels and loyalists battled in Honan and Anhwei Provinces.

Thousands of Chinese, made panic-stricken by apparently false reports of a rebel approach against the native section of Shanghai, were prevented by armed white police from entering the city's foreign section for safety.

Rebels, who had fought the Nationalist defenders of Canton since Monday night, were halted, at least temporarily, and thrust back after penetrating the loyalist lines to within seven miles of the city. With thousands of casualties on each side, Canton's hospitals were filled with wounded, while others continued to arrive. The famous "Ironsides" Division was said to have lost 5,000 men, captured in a Nationalist trap while retreating.

Severe fighting was reported fifty miles north of Nanking between Pukow mutineers and loyal government troops. The wounded streamed into Nanking.

Nanking Free of Foreigners.

Fifty more American and British men and women, mostly missionaries, arrived today from Nanking. With them were a number of Japanese nationals. This virtually completed evacuation of foreigners from the Nationalist capital.

The arrivals said that Nanking was "quiet, but intensely apprehensive." Contrary to other reports, the majority of the refugees said practically all Nationalist troops had been removed from Nanking, leaving the city "at the mercy of alleged Communists, who already are posting placards demanding the overthrow of the Nationalist government."

Disorderly elements, said the missionaries, were active. Many Chinese officials told the missionaries that the government feared disorders and looting.

Fighting was said to be in progress in Honan Province, but the rebel menace toward Hankow, Wuchang and Hanyang were lessened somewhat by combinations of less important militarists against the rebel chieftain, General Tang Seng-chi.

Lull in Many Areas.

In other areas there was a lull in fighting, due, according to report, to strong efforts of the government to conciliate the factions aligned against it. The main cry of the rebels seemed to be for removal of President Chiang Kai-shek, the generalissimo who in 1926 led the Cantonese northward to establish the Nationalist Government.

Shanghai, the home of some 60,000 foreigners, once more heard war's alarm. Nationalist officials of the city's Chinese section, hearing that a rebel force was advancing against them, placed troops about a railroad station in the native city. This act caused thousands of frightened Chinese civilians to stampede toward the international French concessions, seeking protection of foreigners. Foreign police, fearing disorders if the Chinese were allowed to enter, barred their way, but the mob did not disperse until the police fired a volley in the air.

All observers agree that the present period of comparative inaction is not likely to continue much longer. Its termination is expected to be marked by widespread disorders or the unmistakable evidence that Nanking has weathered the storm.

CONSULS IN MANCHURIA TO SEEK NATIONALS

Will Entrain for Occupied Zone in West to Find Out Status of Foreigners There.

By The Associated Press.

TOKIO, Dec. 11.—To ascertain the situation west of the Khingan Mountains in Manchuria, especially relative to non-Chinese residents from whom there has been no reliable news for almost a month, an international train carrying American, British, Japanese, French and German consuls, is to leave Harbin for Manchuli Friday, said a dispatch today from Harbin to the Rengo News Agency.

Special anxiety, said the dispatch, exists for the Japanese subjects, who, including Koreans, total 158 in Manchuli, 89 in Dalainor and 20 in Hailar. No direct word concerning them has been received since the Soviet armed invasion began Nov. 17.

Although the Moscow Government gave assurances of the safety of these Japanese, Russia has refused to permit Japanese Consul Tanaka at Manchuli to transmit diplomatic messages in cipher code to Tokio. This aroused fears for the Manchuli Japanese.

A White Russian refugee from Manchuli, who arrived at Buehatu, Western Manchuria, asserted several Japanese had been killed in the Soviet bombardment of Manchuli Nov. 20, which destroyed the Japanese hotel where S. Shimomura, Commissioner of Korean Government Affairs, was staying. It is feared Mr. Shimomura may be dead.

Soviet officials have not divulged details of the situation west of the Khingan Mountains, where Russian raids took place prior to the recently declared armistice for settlement of the Chinese Eastern Railway dispute. Fragmentary reports from other sources indicate that they still occupy at least Manchuli and Dalainor. They are reported to have repaired the railway, running trains along the western section of the Chinese Eastern Railway.

URGES BRITISH TO SEEK SOUTH AMERICAN TRADE

London Authority Tells Diplomats Supremacy Lost During War Mut Be Regained.

LONDON, Dec. 11 (AP).—President William Graham of the Board of Trade at a dinner to diplomats of three South American countries tonight said that it was the immediate British task to regain the former trade position in South America, with all friendliness toward the United States, and to improve on it if possible.

He stated that Great Britain had held important positions in the markets of Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay before the war, but found after the conflict the United States had largely stepped into her shoes. He referred with warm appreciation to the manner in which a recent British trade mission was received in those countries.

The Brazilian Ambassador, Uruguayan Minister and Argentine Chargé d'Affaires were the guests of honor. Besides Mr. Graham, Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson, Lord D'Abernon and Sir Ronald Lindsay, who was recently appointed Ambassador to Washington, were among the distinguished leaders present.

Lord D'Abernon told of his recent visit on a trade mission and, with reference to the $45,000,000 trade agreement negotiated with Argentina, quoted Sir Malcolm Robertson, a former Ambassador to Buenos Aires, as saying that this order was not only valuable, but represented the beginning of "an enormous thing."

GREEK MINISTER RESIGNS.

Gonatas Was Opposed by Royalist Deputies for Revolt.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Dec. 11.—General Gonatas, Minister of Transport, today handed in his resignation to Premier Venizelos in order to permit Royalist Deputies to take their seats in the chamber.

Until today the Royalists had refused to take their seats as a sign of protest against the presence of M. Gonatas, who was one of the leaders of the military revolt in 1922 and who is held responsible for the shooting of Premier Gounaris in the gardens of the palace on Nov. 29, 1922.

TURKEY APPROVES PEACE PACT MOVE

Foreign Minister Backs Stimson Note for Settlement of Sino-Soviet Crisis.

RUSSIA'S MOTIVES UPHELD

Moscow Has Always Been Loyal to Kellogg Treaty in Eastern Policy, Says Statement.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 11.—Turkey's earnest desire to see a peaceful settlement of the Sino-Soviet controversy was expressed by the Minister of Foreign Affairs, Tewfik Ruchdi Bey, in a declaration to Ambassador Grew in response to the American invitation to voice Turkey's opinion.

It recalled that Turkey has unreservedly adhered to the Kellogg pact, being one of the first to ratify it, and also has signed the Litvinoff pact. As a neighbor and friend of Soviet Russia, the Minister said, Turkey has closely followed the controversy from the beginning, and knew that Russia would be loyal to the principles of the Paris pact, and that the Oriental policy which it is following is in complete harmony with the universal peace policy. Russia had, from the first, he said, proposed direct negotiation to the Chinese Government and had no thought whatever of war, and now direct negotiations for a peaceful settlement have begun.

"Turkey greets these views with satisfaction," he continued. "I hope the negotiations reach a successful conclusion, since the settlement of this dispute between the interested parties is wholly in accord with a general policy of peace as well as with their own interest.

"I desire to emphasize that we followed with real sympathy the national movement in China and have always desired the maintenance of good relations between the two great neighboring countries. In conclusion, I again express my confidence in the Pact of Paris as the most important work which has been accomplished in our time in the interest of peace."

Washington Gets Statement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Approval of the American policy in behalf of peace in Manchuria was expressed by Tewfik Ruchdi Bey, the Turkish Foreign Minister, in a statement made to the press at Angora today. The text of the statement was transmitted to the State Department and made public.

A reply also was received today from Spain. This was favorable to the American action taken in the Manchurian crisis, but pointed out that in view of the direct negotiations between Russia and China it would not send notes to those governments.

GIVES $200,000 TO URSINUS.

Special to The New York Times.

COLLEGEVILLE, Pa., Dec. 11.—President George L. Omwake today announced a Christmas present for Ursinus College of $200,000 from Cyrus H. K. Curtis of Philadelphia.

The contribution is to start the fund for a new science building which will cost $400,000.

Mr. Curtis has been chairman of President Omwake's advisory council for seventeen years. He has contributed to Ursinus at various times in the past. Three years ago he surprised the college by sending a Christmas gift of $75,000.

CHINA ASKS LICENSE TO BUY ARMS HERE

Nanking Would Get Machine Gun Ammunition and Bombs to Quell Civil War.

WASHINGTON IS HESITANT

Fear Is Felt That Victory for the Nationalists Would Lead to End of Extraterritoriality.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The Nationalist Government of China has made application to the State Department for an export license covering 500,000 rounds of machine gun ammunition and eighty airplane bombs for use in putting down the civil war with which it is confronted.

The application has been taken under consideration with indications that the decision will be a close one. Ordinarily the department approves automatically such requests from governments, but so many factors enter into the Chinese situation that more than ordinary attention will be given to the pending request.

The United States has only recently made its appeal to China and Russia for peace in Manchuria in the name of the anti-war treaty, but it is recognized that that compact does not apply to civil war. On the other hand, there have been threats emanating for months from Nanking that on Jan. 1 the Nationalist Government will denounce the extraterritoriality treaty with the United States, if this country does not earlier abrogate it.

The State Department is willing to discuss with Chinese representatives the gradual abolition of extraterritorial rights, but is not prepared to have them removed completely at this time because of its concern for the protection of Americans and their interests in China. It is apparent that the State Department would regret approving the export license, should the issuance of the munitions from private manufacturers in this country lead indirectly to the termination of extraterritorial rights.

Since last May the general embargo against shipment of munitions to China on the part of the United States and other countries has been lifted, but the exportation of arms from the United States to China is still governed by the President's proclamation of March 4, 1922, which was issued in pursuance of a joint resolution of Congress. Under this proclamation it is unlawful to ship munitions from this country to China except on license granted by the Secretary of State.

Although no dispatches bearing on the Chinese situation were received at the State or Navy Department today, the Navy Department checked the positions of the vessels of the Asiatic fleet, whose mission is to protect American lives and interests in China.

With the arrival of three destroyers from Manila at Woosung on Friday and the arrival from Manila of the cruiser Pittsburg, flagship of the Asiatic fleet, at Shanghai on Sunday, the positions are as follows:

Nanking, gunboat Tulsa; Canton, gunboats Mindanao and Helena; Chungking, gunboat Tutuila; Hankow, gunboat Luzon; Woosung destroyers Bulmer, Edsall and McCormick; Shanghai, cruiser Pittsburg, converted yacht Isabel, gunboats Monocacy, Palos and Panay; Ichang, gunboat Guam; Kiukiang, gunboat Oahu; Swatow, destroyer Macleish, and Amoy, destroyer Parrott.

Disapproves Chinese Move.

TOKIO, Dec. 11 (AP).—M. Obata, Minister designate to China, said today that while he agreed in principle with abolition of extraterritoriality in China, he must point out that Japan was faced with the problem of protecting 300,000 Japanese nationals in a country which still lacked administrative unity or judicial independence.

Japan consequently, he thought, must go slowly. He added he believed China would better concentrate on establishing conditions which would permit abolition of extraterritoriality than by insisting immediately on such abolition.

DAWES ON RADIOPHONE GETS LINCOLN, NEB.

Makes Casual Call From the Embassy in London and Connection Is "Top Hole."

Special Cable to The New York Times.

LONDON, Thursday, Dec. 12.—Ambassador Dawes evidently has a first-class transatlantic voice, because the operators at the London end of the British-American radio chain experienced not the slightest difficulty in connecting him with Lincoln, Neb., at 3 o'clock this morning. Transmission was officially described as "top hole," which is approximately perfect.

At a few seconds past 3 the Ambassador lifted the receiver from his telephone in a private room at the embassy, 14 Prince's Gate, and spoke for four minutes. No special preparations were made by the embassy and as far as London was concerned the conversation was quite confidential, although there may have been a few radio eavesdroppers at that early hour.

To overhear a transatlantic conversation an unauthorized listener would have to erect a listening post somewhere on a direct line between Rugby Radio Station and New York, but even Signor Marconi, inventor of the beam system of transmission, is not sure whether the speech does not sometimes go the other way round the world to its destination.

SCOTLAND VOTES 'WETTER.'

Eight Gains Made by Liquor Trade in Local Option Balloting.

EDINBURGH, Scotland, Dec. 11 (Canadian Press).—Scotland will become "wetter" as a result of the polling on local option, held in several areas yesterday. The results so far known show eight victories for the liquor trade.

The Pollokshaw's Ward of Glasgow, one of the city's residential suburbs and supposedly a safe retreat for the Temperance party, voted for sale of liquor and the limitations will be repealed after being in operation for nine years.

The "wets" also scored in Kilmarnock and Newmilns. The village of Cuite, in the north of Scotland, voted for continuation of "no license."

TARDIEU FIGHTS OFF 3 CHAMBER ATTACKS

Gets Its Support in Two Votes of Confidence on Refusing Soldiers' Pay Increase.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

PARIS, Dec. 11.—The Tardieu Ministry today withstood three separate attacks during a Chamber session on the war budget which was violent and featured by parliamentary manoeuvres and suspensions amid an uproar. The Premier twice staked his government on a question of confidence and in the closest balloting obtained a margin of thirty-two votes, 308 against 276.

The battle began over a proposal by the Radical Socialist leader, Edouard Saladier, for a further increase of 1 franc (about 4 cents) in the French private soldier's pay. This the government opposed, estimating the cost at 120,000,000 francs ($4,800,000), which would upset the balance of the budget, and most of the morning sitting was devoted to bitter arguing of this question.

Defeated by the final vote, the Socialists renewed the fight in the afternoon with a demand for an increase of 50 centimes (2 cents). Finance Minister Chéron was obliged to summon Premier Tardieu to the Chamber to lend his support against the second serious assault from the Left, and it was this time that the closest voting occurred. Twice Speaker Bouisson suspended the session when the tumult got beyond control.

Later in the day another conflict centred around a Left proposal to reduce service periods in the reserve corps from twenty-one to fifteen days. This the War Minister, André Maginot, refused to accept, declaring three weeks the minimum from the viewpoint of military usefulness, and with M. Tardieu's support made it a question of confidence.

During this debate again there were violent scenes in the Chamber when Deputy Saint Just cried to M. Daladier that he was making himself a hero in Germany by his conduct.

Toward the close the Left forces suddenly became aware that so many Right Deputies had left their places that there was an actual Left majority present. They immediately attempted to force a written ballot, for which proxies are not allowed, but the Right succeeded in outwitting the manoeuvre, delaying action until its cohorts could be called back.

While today's meeting of Parliament demonstrated the strength of the government it also brought out clearly a disposition on the Chamber's part to throw off the yoke in a national emergency and take matters back into its own hands. It was also a demonstration of the Left groups' rage at seeing many progressive measures which they had long been advocating being put into force by what they regard as a reactionary government.

FLEE THAMES HOMES AS FLOODS INCREASE

Riverside Dwellers Are Driven Away as Waters Rise Another 9 Inches.

SCORES ARE MAROONED

Four Hundred Houses Flooded at Worcester—Rotherham Mines Put Out of Action.

ETON FIELDS INUNDATED

Ships Crawl Into Port as Gale Abates—Shipyards, Busy on Repairs, Employ Jobless.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Families in areas devastated by the floods—now measuring thousands of square miles—were driven further from their homes today. The waters which swept through the Thames valley turned roads into lakes, held up traffic and marooned scores of bungalow dwellers in the low-lying districts of Middlesex and Surrey, where the water rose nine inches today.

Fortunately, the rainfall for the last twenty-four hours has been infinitesimal, and if the weather holds fair the watershed will soon drain itself without damage to London, the authorities believe.

The weather is abnormally warm for this time of the year. At 5 A. M. today London's temperature was 55 degrees Fahrenheit, which is the average temperature for that hour in midsummer.

Floods in Somerset now extend for a distance of twenty miles. Hundreds of volunteers from the population of Bridgewater are patrolling their dikes day and night while work on strengthening the walls at the weakest points proceeds unceasingly. So far, the villagers of Athelney have not carried out their threat to tamper with Bridgewater's defenses, the destruction of which would inundate the town but would release the thousands of acres of water now threatening the villagers' homes.

Burrowbridge has been evacuated and many villages have lost all their possessions. Worcester is suffering severely. Between 300 and 400 houses in the poorer quarter of the city are flooded and the inhabitants have been driven with their pets and poultry to live in the upper rooms.

The rivers Don and Dearne have both over flowed in the Rotherham district and the coal mines have been put out of commission.

Further gales are reported coming from the Atlantic but they are expected to strike Scotland.

Ships Crawl Into Port.

LONDON, Dec. 11 (AP).—The violence of the wind decreased considerably today and shipping began to resume its normal proportions after high winds and rough seas had made havoc with large and small vessels. English shipyards have begun to provide work for the unemployed because a great number of damaged ships of all sizes and classes need repairs.

The total number of deaths during the gale is put at 184 in England and on the Continent.

The Thomas floods submerged the grounds of Eton College, and only the goal posts sticking out of the water indicated the site of the playing fields. The top-hatted scholars proceeding to outlying classrooms were forced to use makeshift plank bridges.

Near Egham, the famous meadow of Runnymede, where the Magna Charta was signed, became a big shallow lake. Punts and other small river craft were navigating the principal streets of many riverside towns.

Heavy floods, which have been causing damage for weeks, were becoming worse in Portugal, and the rivers in France were swollen.

Reports continued to arrive of the effect of the gales at sea. The steamer St. Louis ran ashore off Ushant and the crew was saved with difficulty. The French steamer St. Cyrille, after a severe buffeting, put in at Brest with two men injured. The British steamer Tyko called at Vigo for provisions after having experienced the full force of the recent gale.

Battered steamers were still limping into English ports. The Francisco of the Rider-Dempster and Wilson Line, came into Falmouth today with the radio out of commission, bridge smashed and several lifeboats missing.

The British steamer Largo Law has been attempting to make Falmouth for several days after a severe fight against mountainous seas which broke the steering gear, demolished deck houses and swept the main deck clear of every movable object. The rough weather dislodged seven German stowaways who had sought free passage to Australia.

The crippled Swedish steamer Sydland reached Falmouth with four of her crew injured. A huge sea had stove in a deckhouse bulkhead, smashed several lifeboats and damaged the steering gear.

Vessels Held at Lisbon.

LISBON, Dec. 11 (AP).—A heavy fog hung over Lisbon all night and for the greater part of this morning. Several boats in the Tagus had to delay their sailings. Two coastwise steamers carrying passengers were forced to remain in midstream all night.

The Royal Mail liner Arlanza arrived in port after a four-day delay. The captain said that he had encountered one of the fiercest gales of his career.

On the night of Dec. 7 he received an S O S from the Italian ship Casmona and raced at full speed to reach her. All attempts to get near the vessel were unavailing but lifeboats finally put to sea and succeeded in rescuing thirty-four of the crew.

The captain of the Arlanza and the pilot were congratulated by the Portuguese port authorities on their gallantry in effecting the rescue.

Art Ship Arrives After Dilemma in Storm; Faced Ignoring S O S Calls or Risking Cargo

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—The Leonardo da Vinci, the steamer with the precious cargo of Italian art treasures insured for $70,000,000 and destined for the exhibition here, arrived safely at Gravesend this afternoon after experiencing more rough weather in the Channel today. Anxiety had been felt for the ship during the heavy gales which were at their height when it crossed the Bay of Biscay.

There will be a ceremony of welcome when the ship enters West India Dock tomorrow morning. Sirens shrieked and flags dipped in salute as it anchored today.

GRAVESEND, England, Dec. 11 (AP).—Captain Angelo Sturlese brought the Leonardo da Vinci safely into port here today with the satisfaction of having successfuly avoided a dilemma unique in the history of navigation, a choice between imperiling the art treasures aboard and ignoring calls for help from those in distress at sea.

Captain Sturlese had been handling the Leonardo very gently until Monday night in order to keep from jostling his precious cargo, which included three fragile pieces of sculpture by David besides paintings of Botticelli, Titian, Raphael, Giorgione, Correggio and many others.

When the weather got worse he began to ask himself what he would do if he were oblized to race through the raging seas to the rescue of a ship, and he felt he would be like a fireman hurrying to a blaze with a basket of eggs on his arm.

On Monday night a call for help came from the Italian steamer Senatore Dall, which was not far away.

Fortunately the Leonardo was accompanied by the tug Teseo, which had been sent along in case of emergency. Captain Sturlese sent it to the disabled ship. The Senatore Dall was soon out of trouble and no more calls for help came from nearby ships while the storm lasted.

Before his ordeal was ended, however, the master of the Leonardo had been on the bridge for three days and nights without sleep.

SHIPS IN DAYS LATE, FOUGHT HURRICANE

WIND AT 110 MILES AN HOUR

Radiograms From Incoming Liners Report Weather Is Moderating—Many Vessels Delayed.

The Hamburg-American liner Reliance arrived here yesterday, from the Channel ports three days late, and the American Banker of the American Merchants Lines docked sixty hours late from London. Both encountered winds of hurricane force.

According to radio reports from navigators of incoming liners, the weather was moderating last night and their vessels were making better time. The Cunarder Berengaria will dock about 3 o'clock this afternoon, the French liner France will reach her pier at 10 o'clock tonight, and the North German Lloyd liner Bremen at 9 A. M. tomorrow.

Captain Conrad Lueck, master of the Reliance, said the voyage had been a succession of gales and high seas without any lull. On Dec. 5, 6 and 7 the wind from the west and northwest blew with hurricane force at a velocity of 110 miles, then abated to a whole gale of eighty miles an hour. Most of the passengers were seasick for days, but there was no damage to the ship, which rode the heavy seas well, the captain said. On Monday, Dec. 2, Henry Johannsen, the chief steward, who is 55 years old and a heavily-built man, missed his footing when the ship gave a big lurch, and he fell down the main companionway, fracturing his skull. He was sent to the hospital yesterday, as was Wilhelm Lubberts, a steward, who was thrown out of his bunk on Dec. 7 and fractured his left thigh.

The Belgenland will arrive Sunday and the Statendam on Monday. Both vessels will be three days late. The Minnewaska, delayed twenty-four hours, will not arrive here until next Wednesday.

Ramon von Ondarza, controller of the Hamburg-American Line in Hamburg, accompanied by Mrs. von Ondarza, arrived on the Reliance. They had planned to arrive here on Monday and return on the St. Louis, which sails at midnight tonight.

P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine Company, who returned Tuesday from England on the Baltic, will give Captain Thomas Parsons and the other four survivors of the crew of the schooner Northern Light a passage to Halifax, N. S., on the Baltic, which rescued them.

Kabul Reports Dispatch of Expedition—38 Executions Listed.

PESHAWUR, India, Dec. 11 (AP).—Reports from Kabul, Afghanistan, today said that Nadir Khan, recently elected King, has sent an expedition to the Koidaman district to suppress an insurgent movement against the government.

According to one report twenty-nine persons have been brought to Kabul and beheaded. Nine others were said to have been executed at Kabul for conspiracy on Dec. 5.

Koidaman is in the northwestern part of the country.

Musicians to Broadcast Tributes to Composer Saturday.

Many musicians have been invited to take part in a radio tribute to Alexander Glazounoff, Russian composer, on Saturday night in the WEAF studio as part of the 9 P. M. broadcast by Walter Damrosch and his orchestra, according to the National Broadcasting and Concert Bureau.

The composer will be introduced by Dr. Damrosch over the radio. The musicians will then be led in the playing of Glazounoff's Symphony 5.

ILEANA GIVES OFFERING IN THANKS FOR ESCAPE

Princess Sends Candelabra to the Cathedral to Show Gratitude for Calming of Storm.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 11.—Princess Ileana has made a votive offering of a fine silver candelabra to the Bishopric of Constanza in memory of her happy escape from ship wreck when her yacht was recently stranded on the Black Sea. The candelabra is inscribed, "Glory be to the Holy Virgin who protected us in the thick fog. This candelabra is dedicated to our seamen."

An accompanying letter to Bishop Gheorghie says: "I dedicate the candelabra as a sign of gratitude to the Holy Virgin who heard my innermost prayer and calmed the stormy waves as I was in terrible danger."

The Bishop has decided the candelabra shall be placed in the centre of the cathedral alter, with the candles burning perpetually.

DE VALERA PLAN HELD RISKY

London Evening News Comments on Irish Leader's Visit Here.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Noting Eamon de Valera's arrival in New York, The Evening News editorially says that as an ultimate gesture of defiant patriotism a subscription list for a new Dublin Republican newspaper may be attractive.

"As an economic proposition," The Evening News editorial says "we can scarcely imagine anything riskier than shares in a newspaper whose avowed purpose is to make life unpleasant for a government that any moment can retaliate by suppressing it."

LIBERALS TO OPPOSE LABORITE MINES BILL

Charge It Would Ruin the Small Manufacturer—Predict Government Defeat.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—The Liberals have declared war against the government over its new mines bill, which is calculated to force up the prices of domestic coal, and in the opinion of the chief newspaper supporting David Lloyd George only abstentiam on the part of the Conservatives can avert a defeat when the bill is debated in Parliament next Tuesday.

The main features of the bill, published tonight, are first, machinery for the enforcement of marketing schemes and for regulating the production, supply and sale by the owners of coal mines; second, the reduction of the miners' working day from eight to seven and a half hours, and finally, the establishment of a national board to regulate wages, conditions of work and hours in the mines.

The Liberal view is that the bill if enacted will have the effect of subsidizing the export trade, but that it will ruin small manufacturers and penalize housewives. Coal owners estimate that the proposed marketing scheme will raise the price of domestic coal $1 a ton.

It was reported a few days ago that the government had made a concession to the Liberals for the purpose of obtaining their assistance in the passage of the bill, but this has evidently not eventuated. The machinery of the bill is such that coal owners who refuse to accept the scheme would be quickly crushed and put out of business.

COSTE'S RECORD ACCEPTED.

International Air Body Approves Hop to Manchuria at 4,910 Miles.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 11.—The world's record for a long-distance flight in a straight line made by the French fliers Captain Dieudonné Coste and Maurice Bellonte, from Sept. 27 to 29, has been officially accepted by the International Aeronautic Federation, after an examination of all the documents, at 7,905 kilometers 140 meters (about 4,910 miles).

The flight was made from Le Bourget to Moulard in Manchuria in a Breguet 19 plane with a 600 horsepower Hispano-Suiza motor.

DE RIVERA HINTS OF CHANGE IN RULE

Spanish Dictator Says Cabinet Is Considering Reforms, to Be Announced Soon.

OPTIMISTIC ON FINANCES

Peseta Near Stabilization, He Asserts—Big Irrigation Project Now Being Studied.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Dec. 11.—Premier Primo de Rivera on Tuesday his first significant announcement since a month ago, when he postponed in the newspaper El Noticiero today's National Assembly. He commented forcibly on the financial situation, which, owing to the fluctuation of the peseta, has embarrassed the government and gave hints that the political situation is being considered and that hopes for a change in the form of government may be realized.

The dictator also announced that he is considering important agricultural problems.

"Good progress in the collector's office is apparent," says the announcement, "and when a report is given by the Minister of Finance in a few days, income will be shown to exceed the amount necessary to cover affairs of the extraordinary budget, which is to say the ordinary tributary resources of Spain will pay the total of expenditures which at this moment are at their greatest, owing to road construction and exhibitions of public works.

"I have confidence that the gold bond issue to pay foreign creditors will be subscribed by Spaniards inside and outside of Spain in order that we may solve our money problems easily. The future is cloudless and settlement of the acute question of the exchange rate necessitates only calm and serenity.

"When the exchange rate is settled, Spain will be considered one of the strongest and sanest of all nations financially.

"I have been discussing the political future with the Cabinet Ministers, but we will not allay rumors by any announcement until our decisions are concrete and we have submitted them to the King. Whenever we do have to submit the work of the government over which we are presiding to public opinion, we will do so with complete confidence, since the understanding and careful procedure of Spaniards appear clear to me. While I know how passions are apt to disfigure the truth, I feel that propaganda does not change the Spaniards' true understanding of the period in which we live.

"I am now studying complete plan for the control of irrigated lands and will submit it to the Ministers as soon as possible for an early decision, as it concerns the production of sugar beets, to be introduced for the production of sugar and by-products, principally molasses as a base for the manufacture of alcohol for commercial uses. In the plan is an attempt to cover the deficit in wheat in bad years and maize in all years and an attempt to put agricultural exports on an economic basis."

The dictator's political attitude is regarded here as a reversal of his speech of a month ago when he said he thought the people were not yet capable of any other form of government. It is felt that the dictator's changes of policy indicate that he is feeling his way carefully.

In this interview the dictator said the plan of reorganization of the Union Patriotica would be announced before the first of the year and remarked, before making the political announcement, that he did not like to speak of politics at this unpropitious time, so it is considered evident that the government itself has made no decision yet. On whether the Union Patriotica becomes Fascist or an organization of possible dissenters everything depends.

French Editor Shoots Man He Slandered As Appeal Is About to Come Up in Court

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 11.—Just before an appeal from a conviction for slandering the manager of a food products company was to come up in the Palace of Justice today, the former director of the newspaper La Liâbre Parole Republicaine walked up to the man who had filed the complaint against him and fired at him three times with a revolver in the corridor outside the court room.

The editor, Pierre Lardet, who is 57 years old, quietly surrendered to policemen who rushed up to him, and his victim, Louis Jalles, 59, head of the Banknis Company, was taken, seriously wounded, to a hospital. One bullet, the only one to take effect, lodged in his lung. M. Jalles succeeded in beating aside with an umbrella the hand in which his assailant held the pistol.

M. Lardet was sentenced to six months in prison and fined 500 francs two years ago. M. Jalles criticised the court then for leniency.

Banker Says They Took Into Country $225,000,000 Which They Spent Among Populace.

By JOSEPH M. LEVY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JERUSALEM, Dec. 11.—Isaiah Braude, the first witness put forward on behalf of the Jewish case at the inquiry into the August riots, concluded his testimony today after two days on the stand.

Mr. Braude, who was chief accountant of the Palestine Zionist Executive, was left in charge of the executive offices here when all the leading members went to the World Zionist Congress last Summer.

Replying on cross examination by Mr. Preedy, the government counsel, Mr. Braude said his chief complaints against the government had been that insufficient precautions were taken, in view of the fact that trouble was expected, and that there was weakness in yielding to Arab pressure, thereby encouraging them.

The witness said that when the riots actually broke out the British police officials did the best they could with insufficient forces. The witness also complained against "juggling figures" in the daily communiqués issued by the government at the time of the disturbances. The Jerusalem and Hebron casualties were grouped together, he alleged, obviously for the purpose of concealing the great number of Jewish casualties at Hebron alone.

The second witness called was Sigfried Hoofien, general manager of the Anglo-Palestine Banks in Palestine. He was asked by the Zionist executives to assist Mr. Braude in their absence. In his capacity as a banker Mr. Hoofien gave statistics to show that Jewish immigration into Palestine was a benefit to the country rather than an injury, as the Arabs charge. He stated that the Jews had brought into the country $225,000,000 since the war and that a considerable portion of this money passed into the hands of Arabs through the purchase of lands, payment for goods, services rendered here and payment for rent. The Jews also contributed largely to the government revenue, he said. The Jews, with a population of 150,000, contribute 45 per cent of the total revenue, he said, while the remaining population, including 700,000 Arabs, contribute 55 per cent.

The criminal courts are still overcrowded with hundreds of cases of murder, looting and possessing of firearms in the riots. The most important murder case now being tried in Jerusalem is that of twelve Arabs, their ages ranging from 13 to 70, charged with murders in the house of one Mac Leff in the suburbs of Motzah, where five members of the family and two guests were slain, leaving only one son surviving.

The Court of Appeals is particularly busy hearing scores of appeals of Arab rioters. Thus far all death sentences have been confirmed, but all the losers have applied for permission to appeal to the Privy Council in London.

CURBS DIAMOND CUTTING.

Belgian Syndicate to Operate Two Weeks Monthly—32,500 Affected.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 11 (AP).—The 32,500 workers in the diamond industry in Antwerp and neighboring communities have accepted a recent decision of the diamond cutters' syndicate to cease work completely for two weeks of every month until the diamond markets recover completely.

All diamond plants have come to a standstill since yesterday, which means a loss of $450,000 in wages monthly to the employes, of whom only 15,000 receive regular relief payment from their unions. An emergency fund was instituted, however, to pay special allowances to the most needy among the non-union workers.

The diamond cutting industry in Belgium has been heavily hit by a falling off in the purchase of diamonds, particularly since the Wall Street reverses.

PILSUDSKI AGAIN ILL; NEW CABINET DELAYED

Nobody Dares to Select Ministry to Succeed Switalski's Without Approval of Dictator.

BRESLAU, Germany, Dec. 11 (AP).—Reliable information received here today indicated Marshal Josef Pilsudski, Poland's Minister of War and Dictator, is again seriously ill, and that his illness is delaying formation of a new Cabinet to replace that of M. Switalski, resigned. The unusual slowness with which President Mościcki has conferred with leaders of the various parties is interpreted by certain observers as a deliberate effort to delay matters until the Minister of War recovers, for nobody dares to form a government without the Dictator's approval, not even the parties which overthrew the Switalski Cabinet.

President Mościcki saw only the leaders of the largest parliamentary faction yesterday and will see several more today and additional ones on following days, but he has given the impression of anything but haste. News of Marshal Pilsudski's illness has been kept carefully from the public.

As he suffered a stroke twice before and his health has been poor lately, there was apprehension in informed circles though his friends say he feels worse periodically and always rallies.

6 NATIONS TO ADOPT PACT ON TRADE BARS

United States Is Among Those Expected to Join in Putting Convention Into Effect.

PLAN SAVES CONFERENCE

Other Countries Are Believed Likely to Settle Differences During the Next Year.

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 11.—The international conference for the abolition of import and export restrictions and prohibitions, which for the last four days has been in danger of collapsing, made a further and apparently successful effort at the plenary session today to save the convention, representing three years of most painstaking work, from total loss.

Unless the instrument is made effective Jan. 1, in the opinion of the president of the conference, it will be useless. The United States, being among the few countries which have ratified it unconditionally, is anxious that the benefits of the pact may be enjoyed as soon as possible by those countries which are willing to go ahead.

Having failed to effect a change in the positions of Poland and Czechoslovakia, upon whose ratification at least ten important signatories depend, the president of the conference, M. Colijn of Holland, disclosed today that six or eight unconditional signatories, including Great Britain, Japan and the United States, would probably agree at the final plenary session tomorrow to make the pact effective among themselves. Other States forming this group are Northern Ireland, Holland, Portugal and Norway.

It is hoped that by this means the differences which are now holding up ten conditional signatories and an almost equal number of countries which have not even signed will be composed in the coming year, thus giving the convention the international scope it must have if it is to fulfill the purposes for which it was written.

Poland appears to be the most difficult State in the situation, and without her ratification it is doubtful whether such nations as Germany, Italy, France, Belgium, Hungary, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Luxembourg and Denmark will accept the agreement. If the convention is finally made operative among the States already mentioned, then every effort will be made to meet the Polish objections. So far as the Czechs are concerned it is likely that the Parliament of that country will ratify the draft as soon as the Czechoslovakian political crisis is ended.

Business interests on this side feel that it would be most unfortunate to permit the undoubted benefits of the convention to go by the board because of differences which, while important to the several countries involved, cannot be regarded as other than local in character. The convention itself has been described as a big step toward freer trade, if not free trade.

Experts under auspices of the League of Nations worked for nearly three years before the final convention was accepted. Its operation will serve to do away with more than 200 annoying restrictions and prohibitions which now impede the free circulation of commerce among the nations of the world. These impediments have nothing to do with tariffs, but are largely administrative, and only delay imports and exports without protecting industries.

VICTORIA CABINET FALLS.

Nationalists Beaten on Vote of No Confidence—Labor Called.

MELBOURNE, Australia, Dec. 11 (AP).—Sir William McPherson, Nationalist Premier of Victoria, today handed in the resignation of his government to the Governor, Lord Somers, who requested Edmond Hogan, the Labor leader and ex-Premier, to form a new Ministry.

The government was defeated on a motion of confidence introduced by the Labor party in the Assembly, 36 to 28. The House adjourned after the vote.

Today's session was the first meeting of the new State Assembly since the elections early this month, in which the Nationalist party failed to obtain a majority.

15 ARRESTED IN HAITI FOR CURFEW VIOLATION

Twenty-six Others Ordered to Quit Port-au-Prince—Quiet Continues in Country.

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti, Dec. 11 (AP).—Conditions throughout Haiti were unchanged today, with no report of conflicts anywhere in the interior.

Colonel Frank Evans, commanding the marine gendarmes here, said he expected the curfew law to continue in effect until early next week. Fifteen persons were picked up last night for failing to return to their homes before 9 P. M. Of thirty prisoners earlier taken by the provost guard, twenty-six have been released with orders to leave the capital.

President Louis Borno, commenting on the situation arising from the riots of last week, said:

"We have little to fear for the future. With a continued close watch maintained by the Garde National in the front line and with support of the United States Marines there is little chance of progress by the strikers."

President Borno this morning received a detailed report of the clash last week at Aux Cayes between marines and natives from Judge Cellcour Leon of that city, who was a witness. The judge said six Haitians were killed outright by machine-gun fire of the marines and that four died later in the hospital from wounds. He gave the total number of wounded as thirty and said that many houses in Gabines Street, where the clash occurred, had been riddled by bullets.

Four professors of the Ecole Centrale, who were arrested last Wednesday as ringleaders in the strike agitation, were released today. Their releases are taken as an indication of the passing of trouble from the strike situation.

EUROPEANS STRIVE FOR HAGUE ACCORD

Reparations Negotiations Have Aided It, Especially Between England and France.

HUNGARIAN STAND PROBLEM

Question of Claims Against Nation Baffles Efforts at Solution and Threatens Agreement.

By P. J. PHILIP.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 11.—An extremely active exchange of notes and visits is being carried on between all the foreign ministries in Europe in an effort to reach some measure of agreement before the second Hague conference, which is scheduled for Jan. 3, and will undertake the final adoption of the Young reparation payment plan.

Considerable progress has been made during the past two weeks, especially between France and England, but there remains the outstanding difficulty of what is to be done about the situation between Hungary and those who have claims against her.

There are some in each country who contend that the Young plan can be adopted at The Hague and put into operation even though there has been no definite settlement of the Central European tangle. Others, and they include most of the experts, who in this matter do not see eye to eye with the statesmen who must take the final responsibility, declare that unless there is a settlement between Hungary and her neighbors the whole basis of distribution which was first established by the Young committee and later altered at The Hague to accommodate the demand of Philip Snowden, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, cannot be carried through.

During the past few days a proposal has been seriously canvassed that the Little Entente should try to exercise economic pressure equivalent to a blockade against Hungary in an effort to secure a settlement, but such severe measures have not found general support and seem to have been abandoned.

For the moment efforts to find a solution have reached an impasse, and the situation between Hungary and her neighbors, Rumania and Chechoslovakia, is not without danger both to the Young plan and to a general settlement in Europe. Hungarian resistance, it is stated here, has been encouraged by the attitude which Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, president of the German Reichsbank, has taken toward his government.

COUNT IS SENTENCED TO 9 MONTHS IN JAIL

Germans Find Stolberg-Wernigerode Guilty of Killing His Father Through Negligence.

HIRSCHBERG, Silesia, Dec. 11 (AP).—Count Christian Stolberg-Wernigerode was sentenced to nine months' imprisonment today on a charge of killing his father last March through negligence.

One of the most dramatic moments in the trial came when the accused, in his last statement, said he was responsible for his father's death.

"I will have to carry this responsibility into the grave," the Count declared.

The prominence of the defendant and the strange circumstances surrounding his father's death, as well as the complex family relations, made the trial one of the most sensational in Germany in recent years.

Count Eberhard, father of the accused, was found on March 18 with a bullet in his head. Apparently he had been shot from behind with a rifle taken from a near-by gun rack. Count Christian, eldest son of the family, was arrested a few days later. The police said he admitted shooting his father but claimed the rifle went off accidentally while he was cleaning it on his father's instructions.

The family is prominent socially and financially in Silesia and the elder Count's death caused great excitement in the region.

35 ON TRIAL AGAIN FOR SPANISH REVOLT

Those Implicated in Ciudad Real Rebellion Face Second Court-Martial in Madrid.

MADRID, Dec. 11 (AP).—Thirty-five alleged participants in the ill-fated and short-lived Ciudad Real rebellion of last January today began their second fight to obtain freedom before a supreme court-martial.

Among the thirty-five were Colonel Joachim Fax Faraldo, Captain Alejandro Samarro and Captain Joachim Mareide, who received death penalties at a former court-martial whose ultimate findings were invalidated. Only twenty years' imprisonment is asked against them in the new trial.

The judges and officers defending and prosecuting arrived in full military uniforms and took seats on a raised dais facing the crowded public section and jammed press galleries.

The "relator" began reading the records of the previous court-martial late this afternoon. Admission was by ticket, for which there was a great demand. Crowds outside waited with eager curiosity, but were barred by guards.

Discusses "Return to Normalcy," Indicating Easing of Censorship.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Dec. 11.—A return to "normalcy" is frankly discussed in the Madrid press today, indicating a loosening of the censorship by the government.

It is generally agreed that normal political conditions in Spain will not prevail until municipal and provincial elections are held, and it is proposed that the former be held in February and the latter in April under the proportional system of representation. Thereafter it is suggested that the national elections be held in June.

The National Assembly will meet in January and should have finished its sessions long before June.

NATIONAL THEATRE NEARS FOR BRITAIN

LAUREATE SUPPORTS PLAN

Bridges Looks to Theatre to Provide Sound Tradition and Freedom From Popular Fashion.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—The establishment of a national theatre in London is likely finally to become a reality after a quarter of a century, thanks to the movement in which Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, George Bernard Shaw, John Galsworthy, Sir Arthur Pinero, St. John Ervine and others have taken part.

The first steps to secure government cooperation were taken at a recent meeting in the committee room of the House of Commons attended by a number of members of Parliament and people eminent in the theatre.

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, who presided, recalled the history of the movement since its inception, telling how the plans were frustrated by the war and the site secured in 1914 was sold. After the war, he said, the plans were in abeyance for some time, but lately active efforts had been made to secure a suitable site from the State or a public-spirited donor.

Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson added that they had also been encouraged by the recent statement of Premier MacDonald that he was not unwilling to consider favorably an agreed scheme if put forward by the various interests concerned.

There was also encouragement in the fact that a sum of nearly $500,000 was in hand toward the project.

A resolution, proposed by Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson and seconded by Lord Lytton, was passed calling for the appointment of a small representative committee to prepare the details of an agreed scheme to lay before the government.

Lord Lytton declared it had long been a reproach that England did not possess a theatre adequate to its needs.

"The drama can only be studied and enjoyed in a theatre which can present it in full and which can give not only contemporary drama, but, for purposes of comparison, works of the dramatic art of the past which time has proved worthy to survive," he said. "None of the existing theatres today can do all that—although some theatres can do some of that and do it well."

A further resolution, moved by Sir Frank Meyer, trustee of the Shakespeare Memorial Fund, and seconded by Sir Martin Conway, was passed proposing the appointment of a panel to select a committee consisting of two representatives each of the Shakespeare Memorial Fund, the National Theatre Committee, the British Drama League and the recently formed Parliamentary Committee.

"I would neglect my duty as poet laureate if I did not very urgently support the scheme for a national theatre since I am convinced our national theatre would be enormously benefited by the sound artistic tradition and independence of popular fashion it may be expected to provide."

Sir Israel Gollancz, honorary secretary of the committee, who has seen the national theatre movement through its many vicissitudes, has recalled that Joseph Choate, then American Ambassador to the Court of St. James, was among the members of the provisional committee when the movement began. Sir Israel was asked what had been the late Sir Henry Irving's attitude toward the project.

"Irving," he replied, "was an enthusiast for the idea, but he saw no immediate prospect of its being carried out on an adequate scale."

EX-MAHARAJAH VISITS INDIA.

Former Ruler of Indore and American Wife Reach Karachi.

BOMBAY, India, Dec. 11 (AP).—The former Maharajah of Indore and his American wife, who was Nancy Miller of Seattle, arrived at Karachi today. Their baby girl was with them.

It is reported here that the ex-Maharajah and his American Maharanee intend to settle down permanently in India.

Sir Tukoji Rao, former Maharajah of Indore, and Nancy Ann Miller, the Seattle girl whom he married last year, left Paris for a six-months visit in India about the middle of November. The former Indian prince maintains a chateau at St. Germain. He and his wife and their suite carried seventy-three trunks on their trip to India.

As the British authorities do not approve of the visits of native princes with white wives to India, they are expected to discourage the former Maharajah from making a long stay.

The Maharanee is reported to be unhappy at St. Germain because she has found that Americans in Paris have been cold toward her. She has adopted the Hindu faith and taken the native name of Devi Sharmista.

The Maharajah was forced to abdicate in 1926 after the wounding of the nautch girl Munmtax Begum and the murder of her protector, Kadin Bawia, wealthy Mohammedan merchant of Calcutta, by his officers. His escapades and his tyrannical administration of his kingdom had long troubled the British authorities.

Students Wreck Temple of Rumanian Masons; Firemen and Soldiers Halt Raid on Paper

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 11.—Rumanian students celebrated yesterday and today the anniversary of last year's first student congress by holding demonstrations which became riotous in several parts of the country and led to conflicts with the police. The most serious was an attack on the Bucharest headquarters of the Rumanian Grand Lodge of Oriental Masons.

Two students, disguised as police officers, made their way to the council hall where a meeting was in progress, produced revolvers and cried, "Hands up!" They were followed by a crowd of companions who wrecked the temple and destroyed the archives of the lodg. Summoned by a mason who escaped through a window, the police arrested a number of students who told the authorities the attack was an act of revenge against unpatriotic activities of the masons.

The students said that from General Ludendorff's pamphlets against masonry they had been apprised not only of the nature of its activities but the address of its Rumanian headquarters.

In Cluj (Klausenburg), after Professor Catuneanu had delivered an anti-semitic speech, several thousand students stormed the offices of the newspaper Ellenszk, but were driven back by firemen, who turned a fire hose on the rioters. When the students retaliated with stones, soldiers who had been summoned fixed bayonets and charged. A few students were wounded and fifteen were arrested. Later in the evening, shops of Jewish business men were attacked and the windows were shattered.

The students apparently were inspired by assertions of M. Costachescu, Minister of Education, who replying to complaints about the government subvention to the recent student congress at Craiova, defended the students, and pointed out that the congress passed without affording the Jews any new pretext for spreading derogatory reports in foreign countries.

AUSTRIAN WHO PLOTTED MASS MURDER ACCUSED

Hofrichter, Held for Perjury, in 1910 Attempted to Poison 15 Army Officers.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Dec. 11.—Adolf Richter, who appeared in court here today on a charge of perjury, was identified as Adolf Hofrichter, former Austrian lieutenant, who in 1910 was sentenced to twenty years in prison for an attempted mass murder by poisoning. The mass murder plan failed, but one man died.

The motive of the crime, which became the object of world interest at the time, was a desire to remove from his path toward promotion to the General Army Staff some fifteen other officers then senior to him. He sent through the mail to these officers pills recommended as a means of restoring vigor. One officer took the pills and died immediately, thus saving the lives of the others. The pills contained prussic acid.

Hoffichter was released from the penitentiary when revolution broke out. He dropped the first syllable of his surname and became a commercial traveller.

Arbitration Association Award.

An item in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Dec. 7 concerning the award of three weeks' salary to Elsa Shelley, an actress, in a controversy with a producer, stated that the award was made by the American Arbitration Society. The organization that made the award was the American Arbitration Association.

DELEGATES STUDY NAVAL PARLEY DATA

Stimson Prepares Adams, Reed, Robinson and Morrow for Their Tasks in London.

AIDES JOIN IN CONFERENCE

Belin, Named Secretary—Page and Marriner Will Go as Advisors.

PROBLEMS ARE REVIEWED

Chief Difference With Britain Now Concerns American Strength in 10,000-Ton Cruisers.

By RICHARD V. OULAHAN.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The first steps toward developing what was described as "team work" in the American delegation to the international naval disarmament conference, which will assemble in London in January, were taken today at two meetings at the State Department in which five of the seven delegates participated.

Much of what took place was designed to be educational for the benefit of those delegates who had not had an opportunity to learn the attitude of the United States Government concerning the problems involved and the proposals likely to be put forward by Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan.

The delegates attending the two meetings were Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of State, who is to be chairman of the delegation; Charles Francis Adams, Secretary of the Navy; Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas and Dwight W. Morrow, Ambassador to Mexico. Ambassador Morrow was accompanied by George Rublee, New York lawyer, who will go to the London conference as Mr. Morrow's personal adviser. Mr. Morrow arrived in Washington this morning.

At the afternoon session the delegates were joined by Admiral William V. Pratt, Commander in Chief of the United States Fleet, and Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, retired, who are to head the group of technical naval advisers of the delegation. Each of the two conferences lasted about two hours.

Aides Present at Meetings.

Others who attended the meetings were Joseph P. Cotton, Under-Secretary of State; William R. Castle Jr., Assistant Secretary of State, whose nomination to be Ambassador to Japan for the duration of the London conference was sent to the Senate yesterday; J. Theodore Marriner, Chief of the Western European Division of the State Department; F. Lammot Belin, First Secretary of the American Embassy in London, and Arthur W. Page of New York.

After the second meeting Secretary Stimson made known that Mr. Belin would be secretary of the delegation and that Mr. Page would be personal adviser to the chairman. Mr. Marriner also will be attached to the delegation.

At the morning session, Secretary Stimson did most of the talking, which was explanatory of the position of the United States with reference to armament reduction and limitation. In connection with his oral statements, the delegates and the others present had read to them official dispatches and other papers. These showed the character of the informal exchanges that had been taking place between the naval powers ever since the United States initiated diplomatic conversations with Great Britain with a view to clearing away the differences which had wrecked the Geneva naval conference of 1927 and bringing about an agreement between these two governments to insure harmony of views as to their own respective positions in the formal conference to be held in London.

Since the formal conference was called by the British Government, it was made known today, the United States has been kept informed of the scope and character of conversations that have been in progress between Britain and the other naval powers and the separate conversations between France and Italy as to their own peculiar needs. Some of this information was new to Senators Reed and Robinson and Ambassador Morrow.

After the second session ended this evening Secretary Stimson explained to newspaper men that there had been no cut-and-dried program prepared for American participation in the London conference and no attempt had been made today to force such a program on any of the delegates. The discussion, he said, was mainly educational. What was desired, he explained, was to see what were the "stepping-off points" and the problems of the American delegation.

Anglo-American Differences.

As far as the United States and Britain are concerned, their differences have narrowed down chiefly to the matter of whether this government shall have twenty-one or eighteen 10,000-ton cruisers as against Britain's fifteen. The British Government has agreed in advance to keep its 10,000-ton cruiser group down to fifteen and is willing to concede eighteen of this largest cruiser type to the United States. The contention of the United States that it should have twenty-one of these cruisers is to be adjusted in the conference itself.

The question of battleships presents no formidable problems in the general agreement of view between the five powers that these large and expensive vessels should be curtailed in number, while there is considerable sympathy with the French opinion that they could be done away with altogether. But the battleship quesion has a slant of importance in its bearing on the type and character of vessels that should be substituted for battleship tonnage, with France insistent on a heavy quota of submarines for herself.

The prevailing sentiment in the American delegation appears to be in favor of abolishing the submarine but in the knowledge that this will not meet with the views of France, Italy and Japan the problem is to arrange some substitute satisfactory to those countries which will place a limitation on the submarine strength of all the nations participating in the conference.

Naval Strengths Compared.

Tables of naval strength of the five chief powers, corrected to Dec. 11, were issued by the Navy Department today. They show few changes from prior lists.

In capital ships the United States has 14 battleships built, with a tonnage of 625,650, as against Britain's 16 battleships and 4 battle cruisers, with a tonnage of 555,350. Japan has 6 battleships and 4 battle cruisers, with a tonnage of 301,320; France has 9 battleships, with a tonnage of 194,556, and Italy has 4 battleships, with a tonnage of 89,976. In accordance with the terms of the Washington naval treaty, none of the powers is engaged in building battleships.

In the other type of capital ships—aircraft carriers—the United States has 3 built and 1 appropriated for, with a tonnage of 90,086; Britain has 5 built and 1 appropriated for, with a tonnage of 115,350; Japan has 3 built and 1 authorized, with a tonnage of 68,870; France has 1 built, with a tonnage of 21,653, and Italy has none.

In cruisers of the eight-inch gun type the United States has 23 built, building and authorized, with a tonnage of 230,000; Britain, 15, with a tonnage of 176,800; Japan, 12, with a tonnage of 108,400; France, 6, with a tonnage of 60,000, and Italy, 6, with a tonnage of 60,000, and in addition 2 of the ten-inch gun type, with a tonnage of 18,585. None of the powers except Italy has cruisers of the ten-inch gun type built or contemplated.

The total cruisers of the powers in numbers and tonnage are: United States, 38 of 300,500 tons; Britain, 62 of 401,791 tons; Japan, 33 of 203,817 tons; France, 16 of 130,707 tons and Italy, 21 of 131,041 tons.

In destroyers built, and with none building or appropriated for, the United States has 284 of a total tonnage of 280,304. Of the other nations, in destroyers built, building and appropriated for, Britain has 182 of 198,400 tons; Japan, 115 of 129,375 tons; France, 82 of 115,166 tons and Italy 89 of 83,176 tons.

Of submarines built, building and appropriated for, the United States has 112 of 87,232 tons; Britain, 69 of 72,521 tons; Japan, 71 of 78,497 tons; France, 99 of 90,098 tons and Italy, 60 of 36,925 tons.

Japanese Arrive on Monday.

When the Japanese delegates to the London conference arrive in Washington on Monday for a stay of several days, they will confer with the five members of the American delegation now here. The United States Government will seek to bring about a modification of the Japanese attitude with regard to submarines and cruisers.

France and Italy are looked upon as holding the key to the situation at London with their reported wide differences of opinion as to what each of them should have in the way of naval power, and especially as to the naval forces each would be allowed to maintain in the Mediterranean. Out of this situation has arisen an interesting suggestion that France, Italy and Britain should conclude a pact which would guarantee their security in that body of water.

Meetings of the five American delegates and their advisers will be held for the remaining days of this week. It is believed to be likely that President Hoover will be present at one or some of the meetings of the delegates before their departure for London.

ASSERT JAPAN WILL AID LIMITATION OF NAVIES

Reijiro Wakatsuki and Admiral Takarabe, Delegates to London, Arrive at Seattle.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Dec. 11.—When the five-power naval conference opens in London Jan. 21, it will find Japan ready to do her utmost to bring about a reduction in naval armaments consistent with the security of the nations represented, Reijiro Wakatsuki and Admiral Takeculi Takarabe, official Japanese delegates to the naval conference, stated when they arrived here this afternoon en route to London. They were greeted by army and navy representatives, civic dignitaries and an army band.

From here the party, which includes thirty-five attachés and newspaper men, will start for Washington tomorrow night, sailing from New York Dec. 20 on the Olympic.

Mr. Wakatsuki declared Japan opposed submarine limitations favored by the United States and England.

On the question of changing the limitation ratio from the 5-5-3 basis fixed by the Washington arms limitation conference of 1922 to a 10-10-7 basis, the former Premier declined to be quoted further than to say that the question must depend on proposals made at the conference.

He also expressed pleasure over the news that the United States had decided to adhere to the World Court, hailing it as a further indication that the world is nearing an era of universal understanding and cooperation.

"Japan has many ideas and many hopes for this five-power conference," Mr. Wakatsuki continued. "The fundamental thing in our minds is reduction—a sweeping reduction if it proves practicable and the conference shows it to be advisable. It must be accomplished, however, without involving any menace as between the conferring parties."

JAPAN IS PLEASED BY NAMING OF envoy

Sees Hoover Aiming to Keep in Close Contact With Country and Foster Friendship.

By HUGH BYAS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

TOKIO, Dec. 11.—The appointment of William R. Castle Jr. as United States Ambassador to Japan has made a good first impression here, not because the Japanese public knows Mr. Castle, but because the step reveals the American President's consideration for Japan's point of view and his desire to maintain close consultation with Japan through an envoy intimately acquainted with his policy.

Simply as a courtesy and tribute to Japan's important role in the forthcoming London naval conference, the action is appreciated, while that large section of opinion, official as well as unofficial, which is anxious to demonstrate Japan's pacifism and desire to cooperate with the United States is gratified at the opportunities for the full exchange of views which the appointment makes possible.

The speed with which the routine, connected with the appointment, including obtaining of the approval of the Emperor and the Cabinet, was carried out indicates Foreign Minister Shidehara's appreciation of the President's decision to appoint an expert to this key position during a critical period. Naval officials who recently were alarmed lest their demand for a 70 per cent ratio in heavy cruisers might be regarded as a trading point are relieved to find that Washington takes the request seriously.

The fact that Mr. Castle belongs to a lower official group than that from which Ambassadors usually are selected does not alter, in Japanese opinion, the significance of the President's action in detailing a special envoy. The press had not had an inkling of the appointment before today and the evening papers give the news great prominence.

The appointment incidentally extinguishes the possibility that Katsuji Debuchi, Ambassador to Washington, would be sent to London, because if the United States is represented at Tokio by an Ambassador, Japan will want equal representation at Washington. Baron Shidehara's choice of extra delegates to London now appears to be limited to M. Nagai, Minister to Belgium, and M Nagaoka, Ambassador to Berlin.

VICTORIA, B. C., Dec. 11 (AP).—Japan's delegates to the London conference on naval disarmament have the cordial support of both political parties of that country and tremendous interest has been shown in the meeting, Dr. P. T. Shotwell, Professor of History at Columbia University, said here today on his return from the recent Kyoto meeting of the Institute of Pacific Relations. Dr. Shotwell, who sailed on the same ship with the Japanese party, told of large crowds which came to see the delegates off.

..ET WILL RISK REICHSTAG DEFEAT

Decides to Ask Today for an Expression of Confidence on Financial Program.

VOTE TO COME TOMORROW

All Five Coalition Parties, at Odds on Tax Plan, Must Support Government to Maintain It.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 11.—The Mueller-Curtius-Hilferding coalition Cabinet will demand a showdown in the Reichstag tomorrow by asking the latter's approval of the government's financial and other policies in the shape of an unequivocal expression of confidence.

The decision to carry the issue into the plenary session of Parliament instead of awaiting the outcome of the badly tangled interparty deliberations, which have been going on for the past twenty-four hours, was reached at an executive session of the Cabinet this afternoon and represents its unanimous sentiment. Briefly, it signifies the government's intention of sticking to its taxation and financial program by courting victory or defeat on the floor of the Reichstag, where it will require the united support of the five coalition parties comprising it to maintain it in office.

As no concurrence was reached among the government parties today on some of the cardinal features of the reform program, the Cabinet's firm stand indicates that it is fully prepared for all eventualities and willing to take the consequences.

Some of the most stubborn opposition to the government's program emanates in the Social Democratic party, which not only is the strongest single unit in the coalition but also holds four important portfolios, among them that of the Finance Minister, Dr. Hilferding, whose reform plans constitute the chief point of opposition by the Socialists and other groups.

The Socialists favor giving the government a vote of confidence but refuse to tie themselves up to its program. They favor an increase in the tobacco tax and a higher premium for unemployment insurance, which must be carried by the employers. To the latter demand the German People's party, which largely represents industry, is opposed. Other parties in the coalition group also are not in sympathy with all of the government's measures and the general political picture once more suggests the fragile texture of which the Cabinet's support in the Reichstag is composed.

Realizing this and undoubtedly also conscious of President von Hindenburg's well-known habitual impatience with the system of log-rolling and interparty bartering prevailing in the Reichstag, the Cabinet has acted, and its unexpectedly combative mood must be set down as an exhibition of resolute action which is in distinctive contrast to the former procedure in similar situations.

The move found most of the coalition party leaders unprepared, and the various groups will hold their caucuses before the plenary session of the Reichstag tomorrow, at which Chancellor Mueller will read the government's statement. Parliament will then adjourn until Friday, when the Cabinet's fate will be decided.

The Government's Program.

Dr. Hilferding's measures, for which the Cabinet demands the Reichstag's approval in their entirety, comprise reductions in a number of existing taxes, including those on incomes, property, commercial occupations, corporations, securities and Boerse transactions. The program provides for a progressive reduction in the levies on industry, which are to be abolished entirely in 1935. The tax on sugar is to be revoked, while that on tobacco products will be heavily increased, beginning next year. The premiums on unemployment insurance are increased by one-half of 1 per cent, while the beer tax, against which Bavaria is rebelling, will be raised 50 per cent, beginning April 1, 1930.

In the financial relations between the Reich and its federated States, Dr. Hilferding proposes sweeping reforms, especially with respect to the manner in which the States are to be paid out of the Reich's exchequer and the method of allocating federal revenues. An enhanced financial control of communities with respect to the flotation of loans is also provided for.

In their general outlines the government's reform plans meet the demands made by German industry and finance and some of the more prominent have also been suggested repeatedly by the Acting General for Reparations, Seymour Parker Gilbert. Although its program had been in a state of preparation for some time, the government's hand was in no small measure forced by the recent memorandum of the German Federation of Industries and the more emphatic pronouncement of Dr. Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, who demanded reforms as an essential condition to the Reich's fulfillment of the Young plan.

Report Loan Talks Halted.

It was also reported today that the government had been negotiating with an American banking syndicate for an ample loan to tide it over its present emergencies, but that the negotiations had been temporarily halted as the American lenders desired to await the announcement of the government's financial program.

Whether the political leaders in the Reichstag will allow themselves to be persuaded of the generally admitted necessity for the comprehensive reorganization of the Reich's finances and economy as provided for in Dr. Hilferding's program will be indicated in the course of the next forty-eight hours, but today Chancellor Mueller's Cabinet is on record as determined either to force the recalcitrant political factions to do its bidding or make way for some other government. In view of the state of the Reich's foreign relations, political opinion in the Reichstag corridors is assuming that no single party in the coalition is courting the idea of a crisis at this time.

REICH BEGINS TRIAL IN ARMS SMUGGLING

TWO OFFICERS IMPLICATED

Reichswehr and Navy May Have Been Involved in Illegal Transaction With Scrapping Plant.

KIEL, Germany, Dec. 11 (AP).—Whether the German Reichswehr and Navy permitted or had knowledge of an attempted shipment of 8,000,000 rounds of rifle ammunition worth over $100,000 from Germany to the army of the late Manchurian war lord, General Chang Tso-lin, in January, 1928, is likely to be determined at a sensational trial which opened here yesterday.

The trial is the result of a sweeping investigation which lasted nearly two years. The case has attracted international attention. Representatives of the press and public were excluded from the court "to safeguard interests of state," on motion of the prosecutor.

The accused, who are alleged to have engineered the giant international smuggling operation which was halted just as the ammunition was about to be loaded on a Norwegian steamer here, are a former German army officer, a naval officer and five Berlin merchants.

The entire shipment was seized by customs officers after they had examined cases which had been declared as containing articles of brass. The shipment came here in sixteen freight cars. Investigation showed that the entire cargo had been purchased by an Italian agent through a group of German middlemen. It was also learned that the cargo was to be shipped to Oslo, Norway, and thence to China.

The ammunition came from a scrapping plant maintained by one of the accused merchants at Suepfitz, near Torgau. The plant received, among other things, large consignments of German war material for scrapping. These consignments also contained quantities of wartime ammunition. A contract with the Reichswehr Ministry is said to have contained the provision that this ammunition was not to be sold unscrapped under any condition.

Through the former army officer, who was formerly a technical expert of the Reich Finance Ministry and who had charge of the destruction of ammunition other than that originating from the Reichswehr, the owner of the scrapping plant is said to have made the acquaintance of the other defendants. They were members of a Berlin firm which dealt in war material.

What has given rise to the suspicion that the Reichswehr Ministry was involved in the transaction, or at least had knowledge thereof, is the fact that there is a technical expert entrusted by the Reich Finance Ministry with the destruction of ammunition. The navy's alleged connection is hinted by the fact that one of the accused was a member of the Naval Intelligence Section at the time of the transaction.

The Naval Intelligence Section emphatically denies that the naval arsenal at Swinemuende had anything to do with the ammunition. The naval officer is said to have acted in the belief that the Reich Finance Ministry wished the transaction carried out, and that therefore the Reichswehr Ministry dared not interfere.

INDUSTRIAL EXHIBITION OPENED IN SANTIAGO

Oldest South American Locomotive Delights Crowds—Machinery From United States Shown.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 12.—In the presence of Cabinet members and prominent delegates to the Railroad Congress, the exhibition of Pan-American industries was officially inaugurated this evening. Finely decorated, it is being held in the grounds of the Agricultural School and is attracting thousands of visitors from various points in the country and also from abroad.

The outstanding exhibit is undoubtedly that of South America's oldest locomotive which ran seventy-nine years ago between the Chilean towns of Caldera and Copiapo on the first railroad built in South America. The old locomotive, which has been repaired for the occasion, was the delight of the visitors when it was started on a tour of the exhibition grounds, passing the modern railroad equipment of all kinds which fills the stands.

The United States is well represented with a big collection of machinery for railroads, highways and engineering work. The elaborate stand demonstrating the progress made by the United States in road-building over twenty years aroused the admiration of the public.

The Railroad Congress, which is composed of delegates from all the American republics, has brought many engineers of foreign railroad systems here, anxious to exchange views. The congress, which is meeting simultaneously with the exhibition of industries, is also concerned with the development of tourist and travel bureaus, which are considered useful for the improvement of international relations.

TROTSKY SEEKS AID OF EX-FOE IN TRIAL

Banished Red Wants Kerensky to Testify in Berlin on Treason Accusation.

LUDENDORFF ALSO SOUGHT

But Deposed Communist Army Head Has Not Arranged to Appear in Suit of Publisher.

BERLIN, Dec. 11 (AP).—Leon Trotsky, the banished Communist leader who is now living in exile in Turkey, has become the centre of a trial here in which a Dresden publisher is demanding that the former Red army leader surrender manuscripts of his memoirs, in accordance with a contract.

Trotsky has refused to carry out the contract because he learned that the publisher had previously brought out a work by Alexander Kerensky, one-time Russian Premier, in which Lenin and Trotsky were virtually accused of treason.

The aid of the German courts has been invoked to clear up the issue. Karl Reissner, the publisher, insists that Trotsky carry out his agreement for the publication of two volumes of memoirs, one to be entitled "Lenin and His Epigones," the other, "The Political Situation of the World."

The case has come before the copyright chamber of the Central Berlin Court of Justice. The first question to be determined is whether the Berlin court is competent, inasmuch as the complainant is domiciled in Dresden and is a foreigner. On the technical ground, however, that Trotsky owns some property in Berlin, the case may eventually be heard here and the court may decide the point within the next few days.

As soon as Herr Reissner learned of Trotsky's taking up residence in Turkey, he sent a representative to him to sign him up for the publication rights of the memoirs which Trotsky was writing. The representative told Trotsky a great deal about the Reissner publishing house, but apparently failed to mention that this house had also brought out the memoirs of Kerensky, in which the former Russian Premier accuses Lenin, Trotsky and their collaborators of having set in action the Bolshevik revolution, not out of unselfish motives, but in collaboration with the German great army headquarters.

As soon as Trotsky heard about this book he canceled the contract. Herr Reissner offered to withdraw the Kerensky book from sale, but Trotsky considered the very publication of these personal attacks sufficient reason for him to decline to have the same firm publish his memoirs. The result was the action brought by Herr Reissner against Trotsky.

Trotsky, according to newspaper reports, intends to have his lawyers prove through witnesses that Kerensky's charges are not founded on fact. He is said to contemplate especially the summoning of Kerensky himself and of General Erich Ludendorff. As Kerensky lives in Paris, however, he is not amenable to German law and is therefore unlikely to appear.

RADIN, BACK, PRAISES NEW YUGOSLAV REGIME

Dissolution of Parliament Has Ended Official Corruption, Balkan Writer Asserts.

Since King Alexander dissolved the Skuptchina, or Parliament, last January, Yugoslavia has been a virtual dictatorship, according to George Radin, New York attorney and co-author of "The Balkan Pivot," who has just returned from a visit there.

The days of corruption within officialdom and eternal political squabbles are gone, and with the passing of the old régime a new and better era has come, said Mr. Radin yesterday.

"Endless discussions of politics in the press and the cafés," he said, "are of the past. Newspapers and magazines now print articles on economics, finance, education, religion, art and public health.

"Under the old régime work had to wait, even in the fields, while peasants were splitting hairs over party differences. The representatives of the people went so far as to use loaded weapons in the Parliament, killing one another. Parties had no defined programs."

Mr. Radin described King Alexander as a strong-minded and popular ruler. His Prime Minister, General Zivkovitch, he said, is a man of great administrative ability. The legislative committee, composed of leading men of the country, is virtually carrying out the functions of a Parliament, and with far more satisfactory results, he declared.

ARCTIC COLD KILLS THREE.

Canadian Official Brings Report of Deaths in Far North.

OTTAWA, Ont., Dec. 11 (Canadian Press)—News of the deaths of three natives of Scotland in the Canadian Arctic was brought out by Major L. T. Burwash of the Northwest Territories branch of the Department of the Interior, who arrived in Ottawa today from the North.

Major Burwash said Harold Lucca of the Hudson Bay Company had gone for a walk and was swallowed up by a raging blizzard, seven miles out of Gjoahaven.

Ian McKay Christie, also of the Hudson Bay Company, died at Bathhurst Post under similar circumstances after Lewis T. Rader, engineer of the Ptarmigan, Major Burwash's boat, had half carried and half dragged him across the frozen wastes for thirty hours.

Another man died after he had broken through ice on Coronation Gulf. He fell through only to his waist, but could not get out again. The freezing water gradually exhausted him and he died before help could reach him.

IDENTIFY ATLANTA 'SLAYER.'

Three Men Pick Hardegree as Johnson's Companion.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 11 (AP).—Three witnesses today identified Elwell L. Hardegree as the companion on June 29 of Alexander H. Johnson, Hartwell (Ga.) school teacher, to whose slaying he confessed here on Monday.

A. D. Holmes said he had been in a grocery store and saw Johnson with Hardegree enter and buy a bottle of pickles. Two negroes, Ed Powell and Chester Rogers, separately picked Hardegree from a line-up of prisoners in the police station as the man who was with Johnson while they rode around town to obtain liquor.

A. Lamar Poole, chief of detectives, said the police would disregard the statement of Mrs. J. R. Wakefield, sister of the slain teacher, that she believes Hardegree told his story to prepare an insanity defense against a charge that he attacked J. J. Griffin, Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue, and that the confession of Hardegree would be placed before the grand jury.

SAVES 5 IN ICY LAKE ERIE.

Sister Boat's Crew Rescues Men After Craft Capsizes.

SANDUSKY, Ohio, Dec. 11 (AP).—Two passengers and a crew of three men were rescued from icy waters of Lake Erie off Marblehead today after a sixty-five-foot oil-burning boat, the Mascot, capsized. The rescue was made by the crew of the Messenger, a sister ship. Both of the boats were going to Kelley's Island, with the Messenger breaking a way through the ice, when suddenly the Mascot overturned.

All of those aboard were thrown into the water. Waves were high and they were in danger of being crushed by large cakes of ice as well as suffering from exposure and the danger of drowning, but almost at once the captain of the Messenger turned his ship, then a mile ahead, and came to their rescue.

GLIDER MAKES NEW RECORD

Bowlus Stays in Air 2 Hours and 47 Minutes Over Point Loma, Cal.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Dec. 11 (AP).—W. H. Bowlus, glider expert, made a new American record for duration of flight in a motorless plane when he remained in the air above Point Loma for 2 hours 47 minutes 13¾ seconds yesterday, beating his former record by more than an hour and twenty minutes.

Officials of the National Glider Association and the National and International Aeronautical Associations timed the flight.

A favorable wind which kept his sail plane skimming above Point Loma in long, steady loops, died down at about 5:30 o'clock and, as darkness had come on, Bowlus landed.

MEXICAN PRESIDENT FLIES OVER VOLCANO

DEDICATES FLIER'S TOMB

Vast Throng Witnesses Stunt Flying and Ceremonies Honoring Dead Captain Carranza.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 11.—President Portes Gil, accompanied by a brilliant gathering of Cabinet and other high Mexican officials and foreign diplomats, attended today the second of the Mexican "air week" ceremonies and maneeuvres at Valbuena Field in commemoration of Captain Emilio Carranza, the noted Mexican flier who was killed last year in New Jersey on a good-will flight to the United States.

The president and a few companions made a flight in a huge trimotored Ford plane over the Valley of Mexico and the volcano "El Popo."

A tremendous crowd of spectators saw the president arrive at the field, accompanied by General Joaquin Amaro, the Minister of War, and General Juan Azcarate, chief of the Aviation Department, Javier Sánchez Majorada, Minister of Communications, and others. A salvo of guns saluted the president and bands played the national anthem.

President Opens Exhibition.

The President formally opened the aviation exhibition in the main hangar, in which were exhibits of the first Mexican efforts in aviation down to latest planes acquired in the United States. Quaintest among the exhibits was a ship made entirely of home products in 1918. It provided a striking contrast alongside a huge United States bomber, which was flown here in compliment to the ceremonies for Captain Emilio Carranza.

As the Presidential party inspected the exhibition a large fleet of Mexican planes performed evolutions overhead and troops on the field prepared for inspection.

His first task completed, President Portes Gil, accompanied by almost the entire Cabinet and foreign diplomats, wended his way to the trimotor plane, which was waiting, already tuned up for the flight. The President entered the ship first and he was followed by General Amaro, Señor Sanchez Mejorada, the heads of the American and British aviation delegations and General Azcarate.

Away went the big plane, the President smilingly saluting the crowd. Within two minutes she was lost in the morning haze, but it was seen that she was heading in the direction of El Popo.

President Radios to Wife.

Radio messages were exchanged with the Presidential plane while it was in the air. President Valbudder of the Mexican Aviation Company, which runs the passenger and mail service between Mexico City and Brownsville, sent a respectful salutation, and President Portes Gil replied: "I wish to congratulate through you the Mexican Aviation Company upon the impressive impetus given to Aviation and the important and efficacious service rendered to the public."

From an altitude of 23,000 feet, as we are now over the crater of El Popo volcano and enjoying the gorgeous beauties of nature, I send to you, to mother and to Chacha, our little girl, loving greetings.

EMILIO.

During the President's flight American pilots flying between Tampico and Brownsville radioed to the Presidential plane from over the Gulf of Mexico.

On his return after an hour and a half in the air the President and his companions all expressed themselves as enchanted with the trip and the excellence of the plane.

Less Than Capacity Load.

The plane was not loaded to its ordinary capacity, because the flight over the volcano required rising to a height of more than 24,000 feet. The trip to Tampico under commercial conditions calls for an altitude limit of 18,000 feet.

After landing, President Portes Gil and diplomats went to the official stand, from which they witnessed hair-raising feats by the "Cossacks" of the traffic department on motorcycles and then Mexican aviation stars caused more thrills by their evolutions. Looping the loop, nose diving, and, in fact, everything in the way of dangerous stunts was performed without mishap and visiting foreign airmen were loud in their praise. Three parachute jumps were made.

After a short luncheon interval, President Portes Gil, accompanied by General Amaro and other high officials, was present at the ceremony of laying of the first stone for a memorial to Captain Carranza. The monument is located between the military and civil aviation fields. Earlier in the morning the British Chargé d'Affairs, Ogilvie Forbes, accompanied by Lionel E. O. Charlton of the British Royal Air Force, laid a wreath on the tomb.

MGR. RUIZ ANSWERS MEXICAN PRESIDENT

Papal Envoy Denies Church Has Accepted Religious Laws of Calles Regime.

SAYS CHANGES ARE SOUGHT

Accord Reached in July Described as Merely Basis for Reaching More Complete Agreement.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 11.—The relations of Church and State in Mexico were brought into prominence again this afternoon in a statement issued to the press by Mgr. Leopoldo Ruiz y Flores, the Apostolic Delegate to Mexico, in answer to declarations attributed to President-elect Pascual Ortiz Rubio on his arrival in New York.

Señor Ortiz Rubio was quoted here as saying "The arrangement reached between Church and State stands firm, for Rome has accepted the established laws."

In reply the Papal Delegate says:

"There is no doubt that the Church and State arrangement is firm, but that firmness should not be attributed solely to tolerance or condescension of the Church but rather to President Portes Gil's declaration, which was recognized as the basis necessary for the renewal of cults and to work peacefully for the reform of prevailing legislation. From the beginning the settlement was approached on a basis of mutual goodwill, and, therefore, not only to one side but to both should be given the credit for the achievement.

"The acceptance of the laws on the part of the Church does not signify approbation of them, but rather a tolerance imposed for the moment, and according to the morals of the Catholic Church. That does not mean the Church has renounced its right to seek solution of the conflict by means of reform of the laws.

"I believe this explanation necessary in order to avoid the resentment which among Catholics might be sown if the Church and State crisis settlement were attributed solely to condescension on the part of the Church and describing such condescension as a full and complete acceptance of the laws."

The Apostolic Delegate concludes by expressing pleasure that the American people are interested in the Mexican Church and State settlement and that they, in their judgment, do not consider that it has been definitely solved.

"That nation," he says, "which owes its prosperity in such large measure to religious liberty, considers religious conflicts such as ours, are obstacles to the peace and the tranquillity of the nation."

GUARANTEES SOUGHT BY LITTLE ENTENTE

Threat to Bar Young Plan Made Unless Budapest Agrees to Underwrite for Optants.

REPARATION LINK DEMANDED

Hungarian Upper House Indignant and Cabinet Officials Declare for Firm Stand on Issue.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PRAGUE, Dec. 11.—The Little Entente States have decided to make a common declaration on the subject of Eastern reparations when the second Hague conference opens on Jan. 3, setting forth the common Little Entente attitude toward reparations in general as well as their special interest in reparations from Hungary.

The Little Entente will refuse to sign the Young plan until Hungary gives guarantees that it will carry out its international obligations. The Little Entente is determined that the matter of land reform, which includes that of the Hungarian optants, finally shall be settled in conjunction with the question of the reparations due from Hungary. The Little Entente States will propose, according to the well-informed newspaper Narodni Politika, that they make no reparation payments before 1943, the year when Hungary's reparations obligations are to be liquidated in conjunction with her loan received through the League of Nations.

If it proves impossible to reach an agreement with Hungary at The Hague, the Little Entente will demand payment total of 6,000,000 to 10,000,000 gold crowns from Hungary as reparations.

According to messages from Bucharest the Rumanian Government has been informed by M. Mironescu, the Rumanian Foreign Minister, who is now in Prague, by Nicholas Titulescu, its representative at the Paris conference on Eastern reparations that Rumania had obtained considerable success at the conference, which largely had adopted the Rumanian point of view, in particular approving the Rumanian thesis that the question of sums due to the Hungarian optants must be set off against the amount due from Hungary to Rumania as reparations.

Hungarians Show Indignation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, Dec. 11.—In the Hungarian Upper House yesterday indignation at the reparation demands made on Hungary was expressed in the course of a fevered debate, closing with a defiant resolution approving the government's bold stand on the questions of reparations and the optants, and urging the government to continue to show equal energy in defending the vital interests of the country.

Baron Joseph Szterenyi, Hungary's representative at the optants' conference, declared that only the Italian delegate had supported the Hungarian claims at the reparations conference in Paris. If injustice is now done to Hungary, he said, the Treaty of the Trianon would be nothing but a scrap of paper, which none of them need regret for a moment.

No government, he asserted, could accept absolutely unjust demands on the country.

Premier Count Bethlen asserted that Hungary was not liable for former reparation payments. In 1924 responsible authority promised him, he said, that Hungary would not be called upon to pay reparations after 1943. This declaration, he declared, was not legally but morally binding. Nor could Hungary adopt the suggestion to waive support afforded her nationals [the Hungarian optants] by Paragraph 250 of the Treaty of the Trianon. To these principles Hungary must insist on adhering, he said.

Husband, Menjou, Convalescing, So Screen Star Is on Way Here.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 11.—Kathryn Carver, screen star, who postponed her departure for America several times because of the illness of her husband, Adolphe Menjou, took train today for Cherbourg to sail on the Olympic. She will make a quick round trip, hoping to be back in Paris by the middle of January.

Mr. Menjou underwent an operation at the American hospital here for appendicitis three weeks ago, as he was about to begin a French talkie for Pathe. He was unable to go to St. Lazare Station this morning to bid his wife farewell, but hopes to be strong enough to leave for the French Riviera in a few days to recuperate.

When seen at his apartment Mr. Menjou explained that he had changed his mind at the last minute about accompanying his wife, because his doctor had advised that the weather at sea at this time of the year was too uncertain for a convalescent. He expects to be well enough to begin work for the Pathe studio as soon as his wife returns to appear with him.

Differences Over Italian Demand for Parity Are Not Expected to Be Settled Before Meeting.

PARIS, Dec. 11 (AP).—International circles here have become disturbed by the failure to settle the naval question between Italy and France growing out of the Italian demand for parity. It was feared tonight that the problem would not be solved by the time of the opening of the five-power conference in London in January.

France has informed Italy that her naval needs exceed those of Italy because of her lengthy coast lines and far-flung possessions. She has assured her southern neighbor that the fleets of France are directed against no nation, but are merely intended for defense and the expression of the prestige of France.

Premier Tardieu, Foreign Minister Briand and Marine Minister Leygues are expected to represent France at the London conference.

DR. JOHNSON'S HOME IS GIVEN TO BRITAIN

DINNER IS HELD IN ATTIC

An Assembly He Would Have Liked Gathers to Do Honor to Beloved Lexicographer.

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—The only one of the several London homes of Dr. Samuel Johnson still in existence, that at 17 Gough Square, off Fleet Street, became the property of the nation tonight, when Cecil Harmsworth, who purchased the house several years ago to save it from wreckers, turned it over to a board of governors as a literary shrine in perpetuity for the people of England and America.

It was in this old four-story brick Georgian dwelling, which Johnson occupied from 1748 to 1759, that he wrote his famous dictionary, his essays for the Rambler, and probably his "Rasselas." It was here that his wife died, and here that he was once arrested because he was unable to pay a debt of $25.

On that occasion, as Lord Chief Justice Hewart of England recalled at tonight's dinner, Dr. Johnson went off to a near-by jail, where he bought a pint of sherry for solace and waited until his friend and neighbor, Samuel Richardson, author of "Clarissas Harlowe" and other novels, came round to pay his debt and free him.

Held in His Own Attic.

Fortunately the only room in the old house big enough for tonight's party was the old attic, for no other place could have been so appropriate. It was in this very attic that Dr. Johnson's six Scottish copyists slaved for eight years, doing mechanical work on the dictionary which Dr. Johnson had hoped and expected he could do in three years.

Dr. Johnson worked in his room downstairs, reading old English masters, picking words out of their works which he thought worthy of a permanent place in a dictionary of the English language, writing definitions for them and taking his definitions to the attic for his helpers to copy. It was a great dictionary, but they all went broke on the undertaking, and for the rest of his life Dr. Johnson robbed his own scanty means to help pension the impecunious clerks who helped him do the work.

According to his famous biographer, James Boswell, Dr. Johnson was a great believer in personal immortality, and in the power of the departed to know what their friends were still doing in their earthly life. If the old lexicographer was right, his spirit must have had a glorious time this evening, for the dinner at his Gough Square attic was certainly "a dinner to ask a man to," as Dr. Johnson would have said himself. No effort was made to have it exclusively commemorative of those several periods in Dr. Johnson's life in which he drank nothing but tea.

Company He Would Have Liked.

And the company itself was surely one that Dr. Johnson would have enjoyed dining with. It was probably the nearest thing in the way of an assembly that twentieth-century London could produce to match the groups that gathered about Dr. Johnson in the eighteenth century. They all knew their Boswell.

With a little imagination, a counterpart of every one of Dr. Johnson's old cronies could be found in tonight's company that assembled to do honor to his memory and thank Cecil Harmsworth for this shrine. For example, there was Sir William Orpen, England's present-day famous artist and member of the same Royal Academy of which Sir Joshua Reynolds was once president in the days when he was a daily companion of Dr. Johnson in this same house. Reynolds's portrait of Dr. Johnson was the only picture hanging in the attic tonight.

When it came time to ascend the narrow stairs to the attic, Mr. Orpen and Lord Chief Justice Hewart came together at the bottom step and there was much bowing and expostulation between the Knight of the Brush and the Lord of the Bench as to which should go first.

"I am sure," said Lord Hewart, "that if Dr. Johnson were here he would insist that art should have precedence over law." And Sir William Orpen went first.

Augustine Birrell Chairman.

It was Augustine Birrell, editor of the 1897 edition of Boswell's "Life of Johnson," who, as chairman of the trustees, received the deed of gift from Mr. Harmsworth.

Lord Charnwood, biographer of Abraham Lincoln and formerly Mayor of Lichfield, where Dr. Johnson was born, spoke of his native town. Richard Ashe King, biographer of Johnson's friend, Oliver Goldsmith, and a man of ninety years, talked of the kindness and friendliness of Dr. Johnson in a way that was worthy of the attic and all its associations.

Sir James Barrie, another of the board of governors, did not come, not because of Dr. Johnsons' slurs upon the Scots but because he could not reach London on time. He sent a message instead.

There was an international touch, emphasizing the fact that this shrine henceforward belongs to Americans as well as English, in the presence of A. Edward Newton, bibliophile of Philadelphia, who has contributed largely to Johnsoniana in a permanent exhibit at Gough Square House. Mr. Newton, who arrived in London this week especially for the occasion and is returning to America on Saturday, made a speech in which, paraphrasing Dr. Johnson, he said the dinner was worth traveling 3,000 miles for.

SUFFERN ART EXHIBIT OPENS

More Than 100 Canvasses and Sculptures Are Displayed.

Special to The New York Times.

SUFFERN, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Art lovers of Suffern and vicinity inspected the art exhibit in the Woman's Club Building yesterday by the newly organized Suffern art centre, of which Dr. H. S. Patterson, medical adviser at St. Luke's Hospital, is honorary president. Dr. Patterson opened the exhibit with an informal speech.

More than 100 canvasses and sculptures were on display. Among the artists represented were Nat Lowell, Francis Wheaton, C. A. Burlingame, Edith V. Cockroft, the late Albert Jaegers, Llewellyn Miller, C. L. Sproul and Dr. and Mrs. H. S. Patterson.

Mount Vernon Slayer Held Insane.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Athanasios Kanelopoulos, who shot and killed Nicholas Phillos as he sat at a table, and wounded two others, in a Mount Vernon restaurant, was declared insane today by a medical commission. He was ordered transferred from the county jail to Matteawan by Supreme Court Justice Tompkins.

LABOR'S EGYPT PLAN CENSURED BY LORDS

Proposed Treaty Condemned, 43 to 13, After Attack by Ex-Commissioner Lloyd.

HE SAYS ARMY MUST STAY

Warns of Red Activities if Britain Gives Up Control—Thomson Defends Government.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Lord Lloyd, who recently resigned as High Commissioner of Egypt under pressure from Arthur Henderson, Foreign Secretary, criticized the Labor Government's policy regarding that country today from his seat in the House of Lords. The government's proposals for a new treaty, he said, flung aside precautions and safeguards and committed the British and other nations' interests to an immature political system, while the British troops were withdrawn from Cairo and Alexandria to the desert.

"The only place from which the Suez Canal can adequately and economically be defended from internal discord," he said, "is from Cairo itself. How can the government defend a proposal to ask British soldiers to go to live in a bleak desert where there is every disadvantage, physical, military, mental and moral? It will take twenty years' preparation to render the area along the canal zone even reasonably fit for permanent garrisons."

Fears Degeneration of Police.

All British officers are to disappear from the Egyptian army under the government's plans, Lord Lloyd recalled, though the need for such control, he said, had been proved in times of political excitement. The disappearance of European control over the Cairo city police, he warned, would lead to the degeneration of those forces.

He said there was every reason to fear that Communists "whose nefarious influence had been, by constant vigilance and firmness, kept out of Egypt, will see an opportunity in these impending changes to make of Egypt what they had made of China and recently Palestine—a new theatre for war and disorder."

The proposed treaty, he said, would be detrimental to British trade. He asserted the greatest surprise was the proposed return of Egyptian troops to the Sudan, which, he declared, "will involve the undoing of all the magnificent work which Great Britain has achieved in that territory."

"The British Empire has nothing to gain from the draft treaty, but much to lose," he continued. "It will not bring us the friendship of the masses of the Egyptian people because that already is possessed by Britain in full measure."

Thomson Defends Labor Policy.

On behalf of the government, Lord Thomson, Air Minister, indicated that Parliament would have a further opportunity to consider the government's proposals. He said the most scrupulous attention had been given to the opinion of military experts on the security of imperial communications between Great Britain and India. Troops were already living in the canal zone in considerable numbers, he said.

In regard to the Sudan, he said, the most that Foreign Secretary Henderson had promised was that if the treaty proposals proceeded satisfactorily the government would give sympathetic consideration to the return of the Egyptian battalion to that territory.

A motion expressing regret at the government's "precipitate" policy in Egypt and the risk to imperial communications was carried against the government by a vote of 46 to 13.

ARNOLD DENIES CHARGES.

Broker on Stand in Divorce Suit Tells of Business Deals.

Ray H. Arnold, wealthy investment broker, denied the truth of charges of intimacy between himself and Mrs. Margaret Crenshaw West, corespondent in the divorce suit brought by Mrs. Bessie S. Arnold, when trial of the action was resumed yesterday before Supreme Court Justice McCook and a jury. The defendant, who occupied the witness stand during most of the session, said he met Mrs. West nineteen years ago and that about ten years ago she accepted a position as vice president of the Newport Development Company of which he is president.

He explained that he visited her home at Crestwood, N. Y., occasionally for business conferences and because the company was developing a suburban residential tract in Crestwood. Mrs. West is expected to testify today.

WE know that men ought to be more careful of their clothes. Their wives know it, too. Nevertheless, night after night, thousands and thousands of men drop their clothes wherever they take them off.

Lots of them are shapeless masses of wrinkles in the morning. Of course, every suit will wrinkle. The test of a good suit is whether it will "spring back" without permanent ill effects.

The Sackville is made to stand rough usage. Just to illustrate the care and quality of workmanship: the front chest seams of the Sackville are invisibly hand-sewn to the canvas foundation. This absolutely prevents any unsightly up and down wrinkling.

WIRELESS SERVICE TO PERU IS OPENED

Presidents Hoover and Leguia Exchange Congratulations at Its Inauguration.

SAYVILLE JOINED TO LIMA

South American Executive, in Message, Sends Greetings to American People.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Messages of congratulation upon the inauguration of direct radio service between Lima, Peru, and the United States were sent yesterday by President Hoover to President Leguia of Peru and by Secretary Stimson to Foreign Minister Rada of Peru, and made public today by the State Department.

That from President Hoover to President Leguia said:

"Upon the occasion of the inauguration of All-America Cables station at Lima, I wish to extend to you and to the people of Peru, on behalf of myself and the people of the United States, every good wish for the prosperity and continued well-being of the people of Peru."

President Leguia replied:

"Upon the opening of the radio station established by All-America Cables in Lima I am happy to transmit to your Excellency the good wishes of Peru for the prosperity of the great American nation and my own wishes for your Excellency's personal happiness."

Secretary Stimson in his message prophesied the new service would "contribute in no small degree to our growing commercial relations," and Foreign Minister Rada in reply expressed his regard for the people of the United States.

President Leguia Greets America.

LIMA, Dec. 11 (AP).—Direct radio-telegraph service between Peru and the United States was inaugurated at 11:30 A. M. today through a new wireless station here and another at Sayville, L. I.

One of the first messages was a greeting to American newspapers from President Augusto B. Leguia. His message said:

"I wish to take advantage of the inauguration of the direct radio service from Peru to the United States, a new link between sister nations, to greet the American people through the Associated Press, one of the spiritual bonds already uniting these two countries."

A. H. Walker, manager of the cable company here, recalled that President Leguia as Finance Minister in 1904 had signed the contract by which the American Cable Company began work here.

COOLIDGE IS ELECTED OFFICER OF RED CROSS

Society's By-Laws Are Amended So That Third Vice Presidency Can Be Offered to Him.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Former President Coolidge today was elected a vice president of the American Red Cross at the annual meeting of the central committee of the society. The by-laws were amended to provide three vice presidents. The other two, who were re-elected, are Chief Justice Taft and Robert W. De Forest of New York City.

The six members of the Red Cross central committee, who are appointed by the President of the United States, all were reappointed by President Hoover. They are John Barton Payne, chairman; Under-Secretary Joseph P. Cotton, representing the State Department; Major Gen. Merritte W. Ireland, War Department; Rear Admiral Charles Edward Riggs, Navy Department; Under-Secretary Ogden L. Mills, the Treasury Department, and Solicitor General Charles Evans Hughes Jr., the Department of Justice.

A third vice chairman was added to the administrative staff of the Red Cross when James K. McClintick of Washington, D. C., was made vice chairman in charge of finance. Other officers who were re-elected were Ogden L. Mills, treasurer; Charles Evans Hughes Jr., counselor, and Miss Mabel T. Boardman, secretary.

The board of incorporators elected Corcoran Thom, president of the American Security and Trust Company, Washington, a member of the board of trustees of the endowment fund, to succeed the late Charles J. Bell of Washington.

Eliot Wadsworth of Boston, Miss Mabel T. Boardman of Washington and Mrs. Henry R. Rea of Pittsburgh were re-elected members of the central committee.

Two vacancies on the board of incorporators were filled by the election of Augustus K. Oliver of Pittsburgh and Winthrop Murray Crane of Dalton, Mass.

At a meeting of chapter delegates Mrs. August Belmont of New York and Gustavus D. Pope of Detroit were re-elected members of the central committee. They were nominated at the Red Cross convention last April.

LANGUAGE BILL STIRS THE BELGIAN CHAMBER

Compromise Measure Submitted to Make Flemish Official Tongue at University of Ghent.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRUSSELS, Dec. 11.—The government project for rendering the Flemish language official at the University of Ghent, which was responsible for the recent Cabinet crisis, caused warm discussion when it was resubmitted to the Chamber this afternoon.

The bill, which is a compromise measure adopted during the recent conferences of the party leaders, would become effective in the academic year 1930-31. It provides that lectures on French history, literature and philology be given in French, while lectures on English and German literature and philology be given in their respective languages, all language lessons to be given in the language of the country concerned.

Albert Devese, leader of the Liberal party, said that the result of this bill would be that the special scientific schools for civil engineers and for arts and manufactures renowned throughout the world would be removed from Ghent to Liège. He regretted that this would be a great loss for Ghent, but said that because of the large number of foreign pupils unable to understand Flemish it would be impossible to instruct them at Ghent under the new law and the courses must therefore be transferred elsewhere.

LABOR DRIVE PLANS LAID.

A. F. of L. Meeting on Southern Organization Set for Next Month.

The first meeting for the Southern organizing drive of the American Federation of Labor will probably be held in a Southern city between Jan. 1 and 8, it was reported yesterday. The meeting is to be held prior to the quarterly session of the federation's executive council, scheduled for Jan. 8 in St. Petersburg, Fla. This step toward organizing Southern workers and especially to assist the United Textile Workers of America, is being arranged by William Green, president of the federation, as a result of action taken by the Toronto convention in October. After that convention, a meeting of heads of international unions was held in Washington and pledges of assistance were given. A committee of three is to be named to carry on the work under the direct supervision of Mr. Green, who will also make a series of speeches on the Southern organizing program following the executive council's meeting in St. Petersburg.

14 FARMERS TO GET MEDALS

Roosevelt to Make Presentations at Dinner Here Tonight.

Governor Roosevelt will award gold medals to fourteen farmers representing as many counties in the State at a dinner tonight at the Hotel Lincoln under the auspices of The American Agriculturist. The program will be broadcast by WNYC, beginning at 8:30 o'clock.

TO AID SOUTH ON AIRPORTS.

Commerce Department Specialists Will Help Select Sites.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Two airport specialists of the Aeronautics Branch of the Department of Commerce will leave Washington in January on extended itineraries through out the South to assist communities in selecting sites for airports, Harry H. Blee, director of aeronautic development of the department, announced today.

These two specialists, Marshall C. Hoppin and W. J. Mackenzie, will confer with civic organizations and interpret the requirements for the several airport ratings granted by the department.

Southern cities desiring assistance from these airport specialists should communicate with the Aeronautics Branch.

ASKS MODERNIZATION OF NAVY OBSERVATORY

Superintendent in Annual Report, Says Equipment Is Old and Obsolete.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The need for new equipment at the Naval Observatory is emphasized in the annual report for the fiscal year 1929 of Captain C. S. Freeman, superintendent of the observatory.

"The last applications for new astronomical equipment of the major sort were those made in 1893 and 1894, incidental to the removal of the Naval Observatory to its present site on Georgetown Heights," the report said.

"For more than a quarter of a century no new instruments have been added, and the observatory has never in its history had a new piece of photographic apparatus of the sort now commonly found in every modern observatory throughout the world. The astrographic equipment on hand is composed of abandoned or second-hand material salvaged by the observatory and adapted to its purpose through the efforts of its staff.

"An elaborate provision of funds for modernization is not desirable, but a gradual elimination of outstanding defects brought on by age, and a too restricted financial outlay is essential to the observatory's lasting national usefulness.

"Three members of the observatory's astronomical staff attended the third assembly of the International Astronomical Union, held at Leyden, Holland, in July, 1928, and visited various observatories in England and on the Continent. They reported that in practically all cases the foreign observatories excel our national observatory in the quality and modernity of their instrumental equipment. In upkeep of equipment the Naval Observatory, they report, ranks especially high.

Demand for the observatory's services among various lines, Captain Freeman said, especially in connection with time service, is increasing in such a manner as to embarrass the facilities available, and to bring into sharper relief the fact that the observatory has no bulletin service to make current results of importance immediately accessible to persons employing them in their professional work.

During the fiscal year the observatory sponsored two scientific undertakings of outstanding importance. One, having for its purpose a study of the variation of the force of gravity over the ocean floors, involved a cruise of 7,000 miles in the submarine S-21. Forty-six subsurface open-sea gravity stations were established, principally in West Indian waters and the Gulf of Mexico.

The other expedition was dispatched to Iloilo, Philippine Islands, for observing the total solar eclipse of May 9, 1929.

PLANS EMBASSY IN POLAND.

Hoover Will Promote Stetson, Now Minister at Warsaw.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—On account of the growing importance of Poland in Europe, and as a compliment to the large population of Polish extraction in the United States, President Hoover will shortly elevate the American Legation at Warsaw to the status of an embassy, it was stated today at the White House. Poland will, in turn, convert her legation at Washington into an embassy.

No change will be made in the present diplomatic representation at Warsaw, it being the President's intention to promote John B. Stetson Jr., the Minister, to an ambassadorship. It is assumed Poland will confer similar rank on Tytus Filipowicz, her Minister here.

SENATORS PRESS WOOL TARIFF RISES

Coalition Is Divided Again in 46 to 32 Vote for 18-Cent Levy on Rags.

SHODDY RATE ALSO RAISED

Blaine and New Englanders Lose Fight Against Increases Above House Advances.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The Democratic-Progressive coalition in the Senate, which had been in power throughout the debate on the tariff bill until the wool schedule came up this week, split again today as the Chamber, by a vote of 46 to 32, decided to increase the duty on wool rags from 7½ cents, the existing rate, to 18 cents a pound, as proposed by Senator Watson of Indiana, the Republican floor leader.

Party lines did not hold in the vote on the wool rags amendment, which has been discussed with great bitterness for several days, practically all the Senators from wool growing States, regardless of political affiliations, rallying to the support of the compromise plan offered by Senator Watson.

The finance committee in reporting the Smoot-Hawley bill recommended a rate of 24 cents a pound. The House put the duty at 8 cents.

"Grundyism" figured prominently in the Senate debate. Joseph R. Grundy, who is a worsted manufacturer, favored the highest rate at committee hearings, and Senator Blaine, Republican insurgent, of Wisconsin and Senator Simmons of North Carolina, Democratic tariff leader, asserted that Mr. Grundy sought a prohibitive duty on wool rags to gain an advantage in competition with the woolen manufacturers.

New Englanders Fight Increase.

Two recorded votes preceded that on the Watson amendment as New England members fought the increase. A proposal by Senator Metcalf, Republican, of Rhode Island, providing a sliding scale of rates on wool rags, ranging from 8 to 16 cents a pound, was defeated by a vote of 46 to 35.

An amendment offered by Senator Bingham, Republican, of Connecticut, providing for a duty of 40 per cent on rags was defeated by vote of 47 to 34.

The Senate approved without a record vote a committee increase in the duty of shoddy and wool extract to 24 cents a pound. The present rate is 16 cents and the House made it 18 cents.

Senators Copeland of New York and Walsh of Massachusetts, both Democrats, protested against "high" duties on wool rags, which are employed in the manufacture of cheaper grades of clothing, on the ground that the effect would be to enhance the prices of such products purchased by the "common man." Senator Copeland warned that if any rate approximating the one contained in the Watson amendment was adopted, many of those supporting it would go down to defeat when next they present themselves as candidates for election.

Senator Blaine fought to hold the coalition together against an increase in the duty. He recalled the fight on the Senate floor twenty years ago, when the late Senators Dolliver of Iowa and La Follette Sr. of Wisconsin held the insurgent opposition of that time together against the wool rates in the Payne-Aldrich bill. He said the present farm group courted disaster if it followed the leadership of Mr. Grundy.

Chairman Smoot of the Finance Committee had said yesterday that, after listening to the debate, he was satisfied that the 24 cent rate on wool rags was too high and that he was willing to accept the Watson compromise. Senator Blaine called upon Mr. Smoot to explain why, if he was willing to scale the rate to 18 cents, he would not go lower, but the Utah Senator ignored the question.

Roll-Call on Wool Rags Duty.

In the vote on the Watson amendment, twenty-one coalitionists, among them Senators Borah, Brookhart, Frazier and Schall, Republicans, and Wheeler and Walsh of Montana, Democrats, supported the proposal. Most of the New England regular Republicans opposed the increase.

The roll-call on the motion for an 18-cent duty on wool rags was:

FOR THE AMENDMENT—46.

Allen and Norris Renew Row.

Senator Allen of Kansas, a spokesman of the "Young Guard" Republican group, Senator Norris of Nebraska, an insurgent leader, reviewed for half an hour an argument they started yesterday on the question whether farmers favored the "Grundy" plan of tariff revision, or the plan advocated by Senator Borah. The basis of the row was a pawspaper advertisement, printed in the Congressional Record on motion of Mr. Allen, which was signed by the editor of the Minneapolis Journal and other newspapers of Minnesota and the Dakotas, uring that the Senate expedite action on the tariff. Mr. Norris wantsd some of the signers as amone1 before the investigating committee on the ground of circulating "propaganda."

Mr. Allen said today that the editors objected to the intimation of Mr. Norris that they had embraced "Grundyism" and that there was no justification for intimation that the advertisement had been paid for by others than the signers.

"I think these Minnesota editors have sufficient money to afford such an advertisement," Mr. Allen said.

"They may have more money than Grundy has," Mr. Norris replied. "They are advocating the same thing Grundy advocates, Grundyism says, 'keep hands off the tariff levied upon the manufactured articles of the East.' That is Grundy; that is Grundyism, and that is what the advertisements say in so many words."

The Senate will resume consideration of the wool schedule tomorrow, taking up items of manufacture upon which compensatory rates will be applied in accordance with the duty of 34 cents on raw wool, approved several weeks ago, and the duty of 18 cents on rags accepted today.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, minority floor leader, in a statement made public through the Democratic National Committee, asserted that the Democrats were not seeking a radical alteration of the tariff basis. He said they favored "justice to all industries. They believe too, insofar as possible, that the same rates should be made effective for agriculture as are fixed for other industries."

BROOKLYN LEADS CITY IN DIPHTHERIA FIGHT

113,551 of Its Children Have Been Immunized Out of 201,698 in All Boroughs.

Brooklyn, with a total of 113,551, leads the city in number of diphtheria immunizations administered since the Diphtheria Prevention Commission began to function last January, it was announced yesterday by Commissioner of Health Wynne. There were 201,698 immunizations throughout the city, Dr. Wynne said.

Brooklyn far outranked the other boroughs in the number of children immunized by private physicians, Brooklyn's total being 49,685 out of 58,225 in the city. In the eleven months the campaign has been in progress he said, almost as many immunization treatments have been given as were administered in the preceding six years, the total for the twelve years since 1916 being 500,000.

"The success of the campaign for the immunization of children against diphtheria," said Dr. Wynne, "in the less than one year it has been operative has been nothing short of remarkable. And the pace set by Brooklyn certainly should spur other boroughs to greater activity. Too much praise cannot be given Brooklyn for the whole-hearted cooperation it has shown in aiding the health authorities in stamping out this treacherous disease of childhood."

The commissioner also commended the Kings County Medical Society, the Brooklyn Tuberculosis and Health Association and other private agencies for their work in promoting the immunization campaign. Baby Health Stations in Brooklyn thus far this year, he said, have given 38,596 immunization treatments and 30,270 were given in the schools.

General Horacio Vasquez Better.

BALTIMORE, Md., Dec. 11 (AP).—General Horacio Vasquez, Dominican Republica President, was reported "progressing" favorably at Johns Hopkins Hospital today after the operation on Monday in which a portion of one kidney was removed. The report from the hospital said his condition was distinctly improved today, although he still had some fever.

CHILD BOMB VICTIMS BURIED IN ONE GRAVE

Heavy Police Guard Escorts Cortege From Brooklyn House to Cemetery.

PARENTS NEAR COLLAPSE

Uniformed policemen and detectives guarded the mourners at the funeral yesterday of the three Falzone children, Mary, 15 years old; Philip, 13, and Rose, 8, killed by a bomb on Sunday in their home at 1,937 De Kalb Avenue, Brooklyn.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Falzone, were near collapse when they reached St. John's Cemetery, Middle Village, Queens, and were unable to leave their automobile. Mrs. Falzone was also unable to enter St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church, Buydam Street and Wilson Avenue, Brooklyn, for the funeral service. Mr. Falzone, weeping convulsively, was supported into the church by two undertakers' aides.

The funeral was held from the home of Carlos Falzone, brother of Joseph, at 550 Hart Street, Brooklyn. Before the door of the gray apartment building, marked by three white crêpes, stood twelve policemen from the Wilson Avenue station. Twenty-five detectives mingled with the 500 persons assembled in the street as the coffins were brought out.

A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Mgr. Octavio Sylvestri, assisted by the Rev. Vincent Genova and the Rev. Cyrus Terfora.

After the service the cortege proceeded to the cemetery. Here, under a khaki marquee, Mgr. Sylvestri said a final prayer for the dead. As the three coffins, encased in steel boxes, were lowered into a single grave the mourners strewed over them a blanket of white carnations.

Ford Company Disclaims Knowledge of Junkers Charge on Planes.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Dec. 11.—The Ford Motor Car Company disclaims any knowledge of suits reported pending by the Junkers Airplane Company of Germany, charging patent infringements in the construction of the Ford all-metal planes.

According to a news service, a test suit will be started in Spain, where a large number of Ford planes have been imported.

"It is the first we have heard of it," a Ford official said here. "Presumably, any defense which we will be called upon to make will be set up through our Barcelona branch."

ORDERS BOSTON INQUIRY.

Governor Allen Directs Investigation of Charges About Vice.

BOSTON, Dec. 11 (AP).—Governor Frank G. Allen today ordered Attorney General Joseph E. Warner to investigate allegations contained in an article entitled "Rawdy Boston" appearing in the January issue of Plain Talk, a New York magazine. The Chief Executive asked that Warner take such action as in his opinion was right and proper after he had thoroughly investigated.

The article was written by Walter W. Liggett, and purports to give a word picture of conditions in Boston since the advent of prohibition. It charges that vice, bribery, graft, bootlegging and other crimes were rampant in this city.

EXPORT LINE SIGNS NEW MAIL CONTRACT

Company Will Build Six New Ships to Extend Its Service to Black Sea Ports.

OTHERS AGREE ON PROGRAM

Brown Outlines Plans for 13 New Routes to Representatives of Three Ocean Lines.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Six new ships will be added to the Merchant Marine, extending service to the Black Sea ports, under the terms of a contract signed today by Postmaster General Brown and the American Export line of New York.

The contract, a supplemental one, calls for the construction of six 7,000-ton ships of fourteen knots speed by 1936, and an option on two more by 1938.

The ships will cost between $2,500,000 and $3,000,000 each, a total of not less than $20,000,000 for the fleet of eight. Two are already under construction and two more have been contracted for.

The contract involves additional annual subsidies of $600,000, bringing the mail payments to the American Export line to $1,600,000 a year.

The contract calls for one additional monthly sailing from New York via Piraeus, Salonica and Constantinople to Constanza, as well as three monthly sailings from New York via Odessa and Novorossysk to Batum. The new services were made effective at once.

General agreement with the ship construction program involved in the coming award of subsidy contracts on thirteen ocean mail routes, is understood to have been voiced by representatives of the Grace Line, the United Fruit Company and the Roosevelt Line, in a conference today with the Postmaster General.

More Conferences Today.

The conferences, which will be continued tomorrow with representatives of the United States Lines and with companies operating services to South American and Mediterranean ports, are preliminary to the calling for bids on the routes. The successful bidders will be required to build twenty-nine new vessels of an aggregate of 330,000 gross tons, at a cost of $175,000,000.

The Grace Line now operates on four of the new routes, including the New York-Valparaiso, Tacoma-Valparaiso, San Francisco-Puerto Colombia, and San Francisco-Corinto routes. The Postmaster General's program calls for the construction of four new 18-knot 8,000-ton vessels, and three 16-knot, 5,000-ton vessels.

The Roosevelt Line is expected to bid for the new North Atlantic service between Baltimore, Newport News and Hamburg, for which six new or reconditioned 16- knot 7,000-ton vessels will be required immediately, and two additional new 18-knot 8,000-ton vessels within the next five years.

It has been rumored here that the United States Lines may also bid for this route.

The United Fruit Company now operates on the New York-Port Limon run, for which three new 16-knot 7,000-ton vessels will be required.

Low-Interest Treasury Loan Oversubscribed More Than 100 Per Cent by Reserve Banks

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Secretary Mellon today made public, by Federal Reserve Districts, the allotments of $351,640,500 of subscriptions to the issue of 3¼ per cent nine months' treasury certificates of indebtedness, announced last Friday.

Of the allotments, $185,381,500 represents subscriptions for which treasury certificates of indebtedness series TD-1929 and TD 2-1929, which mature on Dec. 15, were tendered in payment. All such existing subscriptions were made on a graduated scale.

The total of all subscriptions received was $722,552,500, and the amount asked was $325,000,000, an oversubscription of well over 100 per cent, despite the fact that the interest rate has been dropped to 3¼ per cent, as compared with a 4% per cent offered on a similar issue in September, previous to the liquidation of security values on the Stock Exchange, and the release of billions tied up in brokers' loans.

Subscriptions by Districts.

The subscriptions and allotments were divided among the several Federal Reserve Districts and the Treasury as follows:

District.	Subscriptions.	Allotted.
New York	$200,384,000	$189,831,500
Boston	19,290,000	7,025,000
Philadelphia	42,122,000	16,500,000
Cleveland	23,930,500	11,881,000
Richmond	24,839,000	13,459,000
Atlanta	27,576,000	14,284,500
Chicago	66,685,000	45,141,000
St. Louis	7,096,500	5,176,000
Minneapolis	3,386,000	1,933,000
Kansas City	10,208,500	6,067,000
Dallas	26,452,000	14,009,500
San Francisco	157,012,500	26,174,000
Treasury	255,000	185,000
Total	$722,552,500	$351,640,500

The treasury now has before investors an offering of about $100,000,000 of non-interest bearing treasury bills, upon which bids will be received until Friday. These bills are to be sold at a discount of ninety days' maturity.

HAMMILL ATTACKS 'BIG TEN' ON IOWA

Says University Was Made the "Goat" to Protect "Implied Sanctity" of Others.

CRITICIZES TARIFF BILL

Governor Urges Higher Rates for Farm Products and Few Increases for Industry.

In a talk combining politics and college athletics, Governor John Hammill of Iowa charged yesterday that the Western Athletic Conference had expelled the University of Iowa without a fair hearing and pleaded for the adoption of a tariff favorable to agriculture. He spoke at a luncheon of the Western Universities Club at 11 West Fifty-third Street.

He asked that a tariff be adopted which adhered strictly to President Hoover's proposal for a general increase on the schedules for agricultural products and urged that industries receive increases only in those lines where unemployment now exists. The present schedules do not meet this proposal as they should, he said.

In discussing the expulsion of the University of Iowa from the Western Conference, or the Big Ten, and the recent refusal of the conference to reinstate the university, he said:

"When an organization is planning an action against one of its members, isn't it customary for it to take the member concerned into consultation and give him an opportunity to state his case? Why should Iowa not have been taken into consultation in such a manner in the Big Ten? It seems to me that our university should have had a full opportunity to present her case and that such an opportunity was not given.

"Further, I resent the effort by some institutions or individuals to preserve their own implied sanctity by making a goat of our university."

Governor Hammill based his plea for a tariff favorable to agriculture upon the need for avoiding "sectional differences." Industry cannot prosper if agriculture suffers and one part of the country cannot continue to prosper unless all parts prosper, he said.

"If we are not to be torn by sectional differences, industry and the industrial sections must recognize that agriculture must be protected," he declared. "It has long been argued that industry must be protected so there will be a market for raw products from the farm. American industry has been built on that basis and I think it is a sound one.

"Industry must recognize, however, that it is equally important that farm products be protected if the farmer is to be in a position to buy industrial products."

Governor Hammill endorsed President Hoover's marketing plans. The great difficulty in the Middle West has been that farmers have not marketed as efficiently as they have produced, he declared.

DIED FOR OTHERS' LOSSES.

Chicago Dentist Had Urged Two Employes to Buy Stocks.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11 (AP).—Not for his own stock market losses did Dr. Arthur Tanner kill himself last night. He was unmarried, without responsibilities. His two employes, however, were not so fortunate. They had followed his advice eagerly, investing everything and they had lost.

That, police said, was why the 39-year-old dentist took gas. They found he had bought stocks on margin and that early successes had led him to urge his young woman assistant and his laboratory aide to put their small savings out the same way. When the house of gold melted away it was a more severe loss to his young helpers than to Dr. Tanner himself. Worrying for them, he killed himself.

EXPERIMENTS MADE BY ROBOT CHEMIST

Automaton With Electric Eye, Radio Brains and Magnet Hands Controls Operations.

COLD LIGHT REPRODUCED

Gold Ball Weighing Millionth of Gram Is Analyzed at Electrical Meeting.

A robot chemist with an electric eye, radio brain and magnet hands functioned without human supervision in an improvised laboratory last night before members of the New York Electrical Society, at the Engineering Auditorium, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street.

The automatic chemist performed several experiments. Its work was explained by William C. MacTavish, professor of chemistry at New York University, and was part of a program in which cold light was reproduced, a sample weighing a millionth of a gram analyzed, a photo-electric cell used to control analysis and new scientific apparatus demonstrated.

In his talk on "The Magic of Modern Chemistry," Professor MacTavish demonstrated the separation of para-hydrogen and ortho-hydrogen. In the micro-analysis of a millionth of a gram, Professor MacTavish exhibited in the micro-projector a ball of gold weighing one thousandth of a milligram (one twenty-eight-millionth of an ounce), having a value of less than one tenthousandth of a cent.

The robot chemist was the joint creation of Dr. H. M. Partridge and Professor Ralph H. Muller of the department of chemistry at New York University. In explaining what the automatic chemist can do, Professor MacTavish said:

"The ability of the automatic chemist to control chemical operations is due to its sensitivity to slight variations in color and light intensity. Its working parts are very simple. They consist of a standard light source, in this case an electric light, a photo-electric cell which detects differences in the amount of light impinging on it, a radio tube which amplifies the signal received from the photo-electric cell and which operates the relays controlling the automatic valves.

"Between the electric light and the photo-electric cell is placed a glass vessel holding an alkali that is to be neutralized. Above is a tube from which an acid passes, drop by drop, through an automatic valve, into the alkali. A small amount of chemical indicator added to the alkali maintains a red color in it until it is neutralized. When a sufficient amount of the acid has dropped into the alkali, the red color disappears, indicating complete neutralization.

"When the solution is colored red, an insufficient amount of light gets through to the photo-electric cell. As the red color gradually diminishes, the amount of light passing through increases, and when the solution is entirely clear the light reaches a critical value which causes the photo-electric cell to pass a signal to the radio tube. This tube operates the relay which closes a valve and shuts off the supply of acid.

"Using a device of this sort to perform such operations around a laboratory will save a great deal of a chemist's time. Its electric eye is about 165 times as sensitive to differences in color as any human eye."

Rare Lithium Exhibited.

A large piece of lithium, a metal rarely seen in America, was on exhibition. It is so light as to float in oil and weighs one-fifteenth as much as iron. It burns spontaneously if exposed to the air. Lithium can be used as an alloy and is of special value in cases where clear, resonant tones are required, as in metals used in the casting of bells.

With a specially devised apparatus Professor MacTavish demonstrated how the presence of radium can be detected in human bones. A piece of bone from one of the radium victims in New Jersey was shown by use of an electroscope. He explained that it is because radium salts are impossible to dissolve that the condition of the radium victims was so dreadful.

In demonstrating reproduction of cold light, Professor MacTavish used the method evolved by Professor Harvey of Princeton. Luciferase and Luciferin, the two phases of substances which the firefly uses in producing light, were used. Professor MacTavish demonstrated that several substances, principally organic chemicals, have the property of producing light. He produced light from the invisible ultra-violet rays, and then extinguished the light by exposing it to the invisible infrared rays.

An almost invisible scratch made by metal on a piece of ground glass was analyzed. Through application of reagents the scratch changed from a mere smudge to a row of crystals characteristic of the metal used in making the scratch. The crystals in enlarged state were shown with microscope slides, the methods used being developed at New York University by Dr. A. Benedetti-Pichler and Professor J. B. Neiderl. It was said this method of analysis is invaluable in determining the composition of an object of art or a rare coin.

Work on Washington's Home.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Restoration of the birthplace of George Washington at Wakefield, Va., on the banks of the Potomac River will be pushed to at least partial completion by 1932, when the 200th anniversary of his birth will be celebrated. Members of the Commission of Fine Arts were gratified today to note the progress made on the restoration work. Sketches prepared by army engineers who surveyed the site of the old manor have been approved by the commission.

CALLS COL. ROGERS BRIDAL PLOT VICTIM

Ex-Secretary in Suit Over His Discharge Accuses Present Wife and Relatives.

SAYS THEY SOUGHT DIVORCE

Indicates They Represented Former Mrs. Miles as Related to Franz Josef—Demands $750,000.

The refusal of Supreme Court Justice Frankenthaler to seal the papers revealed yesterday a suit for $750,000 against the present wife of Colonel Henry H. Rogers, formerly Mrs. Basil Miles, and her cousins, Count Andre and Countess Marie Zichy, by Edward E. Kern of 1,165 Fifth Avenue, former private secretary to Colonel Rogers, on the ground that they "maliciously" caused his discharge.

Mr. Kern asserts their action was caused by an investigation he made at Colonel Rogers's request into the former mode of living of the present Mrs. Rogers, wedded by the financier in Paris last July 16 after the first Mrs. Rogers had obtained a divorce in Holland. Count Zichy gave his cousin in marriage at the ceremony in Paris, at which Dr. Alfred Gruenberger, Austrian Minister to France, and the Hungarian Chargé d'Affaires, were witnesses for Mrs. Rogers.

Seek to Strike Out Questions.

Mr. Kern, who was graduated from Bowdoin in 1911 and from Oxford in 1914, brought the suit some weeks ago and on Dec. 3 gave notice that he would ask for the examination of Mrs. Rogers and the Zichys before trial. The law firm of Adrian H. Larkin, which has represented Colonel Rogers in the past, moved before Justice Frankenthaler on Monday to strike out part of the questioning on which the motion for an examination before trial was based, as scandalous, including a proposed question as follows:

"Whether or not, from December, 1928, until June 5, 1929, the defendants and each of them represented to Henry H. Rogers that the defendant Rogers (then known as Daisy von Braun Miles) was a member of the Hapsburg family, to wit, an illegitimate daughter of Franz Josef, Emperor of Austria, and represented to Henry H. Rogers that the defendant Rogers received an income and other emoluments from the Hapsburgs."

Justice Frankenthaler denied the defendant's motion to strike out the objectionable questions and also refused to seal the papers as requested, and named Joseph Force Crater as referee to take the testimony of the defendants at a time to be fixed by him.

Mr. Kern alleges that from Sept. 15, 1915, to June 5 last he was secretary to Colonel Rogers, except for twenty-two months in war service. He had a written contract for his employment by Colonel Rogers until Dec. 31, 1933, he alleges, and an oral understanding that he would remain with his employer during the latter's lifetime. He declared that Colonel Rogers had agreed to pay him a pension and that in a will made prior to his discharge Colonel Rogers provided a "substantial" sum for him. In the course of his employment he says, he received information from Colonel Rogers concerning securities pools, and his employer financed his participation in these pools, from which he made a profit. All this source of income had vanished because of his discharge, he says.

Calls Revenge a Motive.

Declaring that his discharge was "malicious," Mr. Kern says "it was done among other reasons to obtain revenge upon the plaintiff because the plaintiff in the course of his employment with Henry H. Rogers, and under the specific orders of Mr. Rogers, had investigated and obtained information concerning the defendant's (Margit Borbala Braun Rogers's) birth, family, social standing, previous history and mode of living, and had communicated to Henry H. Rogers the result of the investigation."

The complaint alleges further that "the defendants falsely and maliciously stated to Henry H. Rogers that the information was inaccurate, and that the plaintiff had been inefficient in his investigation; that plaintiff was unnecessarily expensive for Henry H. Rogers; that he disobeyed instruction of Henry H. Rogers, and that he was incompetent." Declaring that these statements were all false, Mr. Kern says:

"The plaintiff's discharge was an important step in a conspiracy in which defendants, together with one Rosa Moscowicz, the mother of the defendant, Margit Borbala Braun Rogers, and one Alfred Gruenberger, were engaged with the object of procuring the divorce of Henry H. Rogers from his wife, Mary Benjamin Rogers, and to marry Henry H. Rogers to defendant, Margit Borbala Braun Rogers. To successfully carry out the aforesaid conspiracy it was essential to cause the plaintiff to be dismissed and thus remove Henry H. Rogers from any influence other than the influence of the conspirators."

Kern asserts finally that Mrs. Mary Benjamin Rogers divorced Henry H. Rogers three weeks later.

Defense Introduces Letter.

The defendants in their answers deny knowledge of Mr. Kern's claims to exceptional financial opportunities as Colonel Rogers's secretary and set up as an affirmative defense a letter written by Colonel Rogers to the plaintiff on June 3 last, which read:

"My Dear Kern: I regret to tell you that after July 31, 1930, I shall have no further need of your services. After July 31, 1929, I give you one year's leave of absence with full pay. As soon as you desire it, I shall be very glad to furnish you with a reference covering all periods of your employment by me."

Mr. Kern's lawyers applied to strike out the defense that Colonel Rogers gave his former secretary a year's salary and let him go, but Justice Frankenthaler decided to let it remain in the answer. The defendants sought to have references to Alfred Gruenberger, Austrian Minister to France, stricken from the papers on the ground that he is not a defendant and his name had been brought in to cause him embarrassment.

In an affidavit opposing the sealing of the papers Mr. Kern said that Mr. Larkin, attorney for the defendants, had warned him repeatedly during the eighteen months before his discharge that "I would lose my position because of the defendant, Margit Borbala Braun Rogers."

"Littleton Fox, another of my former employer's attorneys, who collaborated with me when conducting the investigation," he continued, "similarly warned me twice and brought to the attention of my employer the fact that my activities in the investigation would very likely result in the loss of my position. My employer replied that my job was good and I need fear nothing, or words to that effect."

The present Mrs. Rogers is a native of Budapest. Her first husband was Peabody Savell, an engineer of New York and Atlanta, whom she divorced in Paris. She was married there in 1925 to Basil Miles, former American Commissioner to the International Chamber of Commerce, at which time her godfather, John H. McDonald and William Phillips, then American Minister to Belgium signed the marriage register. Mr. Miles died in Washington in June, 1928.

LAUDS FREEDOM OF PRESS.

Dr. Will of Rutgers Says Newspapers Are Under No Outside Control.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Dec. 11.—The leading newspapers of today are distinctive in that they are not only strong but free, Dr. Allen Sinclair Will, head of the department of journalism of Rutgers University, and professor of journalism at Columbia University, declared in a radio address over Station WOR this afternoon.

He said that the honorable service they perform in turning the light on the doings of the world is the only claim they have to confidence or support.

"Does some unseen hand in the background control, in whole or in part, this complicated and almost mysterious process of issuing a New York daily?" Dr. Will inquired. "Is the power of the politician or the industrial king or the merchant or any other power greater than the power of truth in news which the editors, the reporters, all the regimented army of the newspaper represent? It is not."

Production of a great daily in New York was the best example of the world's journalism, he declared, excelling in the completeness of the coverage of news, in accuracy, in skill in telling the news and in all the numberless details that make up a good newspaper.

ADMITS CUBA LOBBY ASKED TARIFF FIGHT

the association to all Congressmen, Governors and Mayors of Cuba, and to the leading economic associations and the newspapers. Suggestions could be made to the newspaper editors to circulate the brief among their newspaper correspondents in other Latin-American countries.

"I suppose there must be many persons in Havana who correspond for other Latin-American newspapers. There are also Cubans who have been in the diplomatic service, who are acquainted with prominent men in other countries to whom they could send copies of the briefs, with suggestions that their friends circulate these copies and obtain, if possible, comments of the foreign members.

"Necessarily, two or three reliable friends would have to be selected by you to undertake the work in a confidential and competent manner. I do not see how I could do anything of that kind here in New York.

"How does the idea strike you? If it is to accomplish any good, it ought to be done immediately. The crucial time will be during the next six weeks. Within a few days a subcommittee of the Ways and Means Committee will start to work on the sugar and molasses schedule, and the pressure of public opinion ought to begin to be exerted before their work is finished.

"We have now firm subscriptions for $85,000 for our fund, and probably will receive some additional money. It has all been subscribed by nine companies, but they represent at least a majority of Cuban production.

"Thus far only one company which I have approached has failed to contribute. Mr. Shattuck tells me that he was anxious to have some Cuban contributions, but I think that for the present it is better to leave the responsibility to the American companies, especially as the members of Congress are very sensitive about any foreign interference with what they regard as a purely national matter.

"Mr. Shattuck was in Washington for the inauguration and did some work on this matter while there. I expect to go to Washington tomorrow. Our present plans are that he and I shall spend from two to three days each week in Washington. I find the work very exacting. If it were not for having a good organization, my regular business would be entirely neglected, but if we can accomplish anything at all in Washington the time will have been well spent on behalf of Cuba.

"H. L. LAKIN."

The letter of Feb. 19, 1929, from Mr. Lakin to Senor Abaill follows:

"I enclose two clippings from El Camagueyana, which, as you know, is published by Walfredo Rodriguez.

"One of them refers to a proposition for a delegation of Masons to go to Washington and importune members of Congress who are also Masons. Here in New York the Masons do not have much influence in economic matters, being purely a fraternal organization.

"I have been informed, however, that in other parts of the United States the Masons are inclined to assist one another in matters of an economic nature. Therefore, it might really be a good thing if a committee of Cuban Masons should go quietly, and without any publicity whatever, to members of Congress who are Masons. If such a committee is formed and desires any help from me, please tell them to command me.

"The other clipping relates to a letter which the Rotarians have sent to all the Rotary Clubs in the United States. This letter is likely to have more influence than the undertaking of the Masons, because the Rotary Clubs are formed on the basis of economics, instead of fraternal relations.

"I should think that the letter ought to be followed up by a request to the various Rotary Clubs in the United States that their members communicate, either in writing or personally, with their Congressmen. I enclose a document which I prepared in the form of an address to the householders of the United States, in which I have undertaken to express, in brief form, practically all the Cuban arguments.

"It might be that either the Masons or the Rotarians could get from this document some suggestions in connection with their propaganda. In the case of both the Masons and the Rotarians, I hope that they will not cease in their efforts. The mere writing of a letter, without following it up, probably will not accomplish much, but I do see considerable advantage and benefit in the Rotarian movement if it is proceeded with and not dropped at the present stage."

Mr. Lakin will resume his testimony before the committee tomorrow.

COLUMBIA ANNOUNCES $30,152 IN DONATIONS

$5,000 Given for Public Health Research and $3,500 to Mental Clinic.

Gifts and bequests to Columbia University totaling $30,152.71 were announced yesterday by the board of trustees. The resignation of Professor Robert H. Montgomery of the accounting department was also announced, together with the granting of a leave of absence to Professor Philip C. Jessup of the international law department, and the promotion of D. Stuart Dodge Jessup to the assistant professorship of Clinical Pathology.

It was further announced that Professor Edmond Farral has been assigned to the philosophy faculty for the Winter session as the visiting French professor. Dr. Irving Langmuir, who is to receive the Chandler Medal tomorrow at a meeting of the American Chemical Society in Havemeyer Hall, has been appointed Chandler Lecturer for the current year. Other appointees are George W. Cachman, who has been named Professor of Parasitology in the School of Tropical Medicine, and Fred Clarke invited as the visiting Professor of Education for the Spring session.

Among the donors are Miss Louise N. Grace, who has given $5,000 toward the work of the De Lamar Institute of Public Health, and Professor and Mrs. Frederick S. Lee, who have presented a like sum, to be expended at the discretion of the university administration. Mead, Johnson & Co. have donated $3,500 to the department of pathology to be used for special research.

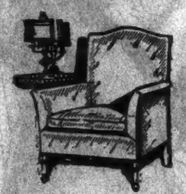
HATHAWAY'S

Usefulness and beauty share the honors in Christmas gifts like these

SOME seek gifts of beauty, some seek useful gifts—but seldom does one find both virtues in a single Christmas remembrance. Yes, it is rare indeed—except in Hathaway furniture. And that is why Hathaway furniture is so enthusiastically received. Here there are gifts galore for every taste—and purse.

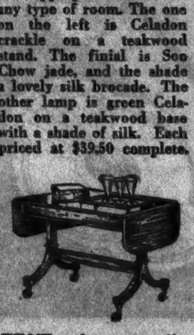


A DEEPLY comfortable gift that will give pleasure for many years. Custom made throughout and covered in an assortment of fine fabrics, its price is $59.

FOR sheer usefulness what can excel a tea wagon? Here is one to be had in either walnut and gumwood or mahogany and gumwood. Drop leaves, removable glass tray. Offered at $29.50.

A LOW nest of tables in fine walnut with gracefully twisted legs. The tops are bordered and beautifully grained. The largest measures 14"x22". Price, $45.

HAVE you thought of lamps? The ones shown are in the Chinese manner—so appropriate to almost any type of room. The one on the left is Celadon crackle on a teakwood stand. The finial is Soo Chow jade, and the shade a lovely silk brocade. The other lamp is green Celadon on a teakwood base with a shade of silk. Each priced at $39.50 complete.



HOW welcome a coffee table in the home that has always wished for one! Hathaway's offers this charming example in the Duncan Phyfe tradition. It is fashioned in fine mahogany. Height 20". Top 20"x 27", leaves down; 20"x42", leaves up. Priced at $45.

IF YOU own a secretary yourself, you know what a blessing it is—and thus understand why secretaries are such very welcome gifts. The one shown is fashioned in fine mahogany, with a shaped apron and claw and ball feet. The interior is particularly attractive. Specially priced at $78.

WEST SIDE PLAN WINS APPROVAL OF I. C. C.

Last Obstacle to $140,000,000 Project Removed by Ruling to Allow Track Relocation.

OFFICIALS HERE HAIL STEP

CITY READY TO START, TOO

Transit Commission Will Give Every Aid—State's Help on Cost Will Be Sought.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—By granting the New York Central Railroad the right to relocate its tracks on the west side of Manhattan in New York, the Interstate Commerce Commission removed today the final obstacle to an immediate start upon the $140,000,000 grade crossing elimination and riverfront improvement project to which the railroad and the city are committed by a contract executed on July 5.

The signing of the contract by Mayor Walker and officers of the railroad marked the end of more than forty years of controversy over removal of the railroad's tracks at grade on the west side, with special reference to the "Death Avenue" stretch along Twelfth Avenue, where many lives were lost in accidents.

Road Ready to Let Contracts.

The commission's certificate authorizes the railroad to abandon five miles of its freight tracks from West Sixtieth Street to St. John's Park and North Moore Street and to replace them with four and a half miles of track, without grade crossings, from Sixtieth to Spring Street. The railroad is already prepared to let the contracts for the work involved and the city has planned an expenditure of about $25,000,000 in 192` for its share of the cost of grade crossing removal and general improvement in connection with the enlarged plan.

The cost of the entire project, as authorized by the commission's decision, was estimated at a recent hearing at $138,737,500, of which the railroad would shoulder $120,872,800 and the State and city $17,864,700. Under its contract with the city the railroad must remove all its tracks from the streets at the points mentioned within the next five years.

The commission acted upon the application with unusual rapidity. The petition was submitted on Oct. 15 and a hearing held soon afterward, at which no opposition was voiced. Recently Mayor Walker asked for a prompt decision and was assured that speedy action would be taken. The report upon which the decision was based was made by Commissioners Meyer, Eastman and Woodlock and was unanimous Separate Opinion Offered.

Commissioner Eastman, however, submitted a separate opinion in which, while concurring in the decision, he declared that too great a share of the expense was being placed upon the railroad, considering the great benefits to be received by the city. He suggested that the city should build the new trackage and lease it to the railroad at a rental, imposing a large part of the cost on itself. This, Commissioner Eastman said, could be offset by assessing betterments upon adjoining property immediately benefited.

The cost to the railroad of constructing the four and one-half miles of new trackage, Commissioner Eastman declared, would be the same as that of building a new railroad line from New York to Chicago at an average cost of $133,000 a mile. This, he asserted, was too great a burden to place upon those who used the facilities.

Commissioner Eastman's opinion, however, conceded his own "very inadequate knowledge of the situation" and said that he was "considering what ought to be possible, rather than what happens now to be legally possible."

In its report the commission pointed out that nothing had been decided as to the kind and amount of securities to be issued to finance the improvement. It indicated that it expected the railroad to submit soon an application covering this feature of its plans.

Plan Includes Viaduct.

The project as described by the commission called for construction of a double track viaduct north from Spring Street to Thirtieth Street, immediately west of the westerly line of Washington Street, a substantial part to be built on private right of way. The new line would then descend below street level and underground construction with five tracks would extend from a point near Tenth Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street to Sixtieth Street. Operation would be by electricity from Thirtieth Street to Sixtieth Street and by Diesel locomotives south of Thirtieth Street. The commission's report pointed out that the company's plan had been approved by the city, the Transit Commission, the Port of New York Authority and other interested parties.

The railroad's tracks north of new yards at Sixtieth Street are to be adapted to an extensive improvement plan under the contract with the city. The plan provides for a west side express motor highway, extensive landscaping and recreational improvements in Riverside Park and the construction of a new bridge at the north end of Manhattan.

The commission's report follows:

The New York Central Railroad Company, a carrier by railroad subject to the Interstate Commerce act, on July 29, 1929, filed an application under Section 1 (18) of the act for a certificate that the present and future public convenience and necessity require the abandonment of its freight line extending from a point near West Sixtieth Street southerly to St. John's Park and North Moore Street, a distance of approximately five miles, substantially all at grade in city streets on the west side of the borough of Manhattan, New York, N. Y. Authority is also sought to construct and operate a line without grade crossings to extend from West Sixtieth Street southerly to Spring Street, a distance of approximately 4.5 miles. A hearing has been held and no objections to the granting of the application have been presented to us.

The trackage proposed to be changed according to the plans prepared, is part of the applicant's freight line which extends southerly about thirteen miles from a junction with the main line at Spuyten Duyvil, in the northern part of Manhattan, to a freight terminal at St. John's Park. Plans for improvement and enlargement of these facilities, with elimination of grade crossings, have been the subject of study, negotiation and litigation between the railroad company and the city for many years. On the part of the company, the great difficulties of operation in streets congested by vehicular and pedestrian traffic, together with the impossibility of expansion, have been the impelling forces toward a solution of the problem. On the part of the city, the injuries to persons using the streets and the interference with street traffic have caused constant activity in the matter.

Mayor Set Up Committee.

After the unsuccessful attempts of several city administrations to evolve a satisfactory plan, the Mayor of New York in July, 1926, created the West Side Improvement Engineering Committee. Represented on this committee were the city, by the chief engineers of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, the Board of Transportation and the Borough of Manhattan; the railroad company by its chief engineer and the Port of New York Authority by its deputy manager. The last-named body is a legally constituted agent of the Federal Government and the States of New York and New Jersey, and is engaged in preparing a plan for the development of the port of New York. The plan here submitted by the applicant does not conflict with any changes or arrangements contemplated by the Port Authority.

After careful study, the above-mentioned committee adopted a general plan, in which grade-crossings were shown eliminated in May, 1927. This was promptly approved by the city and the railroad company, and later, with slight modification by the Transit Commission of the State of New York. Following this, an agreement for carrying out the work was executed by the city and the company, and this was also approved by the Transit Commission, which thereby ordered the elimination of the grade-crossings under the authority conferred on it by State law.

The adopted plan for the west side improvement, dated May 13, 1927, revised May 13, 1929, besides carrying the official approval of the company, the city, the Port Authority and the Transit Commission, was sanctioned by many large civic organizations. In so far as it is the basis of the application presented to us, it may be briefly described as follows:

Project Is Outlined.

Abandonment of the freight tracks at St. John's Park, together with the property upon which they are located between Varick, Beach, Hudson and Laight Streets, is to be accompanied by abandonment of the double track line extending northward on Canal Street, West Street, Tenth Avenue and Eleventh Avenue, to the classification and distributing yard near Sixtieth Street. A small team yard located between Seventeenth and Eighteenth Streets is to be eliminated. A larger yard, between Thirtieth and Thirty-third Streets, used for local distribution and collection, is to be rebuilt and enlarged.

The proposed line will extend northerly from the Spring Street Yard on a double track viaduct to be placed immediately west of the west line of Washington Street. Crossing over Tenth Avenue, near Seventeenth Street, it will be constructed largely on private right of way 100 feet west of Tenth Avenue and so located because of the advantage gained with respect to property values and large buildings. At Thirtieth Street the proposed line will enter a loop in order to descend from a level above the streets to a level below them. Underground construction, with five tracks, will extend from a point near Tenth Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street northward to Thirtieth Street, in which distance the location will be within the area between Tenth and Eleventh Avenues. North of the Sixtieth Street yard the improvement does not involve any abandonment of line and is not covered by the application. Operation will be by electricity as far south as Thirtieth Street. Diesel locomotives will be used south of that point and generally in the yards.

West Side Line Vital.

The applicant considers its line on the west side of Manhattan to be a very important part of the freight facilities of the system. Approximately 1,000 cars pass through Spuyten Duyvil in each direction daily and 400 cars are moved in each direction over the southern part of the line. A large amount of milk and perishable freight from consumers in the city is handled. While not much mail is carried at present, a considerable amount is expected if and when the government develops its projected mail terminal on property which, according to the testimony, has been acquired for that purpose between Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth Streets on Ninth and Tenth Avenues. The applicant expects a substantial increase in industrial development along the line. Its plans contemplate the erection of buildings over the tracks in their proposed locations and provide space off the streets for loading and unloading trucks. The improvement will greatly increase the capacity of the rail facilities south of Sixtieth Street. No diversion of freight from the applicant's West Shore Division, whose terminals are in New Jersey, is under consideration.

The entire project involves an estimated expenditure of $120,872,800 by the applicant and $17,864,700 by the State and the city. Under the State law the State is required to bear forty-nine per cent and the city one per cent of the cost of eliminating grade crossings. The city, in addition, proposes to construct an elevated motor highway north of Seventy-second Street and above the applicant's tracks. Of the expenditure to be made by the applicant, $23,073,030 is applicable to new facilities for furnishing electric power and for the purchase of thirty or thirty-five Diesel locomotives. Nothing has been decided as to the kind and amount of securities to be issued in order to finance this large improvement.

Undecided on St. John's Park.

South of Sixtieth Street the estimated outlay by the applicant, exclusive of electric power facilities and locomotives is $69,450,893. The investment cost of property to be retired is stated to be $4,074,196. The disposition of the applicant's land at St. John's Park has not been decided. It will not be used for railroad purposes or have track connections. The engineering assistant to the applicant's president would not place a value on this land. In connection with the elimination of grade crossings south of Sixtieth Street, the State and city will expend between $13,000,000 and $14,000,000. The program contemplates the removal of all tracks from the streets within five years.

The consummation of this project will result in a large and long-desired improvement, both to the applicant's rail facilities and to the section of the city affected. Upon the facts presented we find that the present and future public convenience and necessity require the abandonment of line, and the construction and operation of the proposed line described in the application. An appropriate certificate will be issued.

Report by Eastman.

Commissioner Eastman, concurring, in a separate report said:

In view of the tremendous amount of time which has been devoted to this project by municipal, State and railroad representatives and their agreement upon the plans which we are in effect asked to approve, and in view of my own very inadequate knowledge of the situation, I would not be justified in setting my opinion against theirs even if I had a more positive conviction with respect to the project than I now entertain. Yet I think that there are some aspects of this matter to which attention may well be directed.

The New York Central is to spend upwards of $120,000,000 upon less than five miles of line in the City of New York. This expenditure would build a new railroad line between New York and Chicago at an average cost of $133,000 per mile. The project is partly for the benefit of the New York Central in handling its traffic, but very largely, apparently, for the relief of street traffic congestion in the city. Yet the great bulk of the expenditure is to be borne by the railroad and hence by those who use its facilities, whether or not they live in New York City or in cities many miles away. Doubtless the improvement will result in large increases in the values of adjoining real estate. The New York Central, as a corporation, may reap some compensating benefits from these increases if it has been forehanded enough to acquire in advance some of these properties, either directly or through a subsidiary corporation.

But under the law of the land as interpreted by the Supreme Court, these compensating benefits will not accrue to the advantage of the users of the New York Central's carrier facilities. They will be held to pay a return upon the fair value of these facilities and so far as this new line is concerned the increases in value of adjoining non-carrier property will merely have the effect of increasing the value of the land occupied by the new line substantially above original cost.

Suggests City-Owned Line.

I think that I can conceive of a better way of accomplishing such a project than the one which is proposed—better at least for the general public. This way would be for the city of New York to construct and own the new line, just as it constructs and owns the subways used by the rapid transit lines. The city would then lease the new line to the railroad company at a rental which would take into consideration the comparative benefits to be derived from its construction, by the city and by the railroad. This lease would, I assume, throw a large part of the burden of the new line upon the city because of its greater benefits. To offset this burden, however, the city would assess betterments upon the adjoining property immediately benefited, or it could acquire such property in advance of construction and reap itself the profits from the increment in land values by subsequent sales.

I am, of course, disregarding possible constitutional objections and considering what ought to be possible rather than what happens now to be legally possible. A plan of some such nature would, it seems to be, protect the users of the railroad against an unjust burden, distribute the burden where it equitably belongs and prevent the reaping by a few of large and unearned profits.

Officials Here Hail Decision.

Word of the Interstate Commerce Commission's decision, granting the New York Central the right to relocate its west side tracks, was received with satisfaction yesterday by Mayor Walker, Chairman Fullen of the Transit Commission and Charles C. Paulding, vice president of the railroad. It was generally conceded that there remained no further obstacles in the way of an immediate start upon the "enlarged plan" for west side improvement.

Mayor Walker withheld specific comment until he had a chance to read and study the opinion, but it is understood that he will act at once to have a start made on the city's part of the project. In a recent letter to the commission he declared that the city was prepared to spend $25,000,000 upon the work in 1930.

Chairman Fullen said last night that the Transit Commission was ready to give all possible cooperation to prompt beginning of work by the railroad company.

"We are quite pleased with the news," Mr. Paulding declared. "We will begin work immediately."

The railroad has already let contracts for demolition of small structures along the right of way and these have been approved by the Transit Commission. It is understood that contracts for the actual crossing elimination work have been tentatively entered into and will soon be submitted to the Transit Commission for approval.

The railroad has already notified the Transit Commission and the State Controller of its intention to seek State aid, under the grade crossings law of 1928, in financing its part of the cost. Under the law the company may obtain a loan out of proceeds of the sale of bonds authorized by the law.

COOLIDGE HAILED AS AMERICAN TYPE

Hughes Says He Dignifies Name in Making Him a Member of Genealogical Society.

LAUDS HIS CHARACTER

Former President Calvin Coolidge became an honorary member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society yesterday afternoon. The honor was conferred upon him as one who "typified the American character and dignified the American name," by Charles Evans Hughes, himself an honorary member of the society, at the dedication of the new building at 124 East Fifty-eight Street. Mr. Coolidge sat immobile in a front row on the platform and made no response except a bow of acknowledgment to the laudatory remarks of Mr. Hughes.

"There can be no greater tribute to the perpetuating strength of the New England tradition," Mr. Hughes said, "than could be no more satisfactory proof that this salt of our American life has not lost its savor, than the influence and authority of them ost distinguished of his line in the twentieth century, Calvin Coolidge."

Lauds Former President."

"Mr. Coolidge, you have brought to the highest office within the gift of the American people, integrity, prudence, practicality and the hard common sense which gave you their trust and confidence to a degree most extraordinary and rare during your period of actual administration. It was not the rapture of the idolatry of a popular hero; it was not the unintelligent acclaim of a populace fired by a demagogical appeal, it was nothing that savored of a transient emotion. It was the perfect, the complete reliance upon one who with honesty, industry, experience and sagacity was, called by an extraordinary sequence of events to the greatest responsibilities and met them with an invincible poise and a rare adaptation.

"You have said in simple but eloquent words, 'We draw our Presidents from the people. It is a wholesome thing that we should return them.' You have said, 'I am from them. It is my wish to return to them again—to be one of them again.' You are one of them and it is because you are one of them that they acclaim and exalt you and it is because you are one of them that you have typified the American character and dignified the American name that I have the honor of announcing your election as an honorary member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society."

Mr. Coolidge arose, bowed acknowledgment and abruptly sat down, with the applause of the audience ringing in his ears. Clarence Winthrop Bowen, president of the society, who presided, recognized Mr. Coolidge's disinclination to speak by remarking:

"Actions speak louder than words," with a gesture toward the new honorary member. After a moment of silent tribute to the memory of deceased members and the benediction by the Rev. Dr. Henry A. Stimson, the audience adjourned upstairs to inspect the library and portrait gallery containing a new picture of Mr. Coolidge.

Turns Over New Building.

William Ross Proctor, first vice president of the society, made the short presentation speech turning over the new building to the trustees and it was accepted by Mr. Bowen.

Coolidge to Get Chair Used in Cabinet Room; It Will Be a Present From Mellon and Davis

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The chair in which he presided for more than five years over meetings of his Cabinet will be presented to ex-President Coolidge as a Christmas present by Secretaries Mellon and Davis. It has been purchased from the disbursing officer of the White House, done over by a local furniture dealer, and will soon be shipped to Northampton, Mass., to greet Mr. Coolidge at the Christmas festival.

Sentiment surrounds the chairs which Presidents and Cabinet members have occupied and there is always a desire to retain them. It was learned today that George Akerson, the President's secretary, purchased for Mr. Hoover the chair in which the present Chief Executive sat as Secretary of Commerce, and that the chair is now either in the White House or at Mr. Hoover's former S Street residence.

Quite a number of chairs have been bought in the past by former Cabinet members. Ex-Secretary Whiting took his to his home in Massachusetts. Members of the Hoover Cabinet, and the President himself, have arranged to obtain the chair in which the late Secretary Good sat and to send it at Christmas to his widow.

The Cabinet chairs are identical in size and design, each with a brass plate on the back bearing the name and office of the occupant. They are said to be valued at between $95 and $100 each.

ORTIZ RUBIO ON AIR TONIGHT

Mexican President-Elect to Talk Over WABC and Columbia Chain.

Pascual Ortiz Rubio, President-elect of Mexico, will broadcast a five-minute message to the American people this evening at 8 o'clock over Station WABC and the Columbia System.

Señor Ortiz Rubio spent yesterday in his suite at the Ambassador Hotel, where he explained that he was "resting." Several Mexican representatives in this country called upon him, but he did not go out. Tonight's talk marks his first public address since he arrived in New York.

Iselin Annoyer Sent to Bellevue.

William White, 30 years old, who several times called at the home of Mrs. Pauline Iselin, wife of the banker Ernest Iselin, at 144 East Sixty-fifth Street and insisted she was his "long-lost mother," was sent to Bellevue Hospital yesterday for ten days' observation by Magistrate Farrell in Harlem Court. Last Saturday night White disrupted a bridge party at the Iselin home.

said they were powerless to enforce installation of a sprinkler system in the belief that only five reels of film were in storage in the plant, an inspector reported that at times he had found as many as forty-five reels in the safe. The inspector was informed, he said, that these reels were not "in storage" but were for use in current productions and did not therefore come within the purview of the regulations. The bureau, it was said, was satisfied with this explanation.

Fire Chief John Kenlon, another who reported preliminary facts to the Mayor, put the blame for the loss of life on the failure of employes of the studio to turn in an alarm at once instead of trying to fight the blaze themselves.

Commissioner Dorman in responding to the request of the Mayor earlier in the day for a statement on the investigations, sent the initial review of the inquiry to City Hall late in the afternoon. The commissioner informed the Mayor that conditions made anything but preliminary reports impossible. He forwarded what Chief Kenlon, Peter C. Spence, chief of the Fire Prevention Bureau, Fire Marshal Brophy and others had discovered up to date.

The course the Mayor will pursue as a result of this document was not learned. The Mayor was not at City Hall during the day, being occupied with a conference on transit. Charles S. Hand, his secretary, who received the report, said he was not at liberty to reveal its contents.

Fire Marshal Brophy disclosed however, a good share of what he had uncovered in a discussion of evidence gained from Robert Emmet Carney, an actor, who was on the "set."

"One of the things that has puzzled the investigators," said the Fire Marshal, "is that the blaze was several feet above the floor level when discovered. We found an important witness late today, Carney, a comedian, who was on the stage rehearsing and was facing the camera, which was focussed on him at the time. He was facing the west wall of the studio when he heard an electrician's voice say: 'Get that back drop.'"

Carney told the Fire Marshal that he turned and saw the black velvet drop in flames. He ran over with three electricians and tried to tear the drop down. Part of it fell, he said, and behind he saw a large flood light, two feet in diameter, still burning in a mass of flame-licked scenery. Just then, he said, the order was given to "cut the lights."

"This, no doubt, accounts for the fire breaking out above the floor level," said Mr. Brophy. "Carney said the fire was heavy and that the property man, probably the one who lost his life, was trying to work with a hose. He said he told one of the men about the lamp, but the electrician there said there was no lamp burning at the time. Carney said the face of the lamp was quite large. The big feature of the investigation today is the story about this lamp."

Discount Arc Light Theory

While testimony of Richard Stradling, house maintenance man, in Harlem Hospital, badly burned, was that the carbon arc light on the platform to which the curtain was attached was glowing brightly at the time of the blaze, evidence of electricians was brought forward to indicate that this lamp was turned off twenty minutes before the flames were seen.

Edward Lasher of Elmont, L. I., an electrician in charge of a spotlight in the balcony, revealed that Carl A. Kramer, another electrician who lost his life trying to tear the curtain away, was not at his post at the arc light when the fire started. Lasher said he and Kramer were having a cup of coffee in the lunch room at the time and ran out when the excitement started. Mr. Brophy said there was no evidence of defective wiring and asserted that the discovery that the floor lamp had been close enough to the velvet drop to ignite it apparently cleared up the origin of the flames.

Bernard Lynch, an assistant inspector of combustibles, was the man who reported to the Fire Prevention Bureau regarding the discovery of the reels of film in the studio. It was explained that an application had been made in March to permit Sound Studios, Inc., to keep 1,000 reels of film on the premises. This was denied, he said yesterday in the office of Chief Spence of the bureau. The studio, he said, was allowed by an order of the Board of Standards and Appeals to operate without sprinklers provided there were at no time more than five reels in storage.

"I went there last March," he said, "and finding no sprinklers recommended that a new permit be withheld. On May 15 the Fire Department sent a letter to the studio granting the permit but stipulating that a sprinkler system should be installed. It was agreed, however, that this was not obligatory providing the minimum of five reels in storage was observed. I made another visit on Aug. 10 and one more before my final visit on Nov. 7. Each time I found that no sprinklers had been installed, but that the agreement had been adhered to.

"In the basement vault, which the order of May 15 had said should be used only 'for the storage of such films as are being used for the picture in progress' I found often as many as fifty reels stored. These, company officials convinced me, were being used for the picture at which they were at work at the time. Some of these I found to be inflammable."

Chief Spence recalled, when asked, that in the original order of 1919, which allowed the studio to operate with only standpipe protection from fire, the preamble contained a representation on the part of the operators of the studio that its working force was no more than thirty persons. More than 100 were in the building at the time of the fire. The chief also said that the basement film vault was still under six feet of water.

Says Time Was Wasted.

Fire Chief Kenlon in criticizing the delay in turning in the alarm pointed out that fire companies were at the burning building six minutes after the first call was sounded. He said the employes wasted too much time trying to check the blaze themselves, instead of first turning in the alarm.

By the time the alarm was sounded, said the Chief, and the apparatus arrived, it was too late to save the lives of the men and women who were trapped by flame and smoke. He added that the first outburst of flame had caught those on the balcony where the dressing rooms were located, and had started them down the stairs where the second sweep of flame killed those who had fallen in the crush to escape. The Chief also reiterated that full investigation of the fire hazards created by the new talking picture industry was required to insure proper safeguards.

District Attorney Banton had this to say about his investigation: "We will have to be limited in our investigation as to crime and all our investigations must be directed to determine whether any person committed a crime in this sad occurrence. The Police and Fire Departments are working diligently, and Assistant District Attorney P. Francis Marro has been working with them. There is a report that there is a vault on the property filled with inflammable films. I have instructed the Police and Fire Departments not to permit the removal of anything from the property without first conferring with my office. My action in the case will depend on the evidence adduced, and if it develops that any one alive was guilty of causing the death of these persons we will proceed against that person or persons in the homicide court. This will be my course unless something arises that requires a secret inquiry by the grand jury.

Tenement House Commissioner William F. Deegan announced that a general campaign to clean up all fire hazards coming under his jurisdiction had been ordered by Mayor Walker as a result of the fire. Instructions to this effect also went to Charles Brady, superintendent of the Building Department. Commissioner Deegan said he issued special orders to his department heads to report all fire hazards to him within twenty-four hours and to enforce immediate removal instead of granting the customary five days' grace. Failure to correct such hazards, he said, would be prosecuted at once in the magistrate's court and Chief Magistrate McAdoo, he added, had promised his assistance.

At the headquarters of the Motion Picture Studio Mechanics, Local 52 at 67 West 125th Street, it was announced by S. J. Scoppa, business manager, that the union would sponsor a theatrical benefit performance for the families of the four union members who were killed in the studio fire, Kramer, Charles Koerble, Robert Nussman and Jack Quinn and of the other victims. Funeral services for the four men will be held at their homes tomorrow morning.

"We will ask the cooperation of the entire moving picture industry in New York to help us in this performance," said Mr. Scoppa.

At the morgue last night it was said that all the bodies of the victims, except that of Joseph Bishoff, had been claimed by friends or relatives. It was expected that Bishoff's would be removed today.

PLAN STUDIO FIRE BENEFIT.

Three Casts Volunteer for Show to Aid Girl Victims.

To aid the families of the chorus girl victims of the fire on Tuesday at the Pathé Manhattan Studio, a performance will be staged this Saturday at midnight at the Imperial Theatre by the companies of "Sons o' Guns," "The Little Show" and Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book."

Nearly all the members of these companies will appear, including Fred Allen, Clifton Webb, Libby Holman, Helen Lynd, Romney Brent, Jack Donahue, Lily Damita, William Frawley, Milton Watson, Shirley Vernon, Mary Horan, Will Mahoney, William Demarest, the Three Sailors and Patsy Kelly.

George M. Cohan, Beatrice Lillie, Gertrude Lawrence, Fannie Brice, George Gershwin, Dorothy Dickson, Gus Shy, Jack Haley, Dorothy McNulty, Willie and Eugene Howard and Marie Callahan have also volunteered their services.

KINKAJOU OFF TO DAKAR.

Outhwaites' Yacht Sails From the Canaries—Day Dream Also Leaves.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LAS PALMAS, Canary Islands, Dec 11.—The yacht Kinkajou, with Leonard Outhwaite of New York, the owner, aboard, is sailing today for Dakar, Africa, following advices that that port is now clear of yellow fever and plague. The ketch Day Dream is sailing via Cape Verde to Barbadoes. All on both craft are well.

The Kinkajou, a 90-foot auxiliary yacht, with Mr. Outhwaite, his wife, Edward P. Borden and a crew of five men aboard, left New York on June 30 on an adventure and vacation trip whose itinerary was planned to include the Azores, the Isle of Wight and the recrossing of the Atlantic to Florida by way of the Bay of Madeira, the Cape Verde Islands, the Caribbean and the mouth of the Amazon. C. M. B. Cumberlege, son of Colonel Cumberlege, recently joined the yacht at Gibraltar. The arrival in Florida is scheduled for January.

The Day Dream, a forty-foot boat in which two young Englishmen, Philip Merton and John Campbell, are cruising around the world, had been sailing in the Kinkajou's company since the two departed from Gibraltar.

Postage Stamps for Collections.

Most of the standard rarities from foreign countries of the 19th Century are on hand today—from that very great rarity, the two cents Hawaii 1851-'53 (Missionary Issue), down to "hard to get" stamps selling for as little as ten dollars.

In United States Postmasters he offers a Brattleboro, Baltimore, Millbury, New Haven, and also the finest set of plates of St. Louis extant, completely reconstructed—all three of them—and also some extra single examples of these rare St. Louis.

In the general issues of the United States he offers all of the 1869 inverted centers, including one of the finest 30c known. A recent purchase also adds a marvelous lot of U. S. 20th Century issues to our stock, the latter having all of the inverted centers of the Pan-American issues, including a unique pair of the 3c with center inverted, as well as the largest block extant of the 1c inverted center. Correspondence is invited from all serious collectors, and we are equally interested in buying all old issues of the whole world, including United States, either unused or if used, particularly on original letters.

a new business record

THE February, 1930, issue breaks all of the Woman's Home Companion's past records in advertising volume and circulation.

It went to press on November 25th with more than a million dollars gross advertising revenue—the largest in the Companion's history. An increase of 20% above the corresponding issue of 1929.

A total of 2,872,000 copies of the February issue are being printed to supply the public demand. This is a gain of 282,000 over the printing for February, 1929.

The current December Companion has a total net paid circulation of more than 2,600,000—a net paid gain of 264,480 in the past twelve months.

The Companion's increases in circulation and advertising have come as a result of sound publishing principles steadily and consistently followed year after year.

For 1930 the public and advertisers are assured of continued adherence to these principles—producing a magazine of noteworthy editorial strength, closely attuned to the needs, interests and aspirations of modern American women.

CONTROLLER GETS 14 BIDS

INTEREST COST IS 4.351%

Highest for New York in Recent Years—$25,000,000 of the Bonds Quickly Resold.

The city of New York awarded yesterday an issue of $65,000,000 of 4½ per cent serial bonds and corporate stock to a nation-wide banking group headed by The National City Company at a price of 102.3487. The price makes the interest cost to the city 4.351 per cent, the highest rate that the city has paid for long-term financing in recent years.

Of the fourteen bids that were opened in Controller Berry's office yesterday, only two, that of The National City group and one by a syndicate headed by the Chase Securities Corporation, were for all or none of the issue.

The premium obtained by the city amounted to $1,526,655, compared with $734,281 obtained at the last sale on May 7 last, when an issue of $52,000,000 of 4¼ per cent subway corporate stock, due on Dec. 15, 1932, was awarded on a 4.8065 per cent basis. At the time of the last long-term financing done by the city, on Nov. 20, 1928, an issue of $55,000,000 of 4¼s fetched a premium of $461,999, or a 4.2002 per cent interest cost.

Two Syndicates Formed.

The second highest tender made yesterday, that of 101.91 for all or none, was entered by a group headed by the Chase Securities Corporation. The Chase group represented a consolidation of two syndicates which competed with The National City group for the short-term subway bonds in May. At that time the third group was headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and the Bancamerica-Blair Corporation. In the consolidation of the two groups, Halsey, Stuart & Co. withdrew, so that the Bancamerica-Blair Corporation became associated with the Chase as joint managers of the account.

Yesterday's financing consisted of $7,000,000 of fifty-year corporate stock for rapid transit purposes, $7,000,000 of fifty-year corporate stock for construction of docks, $10,000,000 of fifty-year corporate stock for water supply, $3,000,000 of fifty-year corporate stock for various municipal purposes, $8,000,000 of school bonds due serially in from one to fifty years, and $28,000,000 of bonds due serially in from one to forty years, of which $26,000,000 is issued for school and $2,000,000 for various municipal purposes.

For purposes of comparison, the 4.2002 per cent interest cost to the city on the last long-term financing done on Nov. 20, 1928, was the greatest since the rate of 4.333 per cent was paid on long-term obligations on Dec. 15, 1921. The rate of 4.8065 per cent paid by the city at the sale of the 5¼ per cent subway construction corporate stock last May is not comparable, since the issue will mature in less than four years.

Unlike other sales of New York City bonds in recent years, no bids were put in by banking houses desiring all of the bonds for their own account and not for reoffering. For example, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. obtained all but $9,000 of the short-term obligations marketed last May and made no public offering of the issue. In other years bids have been put in by J. P. Morgan & Co. and Speyer & Co.

Issues Quickly Reoffered.

Within a few minutes after the award of the bonds the National City Company syndicate reoffered the corporate stock at a price of 104½, to yield about 4.28 per cent, and the serial bonds as follows: 1930, to yield 4.10 per cent; 1931, to yield 4.20 per cent; 1932 to 1935, to yield 4.25 per cent, and 1936 to 1979, to yield 4.30 per cent. At the close of business last night the National City Company reported that $25,000,000 of the entire issue had been sold, including all of the early maturities of the bonds.

Both the National City and the Chase syndicates put in bids for "all or any part" of the issue, the former bidding 100.25 and the latter 100.00. Goldman, Sachs & Co. bid 102.3960 for $2,000,000 of the serial bonds, and J. A. Sisto & Co. 102.01 for a like amount of the corporate stock. Bids for two blocks of $500,000 each were made by the Kings County Trust Company at 101.20 and 101.00, respectively. Martin Madden bid 103 for $250,000 of the corporate stock; the Bryant Park Bank, par for $200,000, and Morris Propp par for $100,000 of the corporate stock. H. G. Schneider, as executor for an estate, bid for $3,000 of the corporate stock, and as trustee for fifty persons, for $500 of the corporate stock.

The financial statement of New York City, as of Dec. 1, 1929, showed an assessed valuation of taxable realty of $17,133,617,310, and a net debt, after deducting sinking-fund holdings and all self-sustaining and exempted debt, of $1,245,524,515, including bond and corporate stock notes.

Result Pleases Controller.

"The result is highly gratifying," said Controller Berry after the sale. "It proves the soundness of the city's financial condition and again shows the confidence of our leading financial groups in the faith and credit of the city."

The Controller has held seven sales of long term bonds. The principal of the issues aggregated $419,000,000, and the premiums realized amounted to $6,090,678.

Yesterday's offering was oversubscribed more than four times, the total amount of the bids being $265,553,500. It converted into long term bonds a corresponding amount of corporate stock notes, which already had been charged against the city's debt incurring power.

DENIES STRIKERS WERE SHOT IN BACK

Doctor at North Carolina Trial Called for State Proves Defense Witness.

CLOTHING GOES TO JURY

Coat of One Victim, His Widow Testifies, Was Powder Burned—Another Coat Ruled Out.

Special to The New York Times.

BURNSVILLE, N. C., Dec. 11.—The State's version of the alleged slaughter of six Marion cotton mill strikers by eight deputy sheriffs called to protect non-unionists on Oct. 2, as told to a mountaineer jury today, was a story of men shot in the back as they ran from tear gas and bullets.

The defense contends that the officers shot in self-defense and the State that the strikers were not even armed.

W. S. Black, a striker, told the court that when Sheriff "throwed the gas" he and the crowd turned away. He was then shot twice from the rear, the bullets coming from the direction of the mill gate where the officers were standing.

When an effort was made to put Black's coat in evidence the defense objected, but before the argument was over and the coat ruled out the jury had heard the contention of the State that the men slain were running away.

On cross-examination Black denied that he had hit one of the officers on the head with a stick, but admitted that when one of the officers used a stick on his hand he got a stick from a fellow-striker and was ready to use it "if necessary." He also denied that he had made any effort to force workers out of the mill.

Doctor Contradicts State Witness.

When Judge Cowper had overruled the objections of the defense, Rom Minish, the first witness, displayed to the jury a wound under and behind his left ear, where he said a bullet had entered, and a wound under his left eye, where he said it came out.

Later, however, Dr. J. F. Milleer of Marion, who attended Minish, told the jury that in his opinion the bullet entered the man's head from the front.

Minish denied any remembrance of the Sheriff's request that the crowd disperse and let the workers go in the mill. Neither did he remember hearing any striker answer the Sheriff with shouts of "Let's shoot it out" or "Let's shoot his heart out!"

A sweet-faced old woman in shabby black, Mrs. Tilden Carver, widow of one of the victims, made an impressive witness, though all she had to say was that her husband did not carry a pistol, although he owned one which was hanging over their bed on the day of the shooting, she said.

Clyde Hoey, brother-in-law of Governor Gardner, conducted a gentle cross-examination of the old woman but was unable to shake her testimony.

"He said he bought the gun to protect the family," she declared. "I never did see him carry it."

The widow of James Jonas, who was said to have attacked the Sheriff with a stick just before the shooting, testified that he was 61 years old and had long carried a stick. She told Mr. Hoey that her husband made frequent trips to the picket lines but that "every time he'd go I'd beg him not go, because I was afraid he'd get hurt."

Mrs. Jonas brought her husband's coat into court and showed a hole in the back surrounded by a gray stain which she said, despite loud objections by the defense, were powder burns.

Doctor Proves Defense Witness.

Though called as a witness for the State, Dr. D. F. Miller proved almost as good a witness for the defense. Of the five dead men whose wounds he examined, Jonas was the only one whom he was ready to swear was shot in the back. The doctor said that where a steel jacket bullet pierced the body he could not tell where it entered, while a lead bullet spread as it went through, making a larger hole at the point of departure than it did at the point of entry.

Jonas, said the doctor, was shot from the right rear; Luther Bryson was wounded by a bullet shot from the side, Randolph Hall was shot through the chest, James Roberts was also shot through the chest, Tilden Carver was shot in the neck. The doctor said he did not see the body of Samuel T. Vickers, the sixth striker killed in the riot. He told of treating the wounds of ten other strikers shot at the time, but did not know from what direction the bullets entered their bodies.

The physician said pistol cartridges had been found in the clothes of Carver.

C. L. Moody, union member, but not a cotton mill worker for five years, said the gas "kind of blinded people and they began to run," and that he saw Bill Tyriggs, Jim Owens, Mr. Fender and Dave Jarrett (four of the eight defendants) shooting into the crowd.

When asked who fired the first shot, Moody replied that "Dave Jarrett was the first man to bring his gun out."

He said he saw Jones raise his stick as if to hit the Sheriff but could not tell whether he had landed the blow or not.

J. T. Russell admitted that not all the strikers ran when the officers started to shoot. He saw Robbins and Steppe shooting, he said, and that forty or fifty shots were fired in all.

COLONEL LINDBERGH BACK.

Pays First Visit to Lakehurst on Way From Washington.

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh returned yesterday from Washington to Curtiss Airport, Valley Stream. On the way he landed his Falcon biplane at the Lakehurst Naval Station and had luncheon with Commander Charles E. Rosendahl and Commander Maurice Pierce. Afterward he was shown about the airport, inspecting the Los Angeles, the new ZM2, which is the Navy's experimental all-metal airship, and the non-rigid airships J-3 and J-4.

"Colonel Lindbergh seemed to get quite a thrill out of our ships," Commander Rosendahl said later. "He expressed a desire to make a flight in lighter-than-air craft and an invitation was most cordially extended to him."

It was Colonel Lindbergh's first visit to the Lakehurst Naval Station.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh on his visit here conferred with aeronautical officials and with Dr. John C. Merriam, president of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, in connection with his recent explorations over the ancient Maya cities of Yucatan. He came to Washington yesterday. Last night he attended a lecture by Harold D. Babcock of the Carnegie Institution staff on "Beyond the Red in the Spectrum."

Ottinger Debate On Tomorrow.

The annual Ottinger prize debate, with an award of $100, will be held tomorrow in the Hunter College auditorium at 8 o'clock, on the subject: "Are chain stores more detrimental than beneficial to the best interests of the American people?" The affirmative will be taken by Marjorie Friedman, Felicia Friedman and Anna Lenahan, and the negative by Roslyn Bander, Deborah Wilder and Naomi Levinson. The prize was established by Albert Ottinger, former State Attorney General.

PLANS WHITE HOUSE TALKS

President Will Discuss Issues With Morrow, Root and Others.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (AP).—President Hoover will devote considerable time during the next few days to a discussion of international questions, particularly that of arms limitation, with the many distinguished persons invited to the White House.

Among those expected at the White House is Dwight W. Morrow, the American Ambassador to Mexico and a member of the American delegation to the London naval conference, who arrived in Washington this morning.

Elihu Root, sponsor of the revised American reservation to the World Court, may be another visitor.

The President also will entertain members of the Japanese delegation to the naval conference. There will be a formal dinner in their honor on Dec. 16.

THE BALTIMORE NEWS

makes an important announcement in the interest of National Advertisers in the Baltimore market

IT HAS been an old Baltimore custom to favor locally established manufacturers, jobbers and distributors with local rates, which has placed the invading manufacturers, jobbers and distributors at an economic disadvantage. Consequently, the Baltimore situation as it relates to local-national advertisers receiving local advertising rates has been a sore spot for years.

There seems to have been no ethical ground for the original establishment of this policy and certainly there is no excuse for continuing it. National Advertiser XYZ located in Kokomo comes into Baltimore with a package coffee. He pays the national rate. The local roaster has been permitted to buy advertising in The Baltimore News 17% cheaper and in another Baltimore paper this local man pays 50% per cent less than Advertiser XYZ.

Correctly interpreted, a local advertiser is one who sells at retail through outlets which he owns or controls.

This seems a fair definition of advertisers entitled to local rates. It is a rule that would work universally fair wherever applied.

At present in Baltimore the rule seems to be

An advertiser located in Baltimore—regardless of what his product is or where or how he sells it—in any event he gets the local rates. This rule would work chaos if universally applied.

Since it seems impossible for Baltimore newspapers to agree on a definition or to agree as to what is fair, The Baltimore News feels obligated to act independently in the matter.

Henceforth local rates will be applicable in The Baltimore News only to such advertisers as sell at retail through outlets which they own or control.

Automotive, tire and gasoline advertising will come under the national or general classification.

In the future radio as well as other general advertising cannot be placed through distributors at local rates.

Present contracts will be carried out.

Henceforth general advertisers in The Baltimore News will not have to face rate competition when coming into the Baltimore market.

There will be one Baltimore newspaper selling its advertising space on a legitimate basis. It will be The Baltimore News.

And, just by way of propaganda, The Baltimore News is not a combination buy, forced or otherwise. It delivers an unduplicated circulation at one cost. Incidentally, this is the largest daily circulation that can be bought south of Philadelphia. Large enough to do a REAL job and adequately cover the city. November's net paid was 160,042.

Any advertising executives interested in this local-national rate situation in general and in the Baltimore situation in particular are invited to address the publisher.

AIR TALES STOLEN, 'WAR ACE' IS HELD

Indictment Charges He Sold to Publisher Story Copied From an Aviation Periodical.

LETTER MAKES CONFESSION

Three Other Pieces Plagiarized by Former Editor Because of Need for Money, Missive Says.

Robert A. Carter, 23 years old, who had told of thrilling experiences as a world war aviator in the Royal Flying Corps operations in Italy, was lodged in the Tombs yesterday afternoon on an indictment charging him with having defrauded John B. Kelly, head of the Fiction House, Inc., 271 Madison Avenue, out of $240 through the sale of a flying story which he had copied bodily from another flying publication. Carter will be arraigned today in General Sessions on a grand larceny charge.

He was arrested late yesterday afternoon in his suite in a hotel at 25 East Thirtieth Street by a detective of the District Attorney's office on a bench warrant issued after Assistant District Attorney Edward Loughlin had presented evidence to the grand jury on which the indictment was returned in the forenoon.

The indictment was based mainly on a confession written to Mr. Kelly last month by Carter, who had said he was a scion of the Carter family of Cartersville, Ky. In the confession he was alleged to have admitted that the story "Fortune Flyers," which appeared in the December issue of one of Mr. Kelly's publications, Wings, had been copied in its entirety from Air Trails, another publication, and sold to Mr. Kelly's corporation.

Three Other Stories Involved.

In the letter Carter also was alleged to have admitted that two other stories, on which he had collected about $1,200 from Mr. Kelly's corporation, and which were to appear in subsequent issues of Wings, also had been "lifted" from other publications, and still another story, "Winged Master," which had been published in Wings while he was employed by Mr. Kelly as the managing editor of the magazine, had been sold to another publication by Carter under the representation that he was the author and that it had never been published before.

The letter, which was made public by Mr. Kelly, read:

Wednesday.

Mr. Kelly:

You are probably aware by this time of my guilt in the matter of "Fortune Fliers." I must add to my confession on that score the necessity of keeping "Winged Guards" and "Wings of the Mail" off the stands for the same reasons.

"Winged Master," a story sold to Magazine Publishers, Inc., of 67 West Forty-fourth, was taken from one of the Fiction House magazines.

The excuse, or alibi—there is none. From the moment I arrived at Fiction House, like a very young child, I embroiled myself in financial difficulties of a serious nature. They brought on a necessity for money—and my writing abilities had failed me.

Restitution cannot be made for a long time—months. I realize that it cannot be made except in cash. When it will be physically possible to make this restitution, it shall be done. Just at present I am in the midst of ten or twelve serious actions, any one of which involves serious possibilities.

Consider this a full confession on my part of the actions involved—and an admission that my memo to you of the other day was perjured. ROBERT A. CARTER.

Said He Was a Veteran.

"Carter came to me about two and and a half years ago," said Mr. Kelly, "and told me that he had served for some time with the Royal Flying Corps in Italy during the World War and that he felt he had a flair for writing on thrilling air experiences. He explained that he walked with a limp because of an airplane accident he had experienced during the war near a hangar in Italy, and showed me many papers in the form of credentials of his war service.

"The man's familiarity with flying difficulties and the phrases used by aviators convinced me that he was what he represented himself to be, and I employed him on the editorial staff of Wings. In a short time he began to write flying stories for us which proved very successful and for which he received separate payments. It was not long before he became managing editor of Wings. He had introduced me in the interim to many famous war aces, and on one occasion staged a broadcast of some of them from the radio station in the Roosevelt Hotel. Later he did some broadcasting work for a Brooklyn radio station, but several months ago I heard of reports that he was representing himself as the director of that station, which was not the fact.

"Other stories reached me that the man had encountered difficulties with women and others over money he had borrowed, and that he was facing a court proceeding instituted by his wife. When I learned that he had induced one of the office boys here to endorse a note with a loan company on which the money had not been returned and the boy's salary had been garnisheed, I discharged Carter.

"Soon after the publication of 'Fortune Flyers' in Wings I received a letter from the publishers of Air Trails that this story, under their title, 'Flyers of Fortune,' had been published in their magazine last July. The story had been written for Air Trails by Ben Conlin. When I questioned Carter about it he admitted that he had cribbed it, and then I complained to the District Attorney's office."

NEW LEE BIOGRAPHY READY.

Book Throws Fresh Light on Career of Confederate Leader.

"Marse Robert, Knight of the Confederacy," a biography of Robert E. Lee, by James C. Young, has just been published by Ras D. Hankle Company, New York.

The book tells the story of the Commander of the Confederate Army in the light of yesterday's researches. It is based on exhaustive studies of letters and documents in the Congressional Library, the Confederate Museum and numerous public and private libraries, supplemented by material hitherto not available.

One of the chapters is the story of Lee told by his sole surviving aide, Major Giles B. Cooke, 81 years old.

Bridges Lauds Late President as "Warm Human Friend" on Graduation Anniversary.

TELLS OF LONG FRIENDSHIP

Whig Hall Also Celebrates Its 160th Year—300 Attend Memorial Gathering.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 11.—Whig Hall of Princeton University celebrated tonight its 160th anniversary and the fiftieth anniversary of the graduation of Woodrow Wilson from Princeton at a meeting in which Dr. Harry A. Garfield, president of Williams College, and Robert Bridges, editor of Scribner's Magazine, addressed 300 guests. Dr. John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton, presided and read numerous telegrams paying respect to the former President of the United States. Wilson was speaker of Whig Hall in his senior year in college.

Mr. Bridges, classmate of Wilson in the class of 1879, told of his intimate association with Wilson in various undergraduate activities. In referring to Whig Hall, Mr. Bridges said that Wilson was not the cold austere person some thought him to be.

"Wilson was not an austere bundle of principles; he was a warm human friend to those whom he loved," Mr. Bridges said. "He was always companionable, and there was no pose about him.

"He was the most human of classmates and soon began to use the word comradeship, which formed so large a part of his action later. Nothing is so far from the truth as the assertion of Wilson's aloofness and lack of sympathy.

"It was when we all got together in the new Witherspoon Hall that bonds of friendship which lasted through life began to develop. Many of us would meet in the various rooms, and I have often thought that perhaps the periods of loafing were more permanent in their effect than the intervals of study."

During one of these periods when the group of undergraduates had gathered, Mr. Bridges said, a remark was dropped which Mr. Wilson used forty years afterward when he invited sixty of his classmates to dinner in the White House.

Harry A. Garfield, president of Williams College and son of the twentieth President of the United States, spoke of Wilson as he knew him on the Princeton faculty and while Chief Executive of the United States.

SMITH TO BE SANTA CLAUS.

Former Governor to Distribute Gifts to Children in Hospital.

Former Governor Smith will play Santa Claus to more than 100 children who are patients at Beekman Street Hospital on Dec. 23, when he will be guest of honor at the hospital's annual Christmas party. The children who will be entertained are bed patients at the institution or callers at its clinics. The party will be given by the social service committee and directors of the hospital.

The party has been an annual event for the past five years and more than 1,000 toys are distributed annually. Preceding the party the directors, of whom Mr. Smith is one, will be entertained at a luncheon at the Bankers' Club by Marshall Field, chairman of the hospital, and Howard S. Cullman, its president. Senator Wagner, Clarence D. Chamberlin and Health Commissioner Wynne will also be guests.

BALKS AT QUESTIONS ON BASEBALL POOL

Counsel for Several of Those Accused Is Ordered by Judge to Answer.

Joseph L. Delaney, the Albany lawyer who was counsel for several of those charged with being responsible for the operation of the Albany baseball pool, refused to answer questions yesterday while being examined before the Federal grand jury. He was taken before Judge Goddard by Federal Attorney Tuttle.

Mr. Tuttle asked Mr. Delaney what bills he had rendered for his services in behalf of those who operated the pool, whether he had received any payments as retainers or otherwise, and if so whether he had given receipts for them. If these questions had been answered the next question, it was suggested, would have been for the names of the clients who had paid.

Mr. Delaney contended that to have answered the questions would have been to reveal the confidential relations between him and his clients, and that, therefore, the questions were not privileged. He had given the names of some of those he represented in the prosecution of the pool. Among others whom he named as his clients were Daniel and Edward O'Connell, Democratic politicians of Albany; James J. Otto, who has served one prison term for his connection with the pool and is facing another for perjury; William J. Pringle, Mathew F. Dugan, Samuel Cohen, J. J. Kelly, James Quinn and George Carde.

Mr. Tuttle told the court that he was pushing the investigation to find out if there were any others back of the pool whose names have not yet been divulged.

Judge Goddard decided that the questions were proper and would have to be answered. Mr. Delaney returned to the jury room and as he did not appear again in court it was taken for granted that he had answered the questions, and had also given the names of those who had paid him for his services. Fifteen minutes later he was excused for the present.

Other witnesses examined were David Smurl, Chief of Police of Albany; John J. Peacock, his assistant, and Frank Lasch, Albany's Commissioner of Public Safety. The inquiry will be continued today.

NEW YORKER IS LINKED TO MURDERED TEACHER

Roy Scribner, Radio Man, Said to Have Called on Rockford Girl 2 Weeks Before Tragedy.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCKFORD, Ill., Dec. 11.—The clubbing to death of Miss Cordelia Gummersheimer, high school teacher, on Saturday night, cut short a romance with Roy Scribner, a radio operator, employed by the Mackay Radio Company of New York City.

Scribner met the school teacher in Chicago on Nov. 22 and accompanied her to Rockford the next day, just two weeks before she was slain, according to information today.

Dispatches from New York say the radio operator stated he would say nothing unless questioned by police. It is expected that States' Attorney Knight will ask New York authorities to question Scribner and ascertain where he was on his last week end.

It is said that Scribner received on Monday a letter from the teacher. This was several hours after her body was found.

Miss Gummersheimer is said to have known Scribner when he was single. They had a quarrel and Scribner married another woman in 1922.

Miss Maude Weinshenk, a friend of Miss Gummersheimer, visited her soon after Scribner left and found her sobbing, she said.

he charged, Mr. Hollingsworth's home really was in Paris, and he merely was a temporary guest at the Hotel Savoy Plaza. He added that "a vast amount of damage" had been done to the Federal Neon System corporation through the advertisement.

Mr. Richter replied that the complaint more properly should come under the libel law, and added that it was the purpose of the defense "to prove in every respect that what was said in the advertisement is true."

"This is an attempt to ruin a new concern," interposed Mr. Craig. "They attempted to do with this advertisement what they failed to do four times in the Supreme Court by a restraining injunction. They were four times defeated. It is a contemptible attempt to destroy a rival, to prevent them from building up their business, and to deny them the right to exist."

Magistrate Simpson here interposed that, inasmuch as Mr. Hollingsworth was not a permanent resident of the city, he thought the $25,000 reasonable, and added: "This is not a case of libel. It is on the extent of the damage done."

The magistrate held up an advertisement which appeared in THE NEW YORK TIMES, and continued:

"The issue is, is it false or true? Was it issued with intent to deceive? It addresses not only the stockholders of the Claude Neon Light Corporation, but also the public."

Mr. Richter contended it was a matter more properly for the civil courts, and protested that, inasmuch as the offense charged in Mr. Bob's complaint called for a penalty of not more than three years' imprisonment, $25,000 bail was not customary. The magistrate insisted, however, that the bail was not too high under the circumstances, and when he was informed by Mr. Richter in an undertone that the defense lawyer would have to consult with his law partner, former Judge Robert Johnston, on providing the high bail, Mr. Craig, evidently surmising that Mr. Richter meant his father-in-law, Samuel Untermyer, declared: "Now, your Honor, if he is going to have Samuel Untermyer—"

"Your honor," broke in Mr. Richter, "I don't see why my family should be brought into this. Mr. Craig is making a nuisance of himself. I said my partner, not my father-in-law."

The magistrate, on assurances of Mr. Hollingsworth's future appearance at the hearing from Mr. Richter and Mr. Seamon, then agreed to accept the $10,000 bail. Mr. Craig announced that it was possible, when the hearing came around next Wednesday, he might have to ask for a postponement for a few days because Mr. Bob might have to go out of town on business in connection with the halting of the stock issue for the Federal Neon Corporation.

"I'll be perfectly satisfied with that," Mr. Richter replied, "if Mr. Craig will agree to keep my family out of this proceeding."

Mr. Hollingsworth, under the Baumes law, previously had been fingerprinted at Police Headquarters by the warrant officer, who reported to the magistrate that there was no previous record there in connection with his prisoner. The court then signed the bail bond, and Mr. Hollingsworth was released.

According to attachés of the Tombs court it was the first time in many years that a charge of the kind had been lodged there. They could not recall any previous case involving an advertisement relating to the promotion of a large stock issue.

Joseph H. O'Neil, publicity director and sales promotion manager for the Claude Neon Light Company, issued this statement last night:

"The published statements made by Claude Neon Lights and its officers are correct and we expect to prove them so in court."

BRAZILIAN BANKS HALT TRADING IN MILREIS

Many Refuse to Buy When Rate Drops and Exporters Face Dilemma.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAO PAULO, Dec. 11.—With the Brazilian milreis breaking to eight milreis and 920 reis to the dollar today, it is generally believed that President Washington Luis is abandoning his stabilization program, which has long maintained the milreis in the neighborhood of eight milreis forty to the dollar.

The Brazilian chief executive has not made any statement regarding his views, but the action of the federal controlled Baneo do Brasil in discontinuing the selling of exchange Saturday is interpreted as a defeat of the government in the long drawn-out battle to maintain Brazilian currency at a fixed rate on the foreign exchange market. Today's exchange is quoted as "nominal," with many banks refusing to buy milreis on account of the rapid play in the market. The course of the bankers is embarrassing local merchants, who have drafts falling due payable in foreign currency, as the banks are refusing to handle most of the business and do not consider any further exchange transactions, except in rare instances and at a high premium.

TO TESTIFY IN LAND INQUIRY

Westchester Grand Jury Hears Realty Experts on $948,000 Deal.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 11.—The extraordinary grand jury investigating county and municipal transactions in Westchester County, today heard the testimony of six real estate experts who testified on the value of the land bought by the county for $948,000 on July 1, said by critics of the deal to have been worth only $560,000. Four other witnesses were also heard.

Edwin J. Goodhart of Yonkers, Irving W. Young of White Plains, William R. Bull of Port Chester, Charles Baxter of Mamaroneck, Robert E. L. Howe Jr. of Scarsdale, and Albert W. Haigh, White Plains Councilman, were the real estate men who offered appraisals of the land involved.

Howard Willets, stockholder in the Grand Court Realty Company, owner of the largest plot bought by the county in the deal under investigation, also testified, and other witnesses were Arthur W. Lawrence, formerly vice chairman of the Westchester County Park Commission. Josephine Dobbs and Kathleen Irwin, owners of plots included in the transaction under investigation.

There was every indication today that the inquiry would be concluded on Friday with adjournment until after the holidays.

PHILADELPHIA TO ASK TRANSIT RECEIVERSHIP

Losses of Nearly $2,000,000 by Mitten Management, Inc., Are Charged.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11.—Federal court action will be taken to force the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company into receivership, S. Davis Wilson, Deputy City Controller, announced late today after a stormy session in City Council.

The announcement followed a decision by Councilmen to make the city of Philadelphia, instead of City Controller Will B. Hadley, the principal party to a suit in the Common Pleas court in which a full accounting of transit finances is being sought.

In bringing the city into the case the City Council definitely eliminates Mr. Wilson, who had sought to prosecute it on behalf of Controller Hadley.

Losses aggregating nearly $2,000,000 have been incurred by the transit company through the manipulation of its stock issues by Mitten Management, Inc., it was charged by Dr. Milo R. Maltbie, public utilities expert, in a report placed in the hands of the City Council this afternoon.

Although dealing generally with the issuance of $35,000,000 of 7 per cent preferred stock of the transit company, authorized by the Council, the report specifically discussed a $16,000,000 issue of the stock recently returned by Mitten Management to the transit company treasury. Losses were incurred, Dr. Maltbie said, in the payment of brokers' fees, depreciation of stock values, loss of the difference between dividends and the interest rates on advances, loans or deposits with Mitten Management and the conversion of reserve funds for renewals from cash to preferred stock, now selling at less than its par value.

ROBBED OF LIFE'S SAVINGS.

Man Who Didn't Believe in Banks Kept $3,400 in Trousers.

Peter Czeczel, 54 years old, of 170 Holland Avenue, Mariners Harbor, S. I., did not believe in banks, he told police yesterday, but now he does. His life's savings, $3,400, he kept in his trousers pockets in the form of thirty-four $100 bills. When he went to bed Tuesday night, he said, he left the bills wrapped in newspapers distributed in his trousers, which hung by his bed.

Just before dawn yesterday Czeczel opeend his eyes to see two men with pistols rifling his trousers. He obediently elevated his hands and watched them pocket his money and depart with his trousers. When he went downstairs, according to police, the raiment lay on the Czeczel lawn, but the money and robbers were gone.

THE NIGHTMARE BEFORE CHRISTMAS

I don't think any man envies a woman. Especially before Christmas. We have to take care of everything. And our troubles are twice as hard unless we know just what to give to men. I always give cigars. That sounds like a dubious selection. But it's not . . . if you get Bayuk Phillies. Two years ago I tried them out on Dad. He said it was the first time he didn't feel foolish when he showed my gift to his friends. Every year now, I give Phillies to Dad, and all the other men too.

* * *

You won't have to bother with fancy paper and Christmas stickers—for Phillies are done-up and ready to give! You have a choice of wrappings. There's a quaint, snowy, Colonial scene—"Christmas Eve in Old Philadelphia." Or you may prefer a more modern package—the new, upright, natural-wood box with its delightful cedar-scent . . . wrapped in decorated, colored glassine—red, green, and amber. Packages of ten—fitting for a small remembrance—are colorfully covered, too. At all cigar stores! Make your men's shopping easy—give Bayuk Phillies! Men, this means you, too.

Standard sizes, popular prices, packages of 10, 25, and 50 cigars.

GRUNDY APPOINTED TO SEAT IN SENATE

powerful. They assert that the state of his health will prevent him making a real fight and before the May primary there will be no division in the Republican ranks. The slating of candidates for Governor and Supreme Court justices probably will be deferred until early next year, awaiting the development in Philadelphia.

A Veteran in Politics.

Mr. Grundy, who is 67 years old, has been active in politics for forty years. He was a silent factor in Republican activities under Penrose, and inherited the leadership along with W. L. Mellon. He has collected vast sums for the campaign of the Republican party in the country for many years.

He is not regarded as a popular figure. His ability as a politician and defender of the protective tariff is recognized. But he is strong, not so much by reason of his defense of a high tariff, as for his fight against the Senate lobby investigators, especially the insurgent block. Pennsylvania resents the attitude of Senator Nye.

Governor Fisher was informed today that the insurgents, apart from Mr. Nye, would probably not oppose the seating of Mr. Grundy.

While Mr. Grundy has more than sufficient means to gratify the most luxurious taste, his affiliation with the Society of Friends has made him a man of simplicity. His attire is marked by an absence of jewelry, even to a thin leather watch guard.

His faculty for organizing and for detailing the accomplishment of things to those with whom he is associated, it is declared, has resulted in the production of more results within a day than the average man can accomplish in three times the period. He is said to be able to settle a problem involving the most intricate knowledge of the workings of his mill at Bristol, decide by telephone upon the purchase of a tremendous order of wool and return to the discussion with a visitor of an intricate matter of politics without losing the thread of thought.

Mr. Grundy organized the Pennsylvania Manufacturers' Association, of which he is president, as an insurance and "protective" organization for manufacturers following the enactment of a workmen's compensation law in 1915.

Does Much Work by 'Phone.

Mr. Grundy is probably as generous a patron of the telephone companies as any man in Pennsylvania, and much of his time is spent in contacts made in this fashion. His communications, either written or by telephone, and in meeting persons face to face, are tinged with marked courtesy and, regardless of the urgency of the matter, without evidence of excitement.

He never fails, at some period of the week, to keep in touch with the details growing out of an undisputed leadership of Bucks County, a control which has extended from the State leaderships of Quay and Penrose.

Mr. Grundy has made many benefactions in his home community, always been made with the understanding that the donor should be unnamed. He constructed a municipal building in the Borough of Bristol to house all of the community governmental activities, including the fire-fighting apparatus, at a cost in excess of $300,000.

In addition to maintaining a residence in Bristol, he successfully operates a farm near by. His home life is described as marked by devotion to his mother, who died in 1926, and to his sister, Miss Margaret Grundy, who resides with him.

JOSEPH R. GRUNDY,
Who Has Been Appointed United States Senator From Pennsylvania.

NYE WILL FIGHT GRUNDY.

North Dakotan Will Challenge the Pennsylvanian's Credentials.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The seating of Joseph R. Grundy as Senator from Pennsylvania by appointment of the Governor of that State seems to be assured despite criticisms of the selection voiced tonight by Progressive Republicans and Democrats. Mr. Grundy may be delayed for a short time in taking the oath, but the opinion is general that he will succeed where William S. Vare failed.

Mr. Grundy arrived in Washington tonight and announced not only his acceptance of his appointment, but that he would be a candidate for the regular term in the May primaries. Inasmuch as Mr. Vare has already announced his candidacy and former Governor Pinchot has indicated that he may run, a hard battle seems assured, unless the Pennsylvania political situation radically changes.

"I have just been advised of my appointment by Governor Fisher as the junior United States Senator from Pennsylvania to fill the existing vacancy," said Mr. Grundy. "I am pleased to accept that appointment, cognizant of the honor it conveys and the responsibilities it imposes.

"In cooperation with our senior Senator, Honorable David A. Reed, and the thirty-six members of the House from Pennsylvania, I shall give my very best efforts to the interests of the ten million people of our State, convinced that by so doing I shall be serving the interests of primary which occurs in Pennsylthe country as a whole.

"I shall be a candidate for the balance of the unexpired term in the primary whic hoccurs in Pennsylvania next May."

The appointment of Mr. Grundy, whose name has been in the public eye as a result of charges hurled against him in Senate debates on the tariff, stirred protests from Senators from some of the States described by the new Senator-designate as "backward" during his testimony before the Senate lobby committee.

It was conceded, however, by many of those who are obviously hostile to Mr. Grundy, that the inquiry into his activities as a tariff lobbyist had brought to light nothing that could in any way impair his right to a seat in the Senate and that any efforts that might be made to bar him, because of his relationship to the 1926 Senatorial primary campaign in Pennsylvania, when huge sums were spent, was a little too flimsy to obtain the support of a majority in the Senate.

Much as the Progressive element in the Senate might like to exclude Mr. Grundy, as they did Mr. Vare on Dec. 6, it seemed likely tonight that many of them would balk against the establishment of a precedent that might prove bothersome in the future.

Other Progressives Against Action.

Senator Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, one of the Insurgent leaders, is prepared to carry out the threat to challenge Mr. Grundy's title to the seat which he made during the debate on the Vare case. Although anti-Vare leaders such as Senators Borah of Idaho and Norris of Nebraska are on record as opposed to a fight on Mr. Grundy, Senator Nye, it is understood, will object to seating him.

Senator Nye would not announce his plans tonight, but it is said that he will object to swearing Mr. Grundy in, in which case his credentials will go to the Committee on Privileges and Elections, which will report promptly that they are in proper form.

Senator Nye, if he does not abandon the fight, will then offer a resolution similar to that passed in the Vare case. He will presumably try to force a roll-call.

"If Grundy is seated," he said tonight, "it means that the Senatorship from Pennsylvania will have been awarded to the highest bidder. The reasons that prompted the Senate to refuse a seat to Vare are equally compelling in the case of Grundy. Grundy was just as culpable in the Vare campaign as Vare himself. There was corruption in the election of Vare, and most of the arguments used against Vare in the Senate debate could be used just as well against Grundy.

"On Dec. 6 I gave notice in the Senate 'that the appointee of Governor Fisher will need be one far removed from affiliation with the Mellon-Grundy-Fisher machine before I shall vote for him to be seated in this body.' I added: 'We cannot damn one ill-smelling Pennsylvania machine or part of a machine, without, with equal force and effect, damning the other, since both have played the same game and played it equally well; so well, in fact, that the prizes of their campaigns must be divided between them.' That expressed my attitude then, and it is my attitude now."

Caraway Plans No Opposition.

Senator Caraway, Democratic chairman of the Lobby Investigating Committee, stated he had no intention of opposing Mr. Grundy. It was Senator Caraway who presented a report from the committee to the Senate yesterday assailing Mr. Grundy's lobbying activities. His recognition of the futility of a fight against him was significant as pointing to the collapse of the Nye proposal.

"I have no intention of opposing the seating of Mr. Grundy," Senator Caraway said. "I think it will be a good thing for the Democratic party to admit him to the Senate."

The appointment was denounced by Senator Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana, in a statement issued through the Democratic National Committee. He characterized the appointment as a challenge to the people who believe in free government.

Senator Wheeler's Statement.

"The appointment of Mr. Grundy to a seat in the Senate could not be regarded as otherwise than a challenge to the people of the country who believe in a free government as well as to the Senate itself.

"The Senate voted to keep Smith of Illinois and Vare of Pennsylvania out of the Senate for the reason that they had expended huge sums of money in the primaries and that the Vare organization in Philadelphia and that the Mellon organization in Pittsburgh had been guilty of fraud and corruption in the general election.

"It should be borne in mind that Governor Fisher was elected to office in exactly the same way that Vare was elected. It is a notorious fact that the Mellon-Grundy machine spent more money to nominate Fisher than was spent by Vare and that the returns in Pittsburgh were held up until the organization could find out how many votes were needed to nominate him.

"After the primaries the Mellon-Grundy organization joined hands with Vare to elect Fisher and Vare. Vare has been thrown out of the Senate because of his part in the election. Governor Fisher, as this is written, threatens to nominate Grundy for a Senate seat—Grundy the lobbyist, Grundy, who collected the money not only for the Fisher-Vare campaign, but who also collected huge sums of money for the Republican party to help elect President Hoover.

"This is the same Grundy who frankly and boldy tells the lobby committee that he helped write the Republican platform, helped collect the money from the manufacturers and then camped here in Washington to see that the party carried out its promises, and, by legislative action, helped Grundy's organization get back the money they had contributed.

"When Senators from every section protest against the nefarious schemes of Grundy and his associates as outlined by him, the old familiar hue and cry is sent out by the Republican leaders. 'Worse than Communists,' cries Reed of Pennsylvania. 'Pseudo Republicans,' yells Fess. 'Wild Jackasses,' shouts Moses.

"But what of the people of the country will they approve of this sell-out of the Republican party to the Grundys, the Mellons, &c. It is inconceivable to me that the people will approve either their actions or a tariff bill drawn by them."

Reed Will Demand Quick Action.

Senator Reed of Pennsylvania said tonight that he would demand an immediate decision on the question of Mr. Grundy's right to the seat, and since that would be a question of the highest privilege, action by the Senate in the immediate future appears likely.

Mr. Grundy said upon his arrival that if his credentials from Governor Fisher arrive tomorrow and his advisers counseled such a course, that he would immediately present himself to take the oath of office.

The belief that Mr. Grundy will be admitted to the Senate at once is strengthened by reports that Governor Fisher had been told by Republican leaders here that the opposition would not be strong enough to bring about rejection.

VARE STILL SEEKS SEAT.

But His Aides' Praise of Grundy Indicates Move to Dissuade Him.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11.—The appointment of Joseph R. Grundy to the Senate will not alter the plans of William S. Vare to enter the Republican primary in May as a candidate for the Senatorial nomination on a platform of vindication against the Senate's action in barring him last week, he declared tonight at his Atlantic City home.

"I have no comment to make," he remarked when informed of the appointment.

But to the question, "you will oppose him for nomination for the full term?" he replied:

"Why, unquestionably."

Mr. Vare's remarks were made after some of his most prominent lieutenants had praised the Governor's choice of Mr. Grundy for the Senate. There were, in fact, indications that many of his stanch supporters would bring pressure to bear upon Mr. Vare to consider his health and cancel his plan to seek the nomination.

City Councilman Charles B. Hall, one of the men who handled the Vare cause in the City Council fight against the Mackay Republican League ticket last Fall, extolled Governor Fisher's action as did Councilman Harry J. Trainer, a Vare leader in South Philadelphia.

Mayor Mackay said the Governor had selected "the man best qualified to represent Pennsylvania in the United States Senate at this time."

NEW CRUISER IN SERVICE.

The Salt Lake City, First Built Under Agreement, Is Commissioned.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11.—The first of the 10,000-ton light cruisers to be constructed under the terms of the Washington arms conference became a part of the navy today when the Salt Lake City was commissioned at the Philadelphia Navy Yard in a ceremony directed by Rear Admiral Julian L. Latimer, commandant of the Fourth Naval District.

Captain F. L. Oliver has been selected to cammand the vessel.

A. G. Mackenzie, representing Mayor John F. Bowman of Salt Lake City, presented to the cruiser a silver set.

The Salt Lake City, which was delivered at the navy yard on Monday, will start on a "shake-down" cruise in January. It has a personnel of thirty-one officers, twelve warrant officers, thirty chief petty officers and 538 enlisted men.

THE AUBURN MUTINY.

In the presence of such an armed and desperate defiance of the State as suddenly showed its head for the second time in Auburn prison yesterday, the first duty of the authorities is obvious and inescapable. It is to put down the mutiny at no matter what cost. Acting Governor LEHMAN returned the proper answer when told of the offer of the mutineers: "There will be no compromise." There could be none with men leveling guns at the responsible agents of the State. It is a fearful thing to have to do what the guards and constabulary and militia were called upon to do at Auburn yesterday, but there was no alternative. When the power of the State is challenged by prisoners threatening arson and bloodshed, there is but one reply to be made.

There are, however, other duties which those charged with the conduct of our State prisons should immediately seek to discharge. After stern repression of the revolt comes the need of searching inquiry into it. The administration of the prison should not be spared. How was it possible that so many of the leaders of the mutiny, and others that took part in it, suddenly appeared with revolvers in their hands? It is intimated that the weapons were "smuggled" to the men. But what were the guards and keepers doing meanwhile? If, in addition, it should appear that there were other laxities in discipline, or needless hardships imposed upon the prisoners, the officers of the prison ought to be held to strict account. Further than that, the whole situation at Auburn prison should be gone over thoroughly. It is not forgotten that as long as three years ago Commissioner ALGER condemned the buildings at Auburn as unfit. He declared the cells in the old block to be "atrocious," and urged the State to prepare to expend at once $2,500,000 for what he called the indispensable "major requirements." Since then the conditions have become worse, if only through the terrible overcrowding.

The subject of modernizing New York prisons has been urged upon the people again and again by Governor SMITH and later by Governor ROOSEVELT. The estimate is that something like $30,000,000 should be devoted to enlarging our prisons and making them more decently habitable. It is a high price to pay, but no price is really too high for a rich State to pay for the assurance that it is doing its best to provide against such shocking and heartrending occurrences as the one which burst upon the people yesterday in the news from Auburn prison.

SENATOR GRUNDY.

If the Democrats and Western Progressives in the Senate feel chagrined that JOSEPH R. GRUNDY, who lately fleered at them on the witness stand, is to sit with them as a colleague, they have themselves largely to blame. Until Senator NYE notified Pennsylvania that he would oppose seating the president of that State's manufacturers' association, and Senator CARAWAY reflected on the title of Governor FISHER, the choice of Mr. GRUNDY was not wholly foreshadowed. But Pennsylvania is determined that the Senate shall not assume the right of selection as well as rejection of Senators.

Only a rash prophet would attempt to predict what the present Senate will do. The rejection of Mr. VARE was a plain denial of the rights of a sovereign State. To bar Mr. GRUNDY could be no more. The objection raised to Mr. VARE'S title was that, in the primary nomination contest preceding the election, he spent too much money. This cannot be charged against a temporary appointment by the Governor. General opinion is that the Senate will not dare go so far as to deny his seat to Mr. GRUNDY. Should a second rejection occur, reprisals may be visualized which will embitter proceedings in that body for years to come.

In making room for Mr. GRUNDY the Senate may well feel itself the rueful victim of as good a political joke as has been played in this country for years. The appointee only a few days ago had made himself exceedingly unpopular with the coalition which controls the Senate. Every form of bullying had been tried on him, but he would not take fright. For the sardonic victor in that oral combat to take his seat as a peer of his inquisitors is rubbing it in. But Mr. GRUNDY is a respected citizen of Pennsylvania, of acknowledged ability, demonstrated courage and as much a representative of his class as some Western and Southern Senators are of theirs. He raises money for campaigns, but so do certain rich Democrats, and they would be welcomed to office by their party colleagues. He believes in protecting Pennsylvania's industries, but plenty of Senators take the same attitude respecting their own localities. In a day of blocs with local interests and parochial viewpoints, Mr. GRUNDY'S qualifications seem unexceptionable.

MR. YOUNG ON THE UTILITIES.

OWEN YOUNG was a model witness before the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce. Business men often have cause to regard appearance before Congressional committees as something of an ordeal. Their motives are impugned. They are asked questions far removed from the announced subject of the investigation. Even pertinent inquiries are given a cunning slant with which the novice finds it difficult to cope. Men who are by no means novices have on occasion been so exasperated by innuendo or irrelevance that they have been led to answer with more heat than judgment. Mr. YOUNG was not spared this type of interrogatory. Senator BROOKHART tried to put in his mouth such ludicrous opinions as that he desired to abolish the Stock Exchange, and that he "did not believe "in the Government of the United "States." But his temper was not ruffled.

One privilege was accorded him that does not fall to the lot of every witness. Before being questioned he was permitted to read a prepared statement. It dealt mainly with the advantages of monopoly. At the outset he sought to divide "communications" between those transmitted by voice and those which become a matter of record—in other words, between the telephone and telegraph and wireless facilities. He paid a deserved compliment to the progressive policies of the telephone company. He favors a merger of wire, cable and wireless interests, in order that they may have the opportunity to pursue similar policies. He can see only waste in a system which permits duplicate poles, duplicate cables, duplicate office equipment and duplicate personnel—from messenger boys to presidents. Especially he believes that if the companies were relieved from the rigors of competition they might be able to spend more on research and long-range planning. He deems unification in the domestic field desirable, in the international field imperative.

If Congress is asked to approve a consolidation of this kind it must first be assured that the mammoth undertaking will be subject to adequate public control. Mr. YOUNG dared to say that there is "no reason in principle" why it should not be owned and operated by the Government, "if that be the best way in "which to get the most satisfactory "communications service at the low-"est cost." However, he has seen too much of government enterprise in other countries, notably in the telephone business, to believe that it can give that kind of service. Refusing to be led by Senator BROOKHART into the traditional indictment of bureaucracy, the witness was content to make the point that if the Government were to take over the telegraphs it would inevitably skimp appropriations for research. In private hands Mr. YOUNG, for example, can go to his directors and get the money he needs for that purpose promptly, but if he were at the head of a government agency he would have to go before "forty-eleven committees" of Congress and in the end probably not obtain the necessary funds.

The logical as well as practical alternative to government ownership is effective regulation. Mr. YOUNG gave it as his "offhand" judgment that it might be advisable to set up some such commission as Senator COUZENS has proposed. Railroad executives, and even some members of the Supreme Court, may be shocked to learn that he is an advocate of rates based on prudent investment rather than reproduction cost. Here is added evidence of the different aspect rate-making presents to railroads built before the war and utilities built largely since. But the main thing is to invigorate the whole regulatory process. No one sees more clearly than Mr. YOUNG the fate in store for the utilities if in this respect they fail to heed the handwriting on the wall. "We must learn how to regulate "adequately our public service in "private hands," he told the Senators, "or there will be no alternative "but the government ownership of "such services."

PRINCIPLE AND INTEREST.

It is painful to notice that the Democratic-Insurgent combination in the Senate, now engaged in making an exemplary tariff revision bill, has again fallen into the ancient way. On Tuesday four duties in the wool schedule were jacked up, one from the present rate of 24 cents to 31 cents. Who shall protect "the people" from protectionist wickedness when some of their special guardians backslide? There has been some facetious comment in the Senate on the aversion of cattle to sheep, a feeling which, according to Mr. FESS, doesn't exist in Ohio. Evidently, American shepherds and manufacturers are able to come to terms, faithful to a, if not the, common interest.

It is an old story. Whatever lofty ground it is convenient to take about a tariff, the moment comes when one has to do something for his State's ewe lamb; or some other State's ewe lamb, according to the law of "Do ut des." In the teeth of all the flourishes and denunciations by the high moral tariffsmiths, the giving continues good. If Mr. BLAINE is correct in his forecast, this is going to be a cold Winter and a hard:

> We are therefore going to deny to the rank and file of our people, the people who can least afford to pay for fancy woolen clothing, the warmth and comfort to which they are entitled through the use of woolen raiment.

If that be so, it is consoling to reflect that the consumer is used to being left out in the cold. Meanwhile, the coalition will keep warm, wrapped in its own virtue. Anti-protectionist Senators will be liberal in offering the farmer a protection, mostly illusory, and every now and then give their consent to another act of that "robbery" which they so abominate on principle. "The people" may have to use substitute woolen blankets. The Senator must have votes. For them there is no substitute. So we must be tolerant with Senators that relax into protectionism. Their necessity is greater than that of "the people."

WOMEN, WAR AND CITIZENSHIP

Less notorious than the case of Mme. ROSIKA SCHWIMMER, another instance of refusing naturalization to a woman because of her failure to come up to the construction of patriotism by a judge has recently occurred in Ohio. Brought to the United States as a child from Germany, educated in Kansas and Ohio, the lady in question was denied citizenship when she refused to state that she would bear arms in defense of her adopted country. She would be willing to serve in the army as a nurse, and go to the front. When pressed to say whether she would fight, she replied, "I cannot kill, but I would be willing to give my life."

It is hard to see what more can be required as a test of loyalty. But it did not satisfy the judge. He insisted on the hypothetical case of her being asked to take up arms in defense of the United States. Russia, to be sure, has occasionally had woman soldiers. In our own history one or two women, disguised as men, have taken part in battles. But never has there been any question of drafting them. To insist, therefore, that an applicant for naturalization be willing to bear arms is to demand what has never been required of her feminine fellow-citizens.

The oath as amended in the naturalization act of 1906 provides that the applicant declare that he "will "support and defend the Constitu-"tion and laws of the United States "against all enemies, foreign and "domestic." But this oath was framed at a time when naturalization of women was rare save through family relationship. It has been suggested that it be so phrased as to exempt women even by implication from the obligation to bear arms. If the super-patriotism of the Ohio judge who grilled this would-be American citizen, and who rejected as inadequate her statement that she would gladly sacrifice her life for the United States, serves to focus attention on this entire problem anew it will not have been in vain.

SELF-RESPECT OF THE POOR.

An experienced social worker was once asked what she found to be the greatest difficulty in trying to carry help into homes of poverty. Without hesitation she replied: "Not to break down their self-respect." This is a delicate yet very practical consideration in such matters. Even the poorest and most unfortunate are entitled to their right of privacy. They may well be tempted at times to exclaim, in the presence of what seems to them intrusion, no matter how well meant, that the heart knoweth its own bitterness and a stranger intermeddleth not. Time and again it has been shown that the wisest and kindest and most successful philanthropy is that which takes pains to understand and safeguard the sensitiveness of those whom it is sought to aid.

Here is surely one of the great advantages and sources of appeal in the administration of the Neediest Cases Fund. Complete anonymity is preserved for those who require help. No officious and bustling Mrs. Jellyby bursts in upon them. The trained agents of the charitable organizations who inquire into their condition and needs do so with the utmost consideration. There is no prying publicity in the process. On the other hand, those who give to these individuals or families in temporary distress are assured that they may do so with every regard for the feelings of the persons whom they seek to get over a hard place. And the gifts arrive at their destination with a kind of happy impersonality. There is no patronizing, no condescension. Simply, help comes where it is most needed, just as if it were a bestowal by the Christmas Spirit. The benefactors are unknown, but the benefit flows into a room where want or crippling illness is present, without the slightest entrenching upon the sense of individual pride, which may beat just as strongly in the bosom of poverty as in that of wealth. It is one of the chief results and merits of the system followed in the collection and application of the fund for the Neediest Cases.

DRAKES AND BLAKES.

A warning to the public not to be deceived by swindlers who offer to release a fortune held "in Chancery" has just been issued by the State Department. The American Consul General in London has recently been deluged with letters from persons in this country who have been convinced by smooth-spoken confidence men that they are the heirs to "estates" which have been increasing for perhaps a hundred years as they lay untouched in the Bank of England. These gullible individuals contribute to a fund which will be used, according to the swindler, to get their heritage for them. They and all the rest of the clan of Drakes or Blakes or Townleys will divide several billions of dollars as soon as a few simple details are settled. An official statement from London says that there are no fortunes of any considerable size in Chancery, but that fact does not prevent an ancient fraud from being worked with as much success as when it was first tried.

The Drakes of America have suffered so much at the hands of unscrupulous orators that it is astonishing to learn that some of them are still credulous. Their case is fairly typical of the tricksters' methods among supposed descendants of pioneers, buccaneers or squatters who left mythical estates. A sharper begins his campaign by a series of letters to all the Drakes in a certain locality. By his arts and wiles—letters, then speeches, then reunions and social gatherings—he convinces them that they are descendants of Sir FRANCIS, whose fortune of enormous proportions will be given to them as soon as he and the proper legal lights are sent to England to get them their just dues. Sometimes he adds to his income by selling them a handsome though fictitious genealogy, with their own names neatly bringing it down to date. Only a couple of years ago the Drakes of California were organized, at a dollar a head for every hundred dollars to be received from the estate, to recover the plunder of Sir FRANCIS. State officials prosecuted the organizers, but the Drakes themselves were resentful of that attempt to protect them from the modern freebooters. They behaved like the Anneke Jans heirs, who had a woman thrown out of one of their meetings when she suggested that they were wasting their money in trying to recover the lower end of Manhattan.

It may be a sign of increasing skepticism among the intended victims that they have taken to writing to London for confirmation of their hopes. If the Consul General's advice is sought before contributions are made to the swindler's hope chest, he stands little chance of duping the innocent. But if they pay first and inquire later, one can only conclude that neither governmental warnings nor sad personal experience can protect them.

SURPLUSAGE OF TEACHERS.

There can never be an oversupply of persons trained to teach, even if there are not enough school positions for all who have undergone training. One who learns how to teach others learns how best to teach one's self. Many of those who take teacher-training will ultimately have parental responsibilities, and it is doubtful if there is better basic preparation for meeting them than equipment to teach children. It is not, therefore, a waste of public funds if more are graduated from our city training institutions than can find immediate employment in the schools.

A few years ago it was difficult to find enough competent teachers to fill the elementary school positions, but with the considerable increase in salaries, due in the first instance to the more generous quotas from the State and then to the recognition that has been given to superior attainments and service, the supply has come to exceed by far the demand.

It is creditable to the city that the rewards it offers teachers invite candidates in such great numbers, even with heightened standards. Still higher requirements can be made without imperiling the supply. A special committee has been set up by the city superintendent to make an inquiry and to recommend what should be done to insure a permanent supply of adequately trained teachers without disappointing thousands or even hundreds who have been encouraged to look forward to teaching as a profession.

Meanwhile, most of those who have had the necessary training and have earned their licenses, but have not found places, have doubtless secured employment in other occupations or have that position in the home which in the census returns is described as "without occupation." In any event, the surplusage of teachers does not necessarily mean a waste of funds in educating those who cannot be placed for a long time, if at all. In many cases they are prepared for a service in the home quite as important.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

The Value of Football.

Coach ROSS of Princeton, who knows a good deal about the subject, asserts that football is not going to continue simply because newspapers "set up mere boys as idols and then knock them down for a single misplay." Nor will it continue because 75,000 people attend the games. Its value, according to this authority, depends upon the extent to which football brings out "sterling qualities in men."

The formula could not be stated more accurately. The closer adherence which is given to it by coaches and players alike, the better will football fare in this country. At the moment the game, because it has been overstressed at many colleges and schools, is under the fire of investigators with whose criticisms many faculties are in sympathy. Much of the blame for conditions was placed by these investigators on the coach. It should hearten them to know that one eminent coach is pursuing the same end they are.

Among those who listened to Mr. ROPER'S remarks were members of this year's unsuccessful Princeton football team. Once during the season their coach had told them that he did not think highly of their prowess. But that is not the test. Undoubtedly he found that many of them developed, even under the pressure of steady defeat, those "sterling qualities" which he thinks the game brings out. That is the larger victory.

The High Cost of Passports.

Despite the fears expressed in Europe that the late unpleasantness in Wall Street is likely to cut down the number of tourists in Europe, there is merit in the renewed demand of the Merchants' Association that the initial cost of passports be reduced from $10 to $2. This sum, according to the association's experts, is enough to cover the actual costs of preparing and issuing the document.

This expense item is apart from that of visas. As every traveler knows—too well—it is necessary not only to pay the $10 charge for obtaining a passport, but an additional sum for every visa of every foreign government—barring the few which do not require such sums from American travelers. The efforts to have the visa charges reduced have been only partially successful.

In the case of the original cost to American citizens of obtaining their passports—and of renewing them—the decision can be made in this country. Perhaps Congress, when it has disposed of the tariff, the World Court, the Philippines and a few other trifles, will get around to this issue. Unfortunately, the tourist vote is neither large nor well organized.

Making Capital of Misfortune.

Stories of the comfortable fortunes which have been made by beggars gained a little color of authenticity from a recent report. A crippled woman plied the trade of begging to such good purpose that she was able to rent an apartment in midtown, employ a maid, retain two youths to wheel her about and keep all four in comfort in her home. Four police dogs were included in the ménage. Her income for a single day was sometimes as much as $25.

Such financial success was due to commercialized begging. A story from England describes the case of a man who, though in no sense a professional beggar, displayed an even greater capacity for cashing in on ready sympathy.

All his life he had kept his savings in a bank. When it failed, he went to his friends complaining of his hard luck. So touching was his tale that kind-hearted friends gave or loaned him sums to the amount of $500. When an inquiry was held a little later, the presiding justice ordered that all accounts should be published. It was then brought to light that the unfortunate depositor had an overdraft of $250 when the bank failed.

Such ability to cash compassion should bring its possessor through even a Wall Street panic with flying colors and a snug bank account.

Embowered Lamp-Posts.

"Do flower boxes belong on lamp-posts?" This inquiry was addressed to the editor of The American City. He thought the chairman of the Federal Commission on Fine Arts in Washington ought to know something about it, so he wrote to him. But Mr. MOORE hesitated to commit himself or the commission he represents. He thought it might be well to confine civic horticulture to larger areas. And what would one do with the embowered posts in unseasonable weather? "I should fancy that during the long cold Winters the hanging garden effect would be decidedly unpleasant," Mr. MOORE concluded.

Much the same verdict was returned by a number of local art commissions. The general opinion seemed to be that while a city should strive to make its streets, parkways, parks and playgrounds attractive, it could afford to leave flower boxes to the initiative of private citizens. Minneapolis is an exception. It already has flower boxes on its lamp-posts and is confident that they "satisfy the proper esthetic and artistic senses."

It is to be regretted that our own Art Commission was not consulted. It would have taken a lofty view of the matter. What was it AL SMITH said about these ancient landmarks? "Better a lamp-post on Park Row than a cycle of Cathay," or something to that effect. They are decorated enough already. It is a sufficient hardship on the Central Park motorist to have ornamental bronze come crashing about his head every time he runs one of them down, without adding the indignity of flower pots.

MAKING PLAY FASHIONABLE.

One Way Out Is Suggested for Poor Little Rich Children.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"The Poor Little Rich Boy" is indeed a problem, as W. Jerold O'Neil pointed out in his letter in THE TIMES of Dec. 5. It is certainly extremely wasteful to omit the finest strains of fruit in our eagerness to save large quantities from taint. I was especially interested in this letter from Stamford, because I have had intimate knowledge of some of these poor rich children, who had every opportunity to become spoiled and apparently no chance to develop strong character, surrounded as they were with concentrated pampering, until circumstances brought about a change of environment, with the proper influence of a strong, well-rounded character, and a sympathetic knowledge of a child's deep need for wholesome leadership.

It is a problem for real thinkers, to reach these youngsters, "with their backgrounds of wealth and culture, * * * to save these fine minds and their power to project and accomplish great undertakings," to quote Mr. O'Neil, "who are failures despite the money lavished on their educations."

It has been suggested that attendance at playgrounds be compulsory, so that leisure be supervised. Compulsory play seems a contradiction in terms. Playgrounds must be developed to a far higher standard of efficiency, so that they may almost guarantee a happy time, before we may consider making them compulsory. Until then we may perhaps hope that it may be possible to make play in a well-supervised playground fashionable. We now have private and elegant restricted parks. A playground in a fine neighborhood might also be restricted to the residents of that neighborhood. Self-reliance, unselfishness and other fine traits of character should be developed in young children through the right kind of play.

Scientists tell us that the character pattern is developed for life at a very early age. The rich child too often is not permitted to exercise his natural powers. Froebel has taught us how much the child learns from the simple privilege of doing part of the time what he chooses to do.

A neighborhood playground requires a skilled director, who would be a fine substitute several hours a day for the untrained nursemaid or the governess. Every child should have a tree to climb, a swing, a jumping pit and a hill. These are elementary nature trainers. He should have a pet to care for and a companion to play with. Who will try to make playgrounds fashionable?

More Clinics Wanted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Recently I came across a weekly bulletin of the New York Health Department calling attention to the facilities offered by the department to private physicians who have under their care patients suspected of suffering from pulmonary tuberculosis. This service provides for the most expert assistance in making a correct diagnosis.

The greatest surprise to me, however, was the admission that in this, the richest city in the world, there are only two clinics offering this service. This certainly does not sound so good. Having patients travel in overcrowded conveyances is inviting them to spread the disease.

Why shouldn't there be facilities for this important service within easy access in every section of the city? It seems so callous and heartless to ask tubercular patients to exert themselves more than they absolutely have to.

RAINBOW LANDS.

Winter has no cold teeth to crumble these:
The painted desert and the rainbow tower.
These are the changeless principalities,
The walls of wonder and the dreamer's dower.

I have rejected cities to go free
A season where the trails lift toward the sky,
Bedding my campfires by old masonry.
The lean cold does not find me where I lie.

And though, by times, I think how beds are white
In rooms I frequented, and how sweet food
Assailed the tongue, and comfort in the night,
I find, for being more the man, the good
Clean earth propitiates; the rich blood sings.
See how the morning rides on painted wings!

A CANADIAN VIEW

Of Our Tariff, Canada's Acquiescence and the Newsprint Issue.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES editorial comment frowning upon Canada's efforts to establish a living wage for newsprint involves you (or any American who voices a similar view) in a choice example of mealy-mouthed hypocrisy. The United States lecturing Canada on trade crimes! Ye gods and little fishes!

Ever since 1891 the United States has imposed an impregnable tariff barrier against Canada. The United States tariff is a slap in the face and nothing short of an act of war to the rest of the world. The expert designers of your tariff virtually say to Canada: "Look here, Canada, you spineless microbe! You buy my goods, but I won't buy yours."

The things you do buy from Canada are raw materials, which are just the things we infantile Canadians should not be letting you have upon your own terms. Over the long years Canada, until this newsprint incident, has never made one single move to adequately price its treasures! We have allowed the United States to walk all over us and through these years you have gently relieved us of our men, our money and our raw materials.

Please do not misunderstand me. I do not blame the United States. The blame is Canada's for allowing you to do it. You have adopted the policy of self-preservation; you have adopted the policy of looking out for Number One; you have adopted the policy of shutting out the products of the pauper labor of Europe and of giving the United States farmer and the United States manufacturer the first right to sell in his own home market.

Your policy has paid. Millions of Canadians have been forced to go to the United States to earn a living. The prosperity you have enjoyed under your tariff policy has rivaled the magic achievements of Aladdin's lamp, for nowhere in the world do the masses enjoy so many of the luxuries of life as they do in your country.

I repeat that Canada has never attempted to make an adequate answer to your tariff challenge. We took your slap in the face with a measure of composure that should make a loyal Canadian's blood boil.

We import from you each year hundreds of millions of dollars of manufactured goods which should be manufactured in our own country, and which we would manufacture if we ever took it into our stupid heads to strike back. The fault is all our own, but possibly we are at last awakening. I hope so.

FIRST AID TO CRIMINALS.

Rules of Evidence Provide Many Loopholes of Escape.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The recent New York fiasco due to the shocking and impractical rules of evidence evidently has jarred District Attorney Banton into an attack upon the non-impeachment of your own witness rule and produced from him a proposed statute which he says he is going to recommend to the Baumes Crime Commission. It has a better one of its own.

The rules of evidence, in criminal cases at least, ought to be abolished. They have been abolished in workmen's compensation cases. Every criminal court reporter of much experience knows that, as District Attorney Tuttle said recently at Oswego, they are the criminal's greatest refuge. Neither judges nor lawyers, as Justice Proskauer has said in effect, understand them. There is no sensible reason why evidence cannot be produced in a court as sensibly as it is brought out in a workman's compensation case.

We inherit the rules from the common law. In his book on "Evidence at the Common Law," Judge Appleton of the Supreme Court of Judicature of Maine said:

> "Of the rules of evidence as established by the common law, it may be said, without the slightest exaggeration, that if the knaves and criminals, great and small, had united upon a code the object of which should be to afford the greatest security to each consistent with the existence of law; had then taken 'sweet counsel together' with full power to establish rules of evidence which should afford the minimum protection to society and the maximum impunity to themselves, with yet a remote possibility of punishment, it is difficult to perceive how, having any rules, they could materially have improved upon the existent law."

The greatest check criminals could experience would be the abolition of these rules. Lawyers will not abolish them nor will they stand for much amendment of them, if let alone. Lawyers have used them to win cases they should have, in justice, lost. Law students are taught them in the law schools. Theirs not to reason why. In time, as Chief Judge Cardozo of the Court of Appeals has said he feared, lawyers come to regard as fundamental and axiomatic that which laymen view with indignation and surprise.

A wholesale reform of these rules can be brought about by a concerted attack upon them. It seems that the time is ripe. No feature of court practice has done so much to render the courts the object of scorn and derision not only of the criminal classes but of law-abiding people generally.

Imposing on the Horse.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The other day I saw a horse attached to a stall wagon standing in the cold for over a half-hour with only a canvas cover on its back. The driver was all wrapped up in the wool blanket which was provided for the horse.

The horse is doing everything that is asked of it—out all day in the cold on the slippery pavements—and when it is provided with a blanket by its owner, why is it not used for the horse instead of the driver?

THE SUBURBS' BROKEN QUIET

Nature's Nocturnal Noises Can Be Enjoyed, but There Are Others.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The present agitation about objectionable city noises is of much interest to the suburbanite, who likes to believe that he escapes most of the unpleasant features of city life. But in this particular matter the commuter is often not a bit better off than the townsman. Of course, we have the usual and appropriate country noises, such as the early matins of the birds and the nocturnal chorus of tree-toads, crickets, katydids, &c. These one can get used to and even enjoy.

But of man-made noises we have one that makes all city noises seem like oppressive silence. I refer to the nerve-racking, sleep-dispelling locomotive whistle. And this abomination is all the more irritating because it seems to be utterly futile and unnecessary. For example, consider the warning whistle for a highway crossing. In the open country this may be regarded as a necessary expedient, but in suburban communities where crossings are protected by gates, bells and red lights the whistle certainly seems superfluous. But if it is still considered necessary, is it not obvious that the place for the whistle is not on the locomotive but at the crossing? With horns directing the sound up and down the highway, a less stentorian whistle would suffice, and the ears of some of the population at least might be spared.

Even worse than the crossing signal is the whistling which is part of the ceremony involved in starting a freight train. In our town, which unfortunately is near an assembling yard, when the engineer is ready to proceed he "steps on the gas" and utters four or five whistles of the utmost magnitude. On inquiry I find that the purpose of this exuberance is to arouse the brakeman, who is resting in the caboose at the rear end of the train. Obviously, the signal is effective, but why should all the population of the surrounding township be also awakened? The brakeman, emerging from the caboose, does not find it necessary to reply to the engineer with a bomb or a trumpet, but contents himself with a wholly unobjectionable wave of his lantern, and the train proceeds. Now, if a modest visible signal is good enough for the brakeman, why is not a similar one sufficient for the engineer? Furthermore, the practice of sleeping in the caboose ought to be discouraged. But if this is not practical and a whistle is thought necessary, why not connect a moderate whistle of say fifty-horsepower to the compressed air line and let it explode alongside of the couch, or morris chair, or other receptacle containing the brakeman? The uproar would thus be desirably localized, and the matter not forced on the attention of the populace, who are not at all interested.

In fact, all this whistling is an anachronism, a relic of barbarism. It is an example of the curious conservativeness which seems to characterize our railway management. Recall how long it took to secure the universal adoption of the air-brake. There is little doubt that, were it not for legal compulsion, we would still be traveling in wooden cars, with coal stoves and kerosene lamps. Even the elaborate block signals should be obsolete. Scattered along the right of way, they put a tremendous strain on the engineer, and in thick weather compel him to take chances which do not always result happily. Obviously, the place for the traffic signal is in the locomotive cab. Any competent electrician can furnish the "hook-up," and ultimately, no doubt, this will be done.

But whistling in suburban communities should be strictly prohibited.

A National Lack of Intelligence.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

During October I suffered a compound fracture of a leg in an automobile accident. The natural result was weeks of prostration with a weight on the foot. To one of active constitution the early outcome of this was impaired digestion and departure of appetite.

What was the logical prescription? Twenty-five years ago a heavy ale or porter would have been prescribed without any discussion of the benefit of vitamins. Under the circumstances, here was a patient helpless on his back and unable to obtain beverages that had been in common use since before recorded history.

There was plenty of time to consider the reasonableness of the case. What type of persons could be responsible for such a situation? It is evident that prohibition must surely be fostered by a "lunatic fringe." Mingled with it are a few well-meaning persons uncultured and untraveled. No American who had ever experienced the benefits of malted beverages as a medicine would voice support of the present prohibition system. The inability to differentiate between the effects of a sane system of State liquor control and a country of saloons indicates an absence of a much-needed intelligence where events of national welfare are concerned.

Not All Are Pleased.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES reports Mr. Gratke as saying that the new traffic arrangements at Columbus Circle "have been found from observation to be very satisfactory both to pedestrians and to vehicular traffic."

I do not know where he got his information, but if he should interview some of the passengers on the Fifty-ninth Street and the Broadway surface cars who have to transfer from one of these lines to the other I think he would get a very different report. That there has seldom been a more stupid traffic regulation is the opinion of ONE OF THEM.

EINSTEIN SEES KEY TO MATTER IN SPACE

Expects Advance in Problem to Give Basis for Conception of Atomic Components.

REVIEWS PAST THEORIES

Physicist Speaks Before the Kaiser Wilhelm Society on the Ether Question.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 11.—Lecturing tonight on "Physical Space and the Ether Problem" at the Harnack House of the Kaiser Wilhelm Society, Professor Albert Einstein attempted to show how this problem had developed gradually during the last few centuries.

"Before then," he said, "the conception of space was one of an external world and body. The geometry of the Greeks, which treated of the possible stratification of corpuscular objects, did not know space as a continuum. Descartes, who created analytic geometry, first introduced space as a continuum into mathematics, and Newton, who especially investigated acceleration, determined space as a fundamental physical conception.

"In the nineteenth century, when scientists were occupied with the essence of light, they resorted to the absence of ether and field, and, with the help of both, scientists were able to describe occurrences in matterless portions of space."

Professor Einstein then explained how one arrived at four-dimensional space.

"The special relativity theory," he said, "combines space and time, but the universal relativity theory puts space, ether and field into a unified form. Space has swallowed time and ether and is now attempting to swallow field and corelative. When we will have advanced that far this conception of space will provide us with a key for a theory of the atomic components of matter."

A reception was given to the famous physicist yesterday by the German Jewish Aid Society. Discussing the responsibility of individuals in charitable enterprises, he said:

"I am not a voice crying in the wilderness, but it seems to me that in the days of coming depression many good folk begin to economize at the wrong end. They seek to escape their social obligations and duties instead of installing their personal requirements."

YALE MAY ABANDON JUNIOR PROMENADE

Student Council Orders New Vote on "Prom" Committee—Insists on Quorum.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 11 (AP).—The passing of Yale's junior promenade, for more than 100 years the outstanding social event of the year, again hangs in the balance.

The student council, The Yale News announced today, went on record last night as favoring a revoting for members of the committee of the class of '31, basing its stand on the decided lack of interest shown by members of the class "and the manifestations of irregular methods in the securing of votes for membership on the committee."

The council unanimously passed a resolution that hereafter all committees elected in the college must represent a quorum of two-thirds of those eligible to vote. It was decided that a more inclusive plebiscite for committee members must be held by tomorrow, upon which the fate of the "prom" might hinge.

The junior "prom" is one of Yale's brightest traditions. In olden days hundreds of eligible damsels from all over the country came to New Haven with their chaperons, to find an entire hotel given over to their use. From the moment of their arrival the round of festivities began. The dancing at the main event lasted all night. In recent years the faculty decree shortened the "prom" season and the "prom" itself was overshadowed by elaborate fraternity house dances.

THOMAS ROLAND, FLORIST.

Noted Horticulturist of Nahant Dies Following Operation.

Special to The New York Times.

LYNN, Mass., Dec. 11.—Thomas Roland of Nahant, nationally known horticulturist and trustee of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, died at the Lynn Hospital today following an operation for appendicitis Sunday. Specializing in orchids, roses and acadias, Mr. Roland, in 1915, sold to Joseph E. Widener of Philadelphia what was considered at the time the finest collection of acadias in the world.

Later, the Society of American Florists and Horticulturists awarded him the gold medal at their Los Angeles convention for the greatest contributions to the advancement of horticulture during the previous five years.

Born in Birkenhead, England, Mr. Roland came to this country as a young man and began his career as a private gardener in Nahant. Later he bought a small commercial greenhouse there, which he operated with his four sons for thirty-seven years. Besides his activities in the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, he was one of the founders and a trustee of the American Orchid Society and a former president of the Society of American Florists.

GEORGE NOTMAN DIES AT 77

Had Served for Fifty Years as Official of Mining Company.

George Notman, formerly secretary, treasurer and a director of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation of 99 John Street, Manhattan, died yesterday in Brooklyn Hospital, after a brief illness. He was 77 years old and had completed nearly fifty years with the mining company on his retirement five years ago.

Mr. Notman lived at 138 Joralemon Street, Brooklyn. He was a member of the Reformed Church on the Heights, and among his clubs were the Hamilton Club of Brooklyn, the Railroad and Hardware Clubs of Manhattan, and the Richmond County Country Club. He was a life-long resident of Brooklyn.

He left his wife, Katherine Howard Notman; two sons, Howard of Brooklyn and Arthur of Staten Island; a daughter, Mrs. D. C. Prince of Schenectady, and a sister, Miss Edith Notman of Manhattan. Funeral services will be private.

CHARLES H. MORSON.

Dealer in Antiques, Recognized as an Authority, Dies Suddenly.

Charles R. Morson of 103 East Seventy-fifth Street, dealer in antiques, died suddenly on Tuesday of apoplexy while giving orders to one of his cabinet makers in his workshop at 352 East Fifty-sixth Street. He was 59. For many years his store, recently moved to 36 East Fifty-fourth Street, was at 106 East Fifty-seventh Street. Surviving are a widow, Josephine, and a son, William Taylor Morson. Funeral services will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman at 3:45 P. M. today in the chapel of Greenwood Cemetery.

An authority on American antiques, Mr. Morson was often called in lawsuits to testify as an expert. He started in business with his father, the late Charles H. Morson, who dealt in Chinese art on lower Fulton Street, Brooklyn.

Forest J. Foust.

Special to The New York Times.

ORANGE, N. J., Dec. 11.—Forest J. Foust, organist of Grace Episcopal Church and composer, died yesterday in Orange Memorial Hospital of peritonitis after an operation for appendicitis. He was born in Portsmouth, N. H., twenty-six years ago. Before coming here he was organist of Grace Church, Mansfield, Ohio. A widow, two children and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Noah O. Foust of Cleveland, survive.

Wilfrid Hartley.

Wilfrid Hartley, a retired banker, died yesterday at his residence, 80 Irving Place, after an illness of three months. He was a son of the late Joseph and Floriada Morton Hartley. Surviving are his widow, the former Leonora K. Berry, and two daughters. Mrs. Hartley is a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution and the National Society of Colonial Dames. Funeral services will be held privately.

Judge James T. Hubbell Dead.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 11.—The death of Judge James T. Hubbell, 78 years old, of Norwalk, former Mayor of that city and member of the Fairfield County bar for fifty years, occurred in the New Haven General Hospital during the night. He was a Yale graduate, and is survived by a widow and two children.

John Bloomfield Beach.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Dec. 11 (AP).—John Bloomfield Beach, 63, Florida pioneer and tropical horticulturist, died at his Lakeside home last night after a week's illness. He was born in Rome, N. Y., in 1866 and came to Florida in 1885.

Rabbi M. Kleptisch Dead at 75.

WARSAW, Dec. 11 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Rabbi Motel Kleptisch, for forty years a rabbi in the Graybo district here, died today at the age of 75. He was a son of the noted Rabbi Sanvele Kleptisch.

PROF. W. R. ARNOLD OF HARVARD DIES

Held the Hancock Chair of Oriental Languages There for Several Years.

SERVED ANDOVER SEMINARY

Curator of Department of Antiquities in Metropolitan Museum in Early Years.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 11.—William R. Arnold, since 1922 Hancock Professor of Hebrew and other Oriental languages at Harvard University, died suddenly of heart disease today at his home here. His age was 57.

Professor Arnold was born of German parentage in Beirut, Syria, on Nov. 14, 1872, and was educated at Ohio Wesleyan University and Union Theological Seminary. After receiving a Ph. D. degree from Columbia University in 1896, he became curator of the Department of Antiquities at the Metropolitan Art Museum, New York, remaining there until 1898, when he went to Andover Theological Seminary.

From 1908 to 1922 Professor Arnold was Andover Professor of Hebrew languages and literature at Harvard, assuming his last position in the latter year. He was a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, a former president of the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis and the author of many books and articles on Oriental and biblical subjects.

R. PORTER ASHE DIES AFTER A STROKE

Attorney, Sportsman and Member of Pioneer Family of San Francisco.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 11.—R. Porter Ashe, attorney, sportsman and member of one of California's most distinguished pioneer families, died here this morning of a cerebral hemorrhage, which he suffered on Monday night while playing bridge with friends at his home. In two hours he lapsed into unconsciousness, from which he never recovered. With him at his death were his brothers, Gaston and Sidney Ashe, and a niece, Mrs. Milton Griffith. His age was 68.

Mr. Ashe was one of the most colorful figures in California. Born here in 1861, he was the son of Dr. Richard Ashe, formerly of Asheville, N. C., and the former Caroline Loyall of Virginia. The elder Ashe had come to California as the first Naval Governor when the State was taken over from Mexico.

Asheville was named for an ancestor of Porter Ashe. John and Isaac Ashe, noted lawyers of pre-Revolutionary days in Boston, were also ancestors. John was Attorney General for the Crown in the reign of George III, and the Attorney Generalship of the Republic was offered to Isaac by Washington after the Revolution.

H. B. SCOFIELD DEAD AT 75.

Was Oldest Manufacturer of Furniture in New England.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWTON, Mass., Dec. 11.—Henry B. Scofield of Newton, senior member of the firm of Plimpton Scofield Company, one of the oldest furniture men in New England, died today at the Newton Hospital after a brief illness. The funeral will be held Friday at 2:30 P. M. from the Newton Cemetery chapel. He was 75 years old.

Mr. Scofield was born in Bridgeport, Conn. His father was a manufacturer and the inventor of the Plimpton sofa bed.

In 1875 Mr. Scofield came to Boston to assume the management of the Boston branch of the H. R. Plimpton Company. In 1901 this business was consolidated with that of the W. H. Hervey Company and was continued with Mr. Scofield as president. The business later was incorporated as the Plimpton Scofield company.

Lee R. Johnston, Paper Man, Dies.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Dec. 11.—Lee R. Johnston, founder of the Johnston Paper Company here, died today. He was 69 years old. Thirty years ago he entered the employ of the Whitaker Paper Company here. He became a director in the firm. Later he severed this connection and established his own business. In May, 1928, he retired. He left a wife, a daughter, Miss Emily Johnston, and a brother, Willard Johnston of Sandusky, Ohio. The funeral will be held Friday. Burial will be in Evergreen Cemetery.

Mrs. Mortimer's Funeral Today.

The funeral of Mrs. Richard Mortimer, who died on Monday at her residence, 555 Park Avenue, will take place this morning from St. Mary's Church, Tuxedo Park.

Mrs. Mortimer, who was a descendant of John Jay, first Chief Justice of the United States, is survived by a son, Stanley Grafton Mortimer, two daughters, Mrs. Maxime H. Furland and Mrs. Frederic Frothingham; a brother, John Jay Chapman and a sister Mme. Beatrix de Candolle.

Mrs. Mortimer was president of the Thursday Evening Club and was formerly treasurer of Bellevue Hospital.

Mrs. Edward Harbenstein.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 11.—Mrs. Edward Harbenstein, during a half century's residence here the most widely known woman caterer of the State, died on Sunday in Groton and was buried here today in Cedar Hill Cemetery. Her husband and business partner died several years ago. Mrs. Harbenstein was a familiar figure at Governors' balls given by Governors and other State and municipal officers, directing the supper arrangements.

Miss May Cecilia Dillon.

Miss May Cecilia Dillon, who was active in the Red Cross work of the war period and was well known socially in Nassau County, died yesterday at her home in Lawrence, L. I., where she lived with her brother, Frank M. Dillon, a broker with offices at 29 Broadway. She was the daughter of the late John Rhinelander and Jane T. Dillon. A requiem mass will be offered in the Church of St. Mary Star of the Sea in Far Rockaway, L. I., at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

MRS. Z. BARNES WOOD, RADIO ARTIST, DEAD

Conductor Who Broadcast Operas Over Station WJZ Victim of Stroke.

Mrs. Zilpha Barnes Wood, vocal teacher, composer and conductor, died yesterday morning at her home, 35-63 Eightieth Street, Jackson Heights, Queens. Death was caused by a paralytic stroke suffered on Friday. Mrs. Wood was well known to radio audiences for her broadcasts of condensed versions of grand operas over WJZ and other stations. Her age was 63.

Until her first stroke in April, Mrs. Wood directed the activities of the Grand Opera Society of New York, which she organized in 1915 to promote grand opera in English and bring singers not well known before the public.

She was born in Killbuck, Ohio, on Dec. 1, 1866, the daughter of Enos S. Price and the former Sarah Meyers Barnes. After graduating from the Pittsburgh College of Music with an A. B. in music, she entered the Cincinnati College of Music to prepare for concert work on the piano, but suffered an injury to her wrist and turned to a study of composition and the voice. For a time she was a teacher at the Cincinnati college, but later opened her own school of music in the same city. In 1904 she transferred her school to New York.

Funeral services will be held at the house this afternoon at 3 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. Leland Carey, pastor of the Community Church of Jackson Heights. The body will be cremated at Fresh Pond.

CHARLES H. STODDART DIES IN FLORIDA

Dean of Chicago Advertising Men Succumbs to Brief Illness at 75 —Colleagues Praise Him.

Charles Henry Stoddart, dean of advertising men in Chicago, where for fifty-four years he had been a newspaper representative and advertising agent, died Tuesday night in Hampton Springs, Fla., after a serious illness of a few days following several years of poor health. He had left Chicago for the milder Southern climate in the hope that it would improve his condition. He was 75. Three sisters survive. His wife died Feb. 5, 1928.

On Sept. 21, 1925, 350 advertising men gathered at a dinner in the Blackstone Hotel, Chicago, in honor of Mr. Stoddart's completion of half a century in the advertising business. A native of Delhi, N. Y., Mr. Stoddart started his career in 1875 as advertising manager of the Sunday School Times and Baptist Teacher. Three years later he became an advertising solicitor for a syndicate of mail order magazines. In 1882 he joined Frank A. Munsey on the Argosy Magazine and in 1886 was sent to Chicago, where for the last forty-three years he had represented the Frank A. Munsey Company.

Special meetings were held yesterday of the boards of directors of the Sun Printing and Publishing Association and of the Frank A. Munsey Company, at which memorial resolutions were adopted expressing regret at the death of Mr. Stoddart and praising his work and character. A sentence in the memorial of the former association read: "None held a warmer place in the affection of this organization than did he, and none more fully deserved that affection."

E. C. MIX, LACE IMPORTER.

Mount Vernon Resident, Life Member of Kane Lodge, Dies.

Edward C. Mix of 160 East Fourth Street, Mount Vernon, for many years a lace importer in New York City, died yesterday after a long illness. He was born in New York City and for many years was a member of Case & Mix, lace importers at Twenty-third Street and Broadway, which later became the Edward C. Mix importing house.

Mr. Mix was a member of the First Reformed Church, a life member of Kane Lodge, Masons, and of Enterprise Chapter, Royal Arch. He was a member of the board of directors of the Alding Club.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Rachel Gebhard Mix. The funeral will be held today at the mortuary of Burr Davis & Son and the burial will take place Friday in Pompey, N. Y.

Mrs. Sarah Balliet, Clubwoman.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 11.—Mrs. Sarah Balliet, clubwoman and author, died at her home at 112 South North Carolina Avenue here today after an illness of two weeks. She was 84 years old. Mrs. Balliet, who was the widow of Dr. L. Dow Balliet, founded the Woman's Research Club of Atlantic City, and was one of the founders of the Atlantic County Historical Society. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Mrs. Blodgett, War Nurse, 93, Dies.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 11.—Mrs. Amelia Cline Blodgett, one of the few surviving nurses of the Civil War, died today at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Gott. Her age was 93. After several months' training in the Massachusetts General Hospital Mrs. Blodgett in 1861 enrolled at Boston as a nurse with the Federal Army, serving for two and a half years. She nursed smallpox patients, witnessed fighting and at times had charge of Confederate wounded.

G. W. Gates, Last Guiteau Juror.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—George W. Gates, a retired employe of the Washington Navy Yard, where he worked for forty-five years, and said to be the last surviving juror who sat in at the trial of Guiteau for the assassination of President Garfield, died in Santa Clara, Cal., yesterday, according to word received here. He had resided in California since his retirement some years ago.

Allan H. Daugharty.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Dec. 11.—Allan H. Daugharty, 65, prominent Pacific Coast shipping man and lumber exporter, died last night in his suite at a hotel here. He is survived by his widow, Louise Daugharty. Mr. Daugharty was born in Fort Covington, N. Y.

Obituary Notes.

James F. Maher, 86, Civil War veteran, for half a century an official of the Marlin Arms Company, died Tuesday night at his home in New Haven, Conn.

Charles O. Bowers, 67, oldest policeman in New Haven, Conn., died at his home in Fair Haven, Conn., yesterday. He was chief for twenty several times.

PROF. E. D. ROE JR. DIES IN SYRACUSE

Had Taught Mathematics for Last 29 Years at Syracuse University.

HE WAS AN ASTRONOMER

Director of Holden Observatory—Author of Textbooks and Scientific Articles.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Dr. Edward Drake Roe Jr., for twenty-nine years Professor of Mathematics at Syracuse University, died this morning after an illness of three days. He was nearly 71 years old.

Dr. Roe was born in Elmira on Jan. 4, 1859. After graduating from Syracuse University he obtained a Bathelor's degree at Harvard in 1885 and a Master's degree the next year.

Later he took a course at the University of Erlangen, Germany, where he became a Doctor of Philosophy in 1898. Two years later he came to Syracuse University as Associate Professor of Mathematics. In 1901 he was appointed to the John Raymond French Chair of Mathematics. Later he was appointed director of Holden Observatory at the university and built a private observatory at the rear of his home.

Dr. Roe was the author of several textbooks and sixty-four scientific articles on mathematics and astronomy. He was a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and a member of the American Mathematical Society, the Syracuse Astronomical Society, of which he was founder, and similar societies in France, Germany and Italy, as well as other scientific bodies.

Besides a widow, the former Josephine Robinson, he is survived by a daughter, Mrs. E. H. Gaggin of Syracuse; a sister, Miss Ida Roe of Elmira, and a nephew, Francis Asbury Roe of Syracuse.

Mary P. Selchow Dead at 83.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Dec. 11.—Following a lingering illness, Mary Preston Selchow, widow of Elisha G. Selchow, former New York merchant, died this morning at her home, 94 Field Point Road. She was 83 years old and was the oldest member of the First M. E. Church, Greenwich. She is survived by three sons, three daughters, ten grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. The funeral will be held Friday afternoon and the burial will be in Putnam Cemetery.

Anton Wedl Dies in Vienna.

VIENNA, Dec. 11 (Jewish Telegraphic Agency).—Anton Wedl, a well-known German-American resident of New York, died here today in the Weiner Sanitarium, aged 65. Mr. Wedl was a notable friend of the Jews and was an important supporter of Austrian Jewish writers, despite the fact that he was an orthodox Catholic. The Vienna papers recall the fact that he was an intimate friend of the former Chief Rabbi Chajes.

Wanamaker Christmas Gifts—Fascinating!

FROM THE FOUNDER'S WRITINGS

TAKE a map of the globe and mark with a red pencil the countries where the goods come from that are now displayed. The sub-stream of all is the best of American-made goods, such as pianos and marvelous house-furnishing goods, linens that are all-linen from France and Belgium, silver and jewelry from England and Paris, laces and embroideries from Switzerland, gloves from Grenoble, leather goods from England and France. Someone said, after looking through the Store, "It looks as if the Old World were a big cow that had been milked for our benefit!" The retort was that it wasn't milk that we go after, but the cream of everything.

NEEDIEST FUND GETS $12,950 MORE IN DAY

Many Walks of Life Represented Among 495 Donors Touched by Human Suffering.

OLD FRIENDS IN THE LIST

George Gordon Battle Says He Knows of No Charity More Worthy of Support.

YOUNG HEARTS STIRRED

Children Give of Their Savings, Groups Help—"To Give Early Is to Give Twice," a Letter Says.

Among the 495 contributors who added $12,950.95 to the Hundred Neediest Cases Fund yesterday were lawyers, haberdashers, a professor of economics, an auction pinochle club, a Junior League, a pensioner, and under cover of anonymity, a member of the General Staff of the United States Army. Their letters, which are published today, in whole or part, exhibit the charitable reactions of a diverse public confronted with the greatest human distress in a great city.

They brought the total, so far this year, up to $54,210.44, from 1,529 contributors. At the same period last year, 1,483 contributors had given $62,224.21 to a fund which eventually reached $388,111.01.

Last year's response made it possible to relieve the distress of 469 Neediest Cases. This year the distress, illustrated by some of the waiting cases, printed in adjoining columns, is no less.

George Gordon Battle, a regular contributor to the fund, sent his annual letter of encouragement, which is printed in full as follows:

Lauds Work of Neediest Fund.

Hundred Neediest Cases Fund:

The appeal of the "Hundred Neediest Cases" comes to us again at this Christmas season when all feel inclined to do what we can to help others. I cannot conceive of an object more worthy nor methods more intelligent and satisfactory. The plan has been so carefully worked out that the donor is assured that his gift reaches recipients who need and deserve assistance. Furthermore, this aid is administered by skilled and careful hands and therefore with the highest degree of efficiency and without any waste. Also it is gratifying to know that through the arrangements made by THE TIMES these contributions are used in their entirety to assist the cases of necessity and suffering for which they are intended. There are no commissions, no administration expenses, and the whole amount is used solely for the benefit of those who so sorely need this relief.

In so far as the recent financial difficulties have any effect, I hope that the result will be in larger rather than in smaller subscriptions. In the first place, these troubles have undoubtedly caused in many instances unusual distress; and in the second place, I think that our public and philanthropic activities should be the last field in which we should diminish our expenditures. Our contributions for that purpose form as a rule a very small proportion of our yearly expenditures. Also it is essential for our own well-being that we should continue and if possible increase each year this habit of helping those around us who are in need.

The "Hundred Neediest Cases" affords a wonderful opportunity for us to help them and at the same time in far greater measure to help ourselves.

It gives me great pleasure to enclose herewith my check for $100 as a contribution toward this good work.

Believe me to be, with best wishes,

Faithfully yours,
GEORGE GORDON BATTLE.

Gifts Come From Many Cities.

Contributions arrived from Washington, Philadelphia, Wilmington, Albany, Boston, Cambridge. Checks for $100 were slipped into envelope addressed to the "Hundred Neediest Cases Fund," with no other communication but the amount and the signature which they necessarily displayed. A $10 note arrived in a New York envelope with no name or comment attached, simply to a fragment of THE NEW YORK TIMES, apparently torn out as a reminder to send a contribution. Known contributors who asked that their names be left out of the acknowledgment gave from $1 to $1,000. More than sixty contributors gave a total of $2,187 to relieve the distress of the living, in honor of the dead. Some of the letters follow, in whole or in part:

In Memory of Uncle Louis from Mary, Jane and Virginia—$1,000 for any of your needy cases, but preferably one with tuberculosis.

C. M. Keys—It gives me much pleasure to send you the enclosed check for $500 with the request that you kindly use your own judgment in administering this contribution to the Hundred Neediest Cases Fund.

Mrs. Charles D. Dickey—I am very glad to send the enclosed check for $250 to help Case 38 and wish her a happy Christmas.

One Who Wishes You Success in the Work You Are Doing and Hopes Next Year to Send More—Kindly apply the enclosed $200 check to help on Case 2, concerning the Van D. family, as printed in your paper of Sunday, or if this family's needs have already been met, apply as you see fit.

From Boston came an envelope containing simply a $200 check made out to the Hundred Neediest Cases Fund and signed by William Olwhile.

Has Studied Every Case.

Arthur H. D. Altree, vice president, American Bosch Magneto Corporation, Springfield, Mass.—Each year finds it more difficult for me to select the most pitiable cases in your list, as I have to go through it several times before I can make a final selection. Last year I picked out ten, and this year I find myself compelled to double that number, and even then I only wish it were in my power to contribute to every one of the hundred. However, as this is not possible, I am enclosing my check for $100, which please apply in the ratio of $5 each to the following twenty cases: 7, 13, 16, 25, 28, 29, 32, 45, 49, 59, 73, 76, 77, 79, 87, 89, 91, 95, 98, 100. I hope this contribution, small as it is, will make these unfortunate people a little happier, and no doubt as in past years, all will be taken care of—at least I hope so.

Sarah E. Summerfield—With the greatest pleasure I again send my check for $100 to this most worthy cause. As all cases are so worthy, so appealing, I am quite satisfied to have my mite distributed as you think best. With very best wishes.

In Loving Memory of My Father, Thomas F. Kates—Please accept my annual contribution for the Hundred Neediest, which I am thankfully able to slightly increase this year.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Palmer—After a lapse of several years, during which we were absent in the interior of Colombia, South America, we are delighted to have the opportunity of renewing our customary subscription, adding a little bit for good measure.

Mrs. Edward H. White—Enclosed please find check for $10 to be used for Case 9 in Sunday Times, which I am sending in memory of my son. All the cases are heart-breaking and it is a very wonderful work you are doing each year.

Aldah H. Cote—Enclosed find check for $25. I trust the final total this year will surpass last year's wonderful result.

Anonymous—Please use this small contribution where it will do the most good. All the cases are so deserving and so pitiful that I cannot choose. I prefer to be anonymous.

Margaret Dunkle—It is a privilege to be able to help, even in a small way, your battalion of heroes. Their terrific fight for bare existence makes one ashamed to enjoy the comforts of life. Use the enclosed $10 check on any one of the cases. I have no choice.

From One Who Has Very Little.

A Friend—Being no longer able to work, but for a small pension I should be among the needy myself. Please credit this $5 to "A Friend."

Evelyn Morris Halsted—It is with gratitude to God that I offer check for $85 and in memory of my mother, to be applied to Case 9. This is the Christmas check I love best to write. I am sorry my check cannot cover all the cases that my prayers do.

Sidney W. and Philip B. Wattenberg—Enclosed you will find check for $25. As has been said on many occasions, "To give early is to give twice."

In Memory of My Dearly Beloved Grandmother—Enclosed please find my check for $10. I certainly hope it will go toward making some old person happy. I am sending this in memory of my dearly beloved grandmother, who died at the age of 83, eighteen years ago, but whose beauty of soul has ever since kept my heart interested and tender toward the aged.

C. A.—Enclosed please find check for $5 which I wish to send in memory of my husband.

Peggy Schwarz—I'm sending you $5 for one of your cases. I was going to send my mother a Christmas present but thought you needed it more. I am only 10 years old and wish I had more to give you.

Mary Ann, Yvonne and Gregg de Clairmont—(The letter was written by Mrs. de Clairmont)—The enclosed check is from the three children named below and is for Case 91. They have emptied their banks for this family because the oldest child in it bears the name of our oldest and is the same age. Mary Ann hopes that her namesake as well as Frances and Tim (in the case) will have a happy Christmas after all.

Florence Harding Wilbern—Enclosed check for $25 is for my little girl who would like to help some "little poor children" as she puts it. We only wish that the check might be larger but are glad to do our bit.

In Memory of My Little Brother Bobby—I enclose $5 for Case 2.

Tin Foil Sale Aids Needy.

The Boys and Girls of Public School 4, Hoboken—As usual this $5 has been raised by the sale of tin foil collected by the pupils, whose wish it is that their small contribution might go to the aid of Case 10.

Mrs. Fred O. Arnold—I enclose check for $5 to be applied to Case 1, or if that is already taken care of, to any other case. My Christmas will be happier because of our little share in your splendid Christian work. God bless your every effort to bring in the real spirit of religion!

Anna L. Levi—Enclosed $10. For one of the neediest. A great work.

Miss Elizabeth C. Bridge—We all know there is need but it becomes a part of our duty to alleviate it when we see it in black and white.

The R. E. Auction Pinochle Club—Enclosed please find $1.40. Please send acknowledgment to Richard Ederheimer.

Anonymous—We are glad that you furnish this channel through which we can give and know that the money goes to deserving people. We would suggest you turn this $50 over to the Charity Organization Society. (This is one of the nine organizations submitting cases annually to THE NEW YORK TIMES for selection.)

Barbara Helen Wright—This $10 contribution to the Hundred Neediest Cases is to be divided equally between the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities and the Charity Organization Society.

Mrs. Charles I. Henry—A check for $100 for the New York Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies.

"The Lorraine Cross"—Enclosed find my check for $5 which I would like applied to Case 99. Each year I am more and more impressed by the wonderful Christmas spirit which this appeal brings forth. I also like the letter which has always come to me during the Summer, telling me how each particular one helped is progressing.

Among the contributions received yesterday were $500 from William L. Hernstadt and $500 sent directly to the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor by Mrs. A. B. Emmons. On the other hand, Robert W. de Forest, who is president of the Charity Organization Society, sent a Neediest Fund contribution of $250 direct to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

In addition, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Beschorman sent $150. Another $150 gift was received from Hanleigh P. Friedman.

Others who gave $100 were Alfred Barth, Jules S. Bache, Mrs. George Forrest Butterworth, George W. Dewey, Frederick H. Ecker, Charles F. Hart, Mrs. Charles L. Henry, Miss Peggy Ann Kent, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Leith, John Magee, Edmund L. Mooney, Mrs. Henry L. Moses, Nettie G. Naumburg, Edwin H. O'Neil, R. B. S., R. C., Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Rhoades, Robert B. Smith, The Sunnybank Collies, C. W. Toms Jr. and W. W.

CASE 83.

Her Friends and Health Are Gone.

The landlady does not want to turn Mrs. Clara T. out, because she does not know what will happen to her. When Mrs. T.'s husband died fifteen years ago, Mrs. T. had no trouble in supporting herself. She was a college graduate and she found one position after another in families in which she acted as governess and housekeeper. Her written references are excellent. She saved money and put it in the bank. Three years ago she broke down and her savings gradually went to pay her inexpensive board. She is now 62, small, frail-looking, gentle in manner; and she says she has outlived the friends who might have helped her in time of need. Her only friend now is the landlady, who is so poor herself that she can keep Mrs. T. no longer. For Mrs. T., food and shelter must be found.

Amount needed, $650.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, 105 East Twenty-second Street. (Telephone, Gramercy 7040.)

CASE 34.

Not a Year Old and Motherless.

Ernestine laughs readily and takes her food well. She will be a year old on Jan. 13, and she has yet to learn that she has no mother, not even a bad one. Her mother was arrested time after time, until it was decided that she was not a proper person to take care of a child. If some one will provide for food and the care of a nurse, Ernestine may laugh on her first Christmas and find kind parents to adopt her.

Amount needed, $400.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the State Charities Aid Association, 105 East Twenty-second Street. (Telephone, Gramercy 1454.)

CASE 82.

She Wants to Keep Her Home.

Martha D., 21, had a 2-year-old child, Adele, and was expecting another. Her husband walked the streets, aimless and penniless, looking for work. He made the acquaintance of a man who told him the "getaway" was sure and persuaded him to help. They were caught in a hold-up and the young husband was sentenced to prison for two years. His wife was dispossessed from their flat. She came to the charity organization and explained that her husband was not really bad. "It was only being out of work and seeing me and the baby wanting things," she said. "When he was a boy he hadn't any proper home life or training in a trade." She wants to keep her home together, so that Adele and the child about to be born may never do anything "so foolish." Her husband is penitent and asks her to give him another chance when he gets out. She says she is sure he will go straight the rest of his life if he can come back to a good home. She asks help with the rent and food during the coming year.

Amount needed, $700.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the Charity Organization Society, 105 East Twenty-second Street. (Telephone, Gramercy 4063.)

CASE 17.

They Want to Remain Together.

Mary B. and her elder sister, Kate, were both domestic cooks. For a generation they prepared savory meals and enjoyed a cook's share in them. The salaries they received were never very large, and they were unable to save a great deal against the time when they would no longer be able to work. The time came and they had a little. One day they received and carefully read a glittering piece of advertising that came from a broker. They thought him a friend when he explained to them how the little could be invested so that they would have much more. They gave him their money and he disappeared with every cent of it. He cannot be traced. Mary is 66, and Kate, who is 61, is an invalid. Funds will keep them together.

Amount needed, $800.

CASE 48.

A Young Family Faces a Crisis.

Sara G. graduated from the Vienna Conservatory of Music and at 23 looked forward to a career as a concert pianist. Then she fell in love and married a cornetist. Four years have gone by and her husband has proved to be a deserter. She has one 3-year-old son and a daughter just waking and now she is expecting another child. A neighbor watches over the two children in the evening and she has found work playing the piano in a moving picture house. But she will soon have to go to the hospital. Help must come for her.

Amount needed, $975.

CASE 59.

Five Years of Unaided Struggle.

As long ago as 1924, when Mr. D. was taken to the hospital with diabetes, the visiting nurse thought his family needed aid. But Mrs. D. and her eldest child, Hilda, who was then 10, said, "Father wouldn't want us to take strangers' money, thank you, and when he gets better it'll be all right." Mrs. D. cleaned offices. Hilda looked after the four younger children. Mr. D. improved; he was not well enough to get back his job as a bricklayer, but he was able to do lighter work. The story repeated itself and the father became ill again and again Mrs. D. took up her work of cleaning offices, while Hilda brought up the family. Now the children are at ages at which they require more to sustain them. Fred is 13; Dick, 11; Gus, 9, and Jim, 6. Mr. D. is unlikely ever to return from his latest visit to the hospital; and Hilda, who flung her health as well as her devotion into the struggle to "bring up the babies nice," is trying to complete a business course and is physically unequal to it. At the age of 15, she needs a rest. Mrs. D., who works from 8 in the morning until 10 at night, needs to have some hours free for the children she loves. The children require clothes and more food.

Amount needed, $700.

CASE 12.

A Mother and Daughter in Need.

Mrs. W. was sent to a finishing school and was married, soon after graduation, to a young man who promised a brilliant future, although he had no money. He had no insurance when he died two years later, just after a daughter, Selma, was born. Mrs. W. found work as a cook and then as a housekeeper. For thirteen years, living in one room in an old frame house, she built up a fund to give Selma a proper education. Selma, past 13, was exceptionally intelligent and was in the rapid advancement class in school when Mrs. W. fell ill. The college fund had to be spent for doctors and food. Mrs. W. and Selma tried to hide their distress, but the grocer, who had noticed them among his steady customers, was watching their buying dwindle to the danger point. A grocer in that poverty-stricken neighborhood knows a great deal about distress. It was he who quietly sent the charity worker, who found this mother and daughter slowly starving. They need food and help with the rent.

Amount needed, $490.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, 285 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn. (Telephone, Triangle 0710.)

CASE 43.

The Future Looks Dark for Five.

R. came to America at the age of 36 and worked so industriously at his trade of stonecutter that after three years he was able to send for his wife and four children. When they arrived, he brought them to a well-furnished home. New York was a wonderful place to them. The children, Peter, 14; John, 13; Theresa 11, and Jane, 9, rapidly adjusted themselves in an American school. The father worked hard and never took a day off until he fell ill one day. He made light of his illness, saying he was "as hard as the stone he cut." The illness persisted. Finally he called at the hospital and was kept there. A few months later he died of cancer. His widow and four children are now destitute, and unless they receive help the future is dark for them.

Amount needed, $1,300.

CASE 52.

At 30 She Can't Work Any More.

Once she was taken to a concert, and that was the nicest thing that happened to Mrs. S. in a quarter of a century. She still talks of it. Long ago, before the San Francisco fire, she was a rich woman, happily married. Her husband died; and, later, the fire swept away his property. Mrs. S. has supported herself since by making the laces which once were her diversion. She is almost 80 now, a fragile old woman. Her blue eyes, strained through twenty years of lace making, cannot see enough to make another yard. Her health is failing fast, but the doctor says that is mostly due to her financial worries—the rent among others. These worries must be lifted.

Amount needed, $300.

Aline, Who Is 7, Has Been Beaten.

Every time Aline's mother looked at her she saw the likeness to the husband who made life miserable until he ran away from a court order requiring him to provide for Aline's support. After the father's desertion the mother, who could no longer bear to keep Aline, turned her over to the grandfather, who had posted the bond required by the court to insure the execution of the support order. Thereafter, Aline's grandfather, noticing her resemblance to the undutiful son who had forfeited his bond, beat her frequently. The charity association took Aline away at the age of 7. She is in need of proper food and tender care before a home is found for her.

Amount needed, $400.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the State Charities Aid Association, 105 East Twenty-second Street. (Telephone, Gramercy 1454.)

CASE 61.

Overwhelmed by Blindness.

Miss A. took in an invalid niece as an orphan of 12. She was a skilled milliner and for seven years had no difficulty in providing for them both. Her eyes first began to fail five years ago and she turned from sewing hats to selling them. She had handled so many that she was clever at finding the right hat for a customer, and soon she was recognized as the best saleswoman in the shop. But her eyes became steadily worse and one day she brought a red hat to a woman who had asked her repeatedly for a brown one. "You can't sell hats that you can't see," the shop manager said when he discharged her. After that she took in roomers until she was almost blind and could no longer care for the rooms. Her savings are gone. At 39 she asks for help until she can learn how to sew without using her eyes, so that she may continue to support herself and the invalid niece whom she took in twelve years ago.

Amount needed, $300.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, 67 West Forty-seventh Street. (Telephone, Bryant 3070.)

CASE 92.

At 80 She Asks Only for Work.

Mrs. Jane T. explained that she would not ask for help if she could work every day. Lately she has been troubled with dizziness and has not felt equal to the long hours of domestic nursing. Her husband was a hard-working man in the days when blacksmiths were busy, but he died thirty years ago. There were ten children, but seven died in childhood. Of the three sons who grew up two had the wanderlust and left their home. The one son who is left here has a home and family of his own, for which he can scarcely provide. "If I can't work, I hope I will not live long," Mrs. T. says. Soon after Christmas she will reach her eightieth birthday. She cannot go on alone.

Amount needed, $850.

Case attested and administered free of cost by the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, 105 East Twenty-second Street. (Telephone, Gramercy 7040.)

Checks should be made payable to the "Hundred Neediest Cases Fund."

MAIER ASKS CLUB TO HELP STEINBRINK

Urges Young Republicans in Kings to Lend Support in Upbuilding Party.

CRITICIZES COUNTY RECORD

State Chairman Voices Fear That 500,000 Voters Will Fail to Go to Polls Next Year.

William J. Maier, chairman of the Republican State Committee, in an address delivered last night at a dinner of the Brooklyn Young Republican Club, made a warm plea for support by the club of Meier Steinbrink, the new Republican leader, in the work of upbuilding the Republican party in Kings which he has undertaken at the request of national party leaders in Washington.

Mr. Maier in his after-dinner speech declared that the Kings County Republicans had fallen down badly in recent elections and backed his statement up with figures. He expressed a fear that more than half a million voters in Brooklyn would fail to come to the polls at the Gubernatorial election next year. He urged that the infusion of young blood was a vital necessity to keep the party alive.

Mr. Steinbrink had accepted an invitation to attend the dinner but failed to come. George W. Mackenzie Jr., president of the club, read a note from the new leader in which he pleaded for cooperation from the young Republicans and promised to attend their January dinner. Mr. Mackenzie, who acted as toastmaster, pledged the best efforts of the club in aid of the work to revitalize the party now confronting the new leader in Kings.

George Mackenzie Jr., president of the club, was toastmaster. He pledged the best efforts of his organization in the work of revitalizing the party in Kings, which Mr. Steinbrink has undertaken at the instance of national party leaders.

Mr. Maier recalled to the diners that 250,000 voters in Kings County who participated in the Presidential election a year ago had failed to take part in the Assembly election this year. He said the total vote in the 1926 Gubernatorial election when the Republican candidate for Governor was Ogden L. Mills, now Under Secretary of the United States treasury, and one of the powers in Washington, who instigated the successful move to oust Jacob A. Livingston from the local leadership, had fallen 230,000 behind the vote at the Presidential election. Later he gave figures to show that in main the falling off had been among Republican voters.

Sees Possibilities of Victory.

"There are more than a half million citizens in Kings County eligible to vote who, in all probability, will not vote for Governor next Fall, he declared. "The non-voters alone are numerous enough to turn this county upside down and inside out on any election day, and this does not take into consideration the large independent vote of this county which may be swayed one way or another by hard party work and by the appeal of candidates and issues.

"There is probably about the same proportion of non-voters in the other counties that there is in Kings. I cite the figures in round numbers for Kings County to impress upon you the tremendous possibilities there are before us for building up the Republican party here and the great field we have to work in.

"If you handed a salesman a list of prospects like that and told him to go out and sell anything as good as the Republican party, he would think that he had been handed a gold mine.

"And here is another phase of the situation in Kings. In the last Gubernatorial campaign, that is, the Mills campaign, which is a fairer basis of judgment than a Presidential year, only about 130,000 votes were cast in this county for the Republican candidate, although there were about 150,000 enrolled Republicans. Where were the other 20,000 and why?

"In that election one Kings County district enrolled 6,100 Republicans and only voted 3,600 of them. Another enrolled 2,613 and voted only 1,814. Another enrolled 2,350 and voted 1,716. And so on down the list with but few exceptions. Ask yourselves the reason for that.

Calls for Young Blood.

"There is a field here for young Republicans to work in. Your interest in the party, as indicated by your membership in this club, is one of the healthiest things I know of. The Republican party needs the help of its young men and women—must have their interest and help, in fact—if it is going to continue to grow in size and progress with the times. Young blood is our safeguard against stagnation. When we cease to attract young men and women to our organization it will be time to worry, and worry a great deal.

"But I hope you will not think you have done all you can for your party when you have affiliated with this club. What we need more than anything else are workers in the districts, men and women who can bring the party directly in contact with the voters and particularly in contact with that great mass of non-voters I have told you about, and with those people of independent mind who can be won to our cause if the facts are properly laid before them.

"I hope you will continue to give your time to this club, but please do not stop there. Go out in your own district and work with your neighbors, and then go into other districts and help out there. We must strengthen our party at its foundation and its foundation is in the election district. I hope you will help build there."

Enlisting Advisory Committee.

It was learned last night that Mr. Steinbrink was making good progress in recruiting to full strength his advisory committee of fifty or sixty embers, with a liberal sprinkling of young men and women. It probably will be a couple of days, however, before the list of members is completed and made public. The meeting of the executive committee of the Kings County Republican Committee to adopt a resolution confirming Mr. Steinbrink in his leadership will not be held earlier than next week, it was said.

In the meantime in Queens, where much dissatisfaction among Republicans withe the leadership of Joseph H. De Bragra, the Federal census authorities, over the protest of Borough President George U. Harvey, have upheld de rBagra's recommendations for three positions as Federal Census Supervisor. It was announced yesterday that the De Bragra men had been appointed and received their commissions.

There has been talk for weeks that the Hoover wing of the Republican organization in Queens, as part of a move to force De Bragra out, would take steps to have him superseded on census patronage, as was done in the matter of Livingston and the Kings County census positions. De Bragra's three appointees are Harold W. Esray of Bayside, Fourth Assembly District; Louis Gosdorfer of Forest Hills, Sixth Assembly District, and Raymond Richmond, pronounced anti-Harveyite of Jackson Heights, Third Assembly District.

"I am not mixing in politics," was all that Mr. Harvey would say when asked to comment. A few days ago Mr. Harvey threatened to go to Washington in person and demand a show-down unless he received recognition on the census patronage.

ASSERTS INFLUENCE OF BAR IS DECLINING

Tuttle Says Legal Profession Fails to Keep Pace With General Progress.

The legal profession is losing its influence with the public because it is failing to keep pace with the progress made by other professions, United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle told the members of the Bronx County Bar Association last night at the Concourse Plaza Hotel, 161st Street and the Grand Concourse, the Bronx. Mr. Tuttle was the principal speaker at a symposium on "What is the matter with the profession of law?" conducted at the meeting, which was attended by about 500 persons.

"The nation is getting away from the narrow viewpoint of individuals, Mr. Tuttle said, to the broad view of a great cooperative society, but the legal profession is failing to follow this changing viewpoint. Consequently, he said, it is losing the respect it once commanded from the public. Judicial candidates endorsed by the bar are more frequently defeated by the voters than not, he said.

Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropsey and Douglas Mathewson, former Borough President of the Bronx, both urged that the number of applicants admitted to the bar be restricted. The overcrowding of the profession is causing an economic pressure which makes it extremely hard for any lawyer to maintain the highest level of professional ethics, Mr. Mathewson declared.

Other speakers were Robert Elder, former Assistant District Attorney of Kings County, and State Senator John Godfrey Saxe. Among those present were District Attorney John H. McGeehan of the Bronx and Supreme Court Justice James M. Tierney. Ernest L. Hammer and Albert Conn.

FIVE NEW QUESTIONS TO BE ASKED IN CENSUS

Inquiries Included on Radios, Home Ownership, Marriage Age, War Record and Job Status.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Five questions, never before asked in a United States census, will be put to householders by the enumerators next year. These questions, making the total number twenty-four, cover the ownership or rental of homes, the possession or non-possession of a radio set, the age at the time of first marriage, whether the "provider" is actually at work and World War service.

The list of questions, as announced today by William M. Steuart, director of the Census Bureau, is as follows:

1. Relationship to head of family, including a statement as to the homemaker in each family.
2. Whether home is owned or rented.
3. Value of home, if owned, or monthly rental, if rented.
4. Radio set? (yes) or (no).
5. Does this family live on a farm? (yes) or (no).
6. Sex.
7. Color or race.
8. Age at last birthday.
9. Marital condition.
10. Age at first marriage (for married persons only).
11. Attended school, college, any time since Sept. 1, 1929? (yes) or (no).
12. Whether able to read and write? (yes) or (no).
13. Place of birth of person (State or country).
14. Place of birth of person's father (State or country).
15. Place of birth of person's mother (State or country).
16. Mother tongue of each foreign-born person.
17. Year of immigration to the United States (for foreign-born only).
18. Whether naturalized (for foreign-born only).
19. Whether able to speak English (for foreign-born only).
20. Occupation, each gainful worker.
21. Industry in which employed.
22. Whether employer, employs or working on own account.
23. Whether actually at work (for each person usually employed but returned as not at work additional information will be secured on a special unemployment schedule).
24. Whether a veteran of the United States military or naval forces, and for each veteran, in what war or expedition he served.

MRS. McCORMICK LOSES SUIT

South Carolina Supreme Court Decides "Society Horse Case."

Special to The New York Times.

AIKEN, S. C., Dec. 11.—The South Carolina Supreme Court today ruled against Mrs. Robert R. McCormick of Chicago in her appeal from a circuit court decision in the famous "society horse case." The suit was one in which S. A. Warner Baltassi of Westbury, L. I., demanded $3,500 from Mrs. McCormick, who had bought a horse from him and had stopped payment on her check when the horse went lame.

Mrs. McCormick contended that the horse sold to her as sound had the defect before the purchase, while Mr. Baltassi maintained that the horse was injured while being jumped over hurdles shortly after Mrs. McCormick had bought it.

Attorneys for Mrs. McCormick based their appeal on the conduct of the case by the trial judge.

Song Writer Ends Life as Failure.

Lorenzo Fere, 28 years old, a former house painter, committeed suicide yesterday, the police said, by leaping into the North River from the ferryboat "Red Bank" as it neared the Communipaw (N. J.) slip, because he had failed as a songwriter. In a coat left in the cabin a deckhand found a note which said: "I tried to be a success as a songwriter, but the reward is only for the publishers. I am despondent over the failure of my latest number, and find this is the easiest way out. My last song is 'I Wish I Never Met you.'" The note gave the address of Fero's brother, Alfred A. Fero of 2,323 Hughes Avenue, the Bronx.

PLAN COTTON AGENCY FOR ENTIRE CROP

2,000,000 MEMBERS SOUGHT

Board Promises $30,000,000 Aid to Organization in Time for Sale of Next Year's Crop.

Special to The New York Times.

MEMPHIS, Dec. 11.—Creation of a centralized cooperative cotton marketing organization based upon the framework of the American Cotton Growers Exchange and with a capital stock of $30,000,000, was unanimously decided upon today by the joint conference of the Federal Farm Board and officers and directors of fifteen State cooperative organizations. It was said that it will be the largest cooperative organization in the world.

An organization committee composed of one member from each cooperative met as soon as the conference adjourned and prepared to draft the articles of incorporation. The committee will decide in which of the Southern States the new agency will be incorporated, but will not select the headquarters or name any of the personnel.

The committee will serve as incorporating directors and the first annual meeting of the new corporation must be held before July 1, 1930. At that time the stockholders—that is, the State cooperatives who may acquire stock at the ratio of one $100 share for each 100 bales of cotton handled during three years—will each elect one director. The directors will choose a president, a general manager, a secretary, a controller and legal counsel, the president and controller to be approved by the Federal Farm Board. The committee will choose a name for the new corporation.

To Safeguard Federal Loans.

The corporation shall be eligible to receive loans from the Federal Farm Board and the by-laws must be drawn to safeguard the loans.

Carl Williams, cotton member of the board, said of the plan: "The government will not subscribe to the stock of the corporation, that is not legal. We can lend money to the association, but each loan must be for a specific purpose. We can, however, lend money to the stockholding members, taking stock in the corporation as security."

Mr. Williams remained to work with the organization committee, while Alexander Legge, chairman, and James C. Stone, vice chairman of the Farm Board, left Memphis tonight. Mr. Williams declared the board well pleased with the conference.

Mr. Williams said the new corporation will be in operation in time to market as much of the 1930 crop as it could obtain.

Stock may be paid for in 10 per cent cash and the remainder in five annual instalments. The corporation may pay dividends not to exceed 8 per cent, but until the capital stock of $30,000,000 shall have been paid in, all dividends shall be paid in stock. Although each cooperative member shall have one director, it will have as many votes in the annual meeting as it has shares of stock.

Corporation to Have Broad Power.

The corporation will be empowered to provide central marketing facilities and sales services, to buy cotton from its own stockholders and from outsiders in so far as this is permitted by Federal law, to deal in cottonseed and manufacture or deal in cotton products, to lease, buy or construct warehouses and gins where such facilities cannot be reasonably provided by the local associations, conduct educational work for diversification and adjustment of acreage, conduct research and statistical services and to develop and establish a centralized finance system for marketing cotton throughout the belt.

Two separate marketing branches will be set up for short and long staple cotton and the entire belt is divided for convenience into four grand divisions, the Southeast, including North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama; Mississippi Valley including Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri and Tennessee; Southwest, to take in Oklahoma and Texas exclusive of the irrigated portion of Texas, and the Far West, to include West Texas, New Mexico, Arizona and California.

Cold to Senators' Proposal.

The proposal of a small group of Senators that the Farm Board advance 20 cents a pound on cotton was received coldly today by the directors of cotton cooperative associations here.

Chairman Legge of the Farm Board sent a telegram to Senators Townsend, Smith, Brook, Walcott and Heflin, saying:

"Your wire was presented to almost the complete directorate of all cotton cooperative associations from North Carolina to Arizona, inclusive.

"Opinion was somewhat divided, but the vast majority completely agrees that while the entire group is very sympathetic toward your attitude of helpfulness to agriculture, but is very doubtful as to the advisability of results of your proposal."

Business Chamber Supports Board.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (AP).—An endorsement of the general efforts of the Federal Farm Board to encourage cooperative marketing of agricultural products was issued today by the agricultural service committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

The committee statement asserted that it would not favor any action which would be discriminatory against private business enterprises or tend to endanger private investments already made in facilities for handling agricultural products.

APPEARS IN AMSTER CASE.

Defendant on Extortion Charge, Waives Examination.

Olga Eide Edwards, charged by Nathan L. Amster with extorting $2,500 from him, appeared yesterday morning before Magistrate August M. Dreyer in west side court. Her attorney Sidney S. Myers, said she waived examination. The amount of her bail was continued at $5,000 on a rewritten bond and she was held for the grand jury.

Mr. Amster was in court with his attorney, Max Steuer. Assistant District Attorney Bernard Botein was present for the prosecution.

MRS. ROOSEVELT ASKS HELP FOR PORTO RICO

Appeals for Children Who Are Starving as Result of Last Year's Hurricane.

Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt, wife of the Governor of Porto Rico, presented a spirited appeal on behalf of the starving children of that island at a meeting of the League for Political Education for Women at Town Hall yesterday.

While conditions have improved greatly during the thirty years of American administration in Porto Rico, Mrs. Roosevelt said, last year's hurricane left the population in a desperate situation and even the splendid work of the government, the American Red Cross and the Golden Rule Foundation has failed to meet the need.

Due to these wea ened condition, the starved children of the island can offer little resistance to the attacks of disease, she said, and tuberculosis is spreading with alarming swiftness.

"In visiting schools and homes I saw pitiful cases," Mrs. Roosevelt related, "which were the more alarming by their frequency. In one of the schools, 278 out of 700 children received no food except a scanty meal of beans and rice at supper time.

"In one home I found a family of eight children, two of them in the grip of tuberculosis, yet sharing room and bed with their sisters and brothers."

Schools, roads and other improvements were swept away by the hurricane, Mrs. Roosevelt said.

"The eyes of Latin America are on Porto Rico," she continued, "and I believe that the friendly relations between this country and Latin America will depend to a great extent upon our attitude toward the stricken island."

Both the Governor and Mrs. Roosevelt are intent on encouraging tourists to visit the island. She said that Americans seem to know little of the island and show scant inclination to learn more.

"Yet Porto Rico, with its perfect climate and up-to-date hotels," she declared, "would afford visitors an enjoyable stay, improve their knowledge of this American possession and incidentally turn some of the tourists' money to the benefit of this island."

Mrs. Roosevelt read a letter from the Presbyterian Home for Aged Women, 49 East Seventy-third Street, in which its forty-nine residents offered a contribution of $11 obtained by relinquishing their dessert on Golden Rule day.

SAYS NEWSPRINT PRICE IS STILL UNDECIDED

International Paper Official Declares No Agreements Have Been Reached.

Neil C. Head, assistant to A. R. Graustein, president of the International Paper Company, said yesterday that no agreement for newsprint prices for next year had been reached. He said the statement made two weeks ago by officials of the International Paper Company would stand for the present.

That statement was: "We do not know as yet whether or not there will be an increase in newsprint prices or, if so, what amount."

At that time it was also denied that the International Paper Company would endeavor to conform to Canadian sentiment on newsprint prices, which would mean an increase of $5 a ton, making the price $60 instead of $55 a ton.

SAW ASSETS CARTED OFF.

But Woman With Insomnia Is Not Needed in Bankruptcy Prosecution.

Mrs. Sybil Day suffered from insomnia in the Summer of 1926, and it was her habit to sit at her window in the early morning. Between 2 and 3 o'clock on the morning of July 1 she watched the stealthy movements of trucks which stopped in front of the Kings Highway Department Store at 1,919 Kings Highway, next door to her home. They were loaded with goods from the store and then disappeared. She had seen these trucks before and had become interested in them.

When the department store passed into bankruptcy, Mrs. Day told C. J. Waldon, an investigator for the National Association of Credit Men, all about it. Shortly afterward Federal Prosecutor Emanuel G. Kleid began the prosecution of several defendants on charges of concealment of $40,000 worth of assets. Mrs. Day was subpoenaed as a government witness.

But she did not have to testify, because the six indicted pleaded guilty, and yesterday Federal Judge Bryant sentenced four of them to prison. They were L. Polinsky, who was sentenced to the Atlanta Penitentiary for two years; Meyer Reis to sixteen months, and Nathan Schlessel to a year and a day in the same prison; and H. L. Friedman to four months in the Federal Detention prison. The two others, Bernard Freedman and William Scherr, will be sentenced tomorrow.

GIRL IN SLAYING ONLY 15.

Had Given Age as 18 When Seized With Six Men in Brooklyn.

Gussie Teitel, 184 Orchard Street, arrested in Brooklyn last week with six men on suspicion of connection with the killing of a man in a robbery, was revealed to be only 15 years old, when she was arraigned yesterday in Special Sessions on a petit larceny charge. The court thereupon dismissed the charge and ordered her taken before the justice in the children's court.

The girl had said she was 18, but examination of Health Department records revealed her true age. Before her recent arrest in Brooklyn she had pleaded guilty to the theft of a $21 coat from Klein's in Union Square after her arrest in the store with 17-year-old Anthony Santine of the Orchard Street address, who is being held in connection with the Brooklyn slaying.

Schooner and Rescue Craft Seized.

The disabled schooner Constance was brought to the barge office today, under seizure as a rum runner, her crew prisoners, and her rescue ship, the motor boat Estelle, likewise under seizure. The two vessels were captured by the Coast Guard Patrol Boat 238 after the latter had intercepted the wireless call for aid sent out by the Constance on Monday. Sixty bottles of liquor were seized and four men were arrested on the larger craft and one on the smaller. They will be arraigned in Brooklyn Federal Court today.

PICKS PIEZ AS HEAD OF MERCHANT FLEET

Hoover Decides on Chicagoan, Schwab's War Aide, as Successor of O'Connor.

WORK TO BE CONSOLIDATED

Choice Is Said to Be First Step Toward Private Operation of Government Fleet.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Charles Piez, Illinois manufacturer and builder of the $3,000,000,000 wartime merchant fleet, has been selected for the presidency of the Merchant Fleet Corporation, and his appointment will probably be made next week by the Shipping Board, according to reliable information here today.

The selection of Mr. Piez to head the Merchant Fleet Corporation, which operates the government fleets, is understood to have the approval of President Hoover. It is also said to be the first step in a movement on the part of the Shipping Board to consolidate the fleet activities and eventually to transfer the government vessels to private ownership and operation.

During the war Mr. Piez served first as vice president and general manager and later as director general of the emergency corporation which administered the government's huge shipbuilding program.

Will Succeed T. V. O'Connor.

As president of the Merchant Fleet Corporation he will succeed T. V. O'Connor, chairman of the Shipping Board, who took over the presidency in 1927. Since that time Mr. O'Connor has filled both offices. The presidency of the Fleet Corporation is an $18,000-a-year job, the third highest salary in the government.

Some time ago Chairman O'Connor is understood to have advised President Hoover that because of the strain upon his health he would like to be relieved of the double duty.

At that time he is understood to have suggested to President Hoover as possible appointees the two present vice presidents of the Fleet Corporation, E. A. Kelly of New York and J. Caldwell Jenkins of Washington.

Mr. Piez, it is understood, was selected for the post after a wide canvass of men available and fitted by experience. During the past few days he came to Washington for conferences and at that time is understood to have accepted the appointment.

Other candidates understood to have been put forward include Captain Frank E. Ferris, former vice president of the Fleet Corporation; Frank S. Davis, manager of the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce; John B. Gordon, former manager of the marine department of the Union Sulphur Company, and Norman F. Titus, former chief of the Transportation Division of the Department of Commerce.

TOMASSO TITTONI STRICKEN

Former Foreign Minister of Italy Suffers Paralysis in Rome.

ROME, Dec. 11 (AP).—Tomasso Tittoni, former Minister of Foreign Affairs, is gravely ill and the physicians are of the opinion that he may not live out the day.

The former statesman, who has dropped from political life in recent years, is being attended by several physicians, including Professor Ettore Marchiafava, a consulting physician to Pope Pius.

The doctors issued a bulletin at noon saying that the patient's condition was unchanged. He was stricken at 6 o'clock last night by a cerebral attack resulting in paralysis on the right side.

MONTEVIDEO AIR MAIL HERE IN TWELVE DAYS

8,000-Mile Trip From Uruguay Longest Post Route Ever Traveled by Plane.

The longest air mail trip in the history of American aviation ended early yesterday with the arrival here of the first mail sacks from Montevideo, Uruguay, on the east coast of South America. The letters traveled more than 8,000 miles by plane, leaving the Uruguayan capital on Nov. 30 and arriving in New York on the twelfth day. The sacks at the start weighed seventy pounds and most of them were directed to New York. Among the letters was one to the editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES, which arrived at THE TIMES editorial rooms shortly after 10 A. M. It was a short note from James D. Summers, assistant vice president of Pan-American Airways, written at Montevideo on Nov. 30.

From Montevideo the mail sacks went over the Andes to Santiago, Chile, and thence up the west coast of South America to Cristobal. Here they were transferred to the twin-motored Sikorsky of the Pan-American Lines and flown across Central America to Havana and thence to Miami. At the Florida terminal Pitcairn Aviation picked up the sacks and flew them northward to Atlanta, Richmond, Washington, Philadelphia and New York. At Newark Airport some of the letters were transhipped westward by N. A. T. and northward to Montreal on the Colonial System.

Woman's Will Called Forgery.

DEDHAM, Mass., Dec. 11 (AP).—The purported will of the late Mrs. Cora A. Littlefield of Brookline, bestowing upon a Charlton farmer her $100,000 estate, was judged a forgery today in probate court here by Wilbur F. Turner, a handwriting expert. Mr. Turner pronounced the will the work of Maurice V. Mahan, the farmer, who acted as Mrs. Littlefield's chauffeur when she summered in Charlton.

SEARCH FOR MOTIVE IN DUAL SHOOTING

Authorities Baffled by Deaths of H. G. Crosby and Mrs. A. L. Bigelow in Artists' Hotel.

BOSTON FRIENDS MYSTIFIED

Graduate Student at Harvard Comes to the City to Claim His Wife's Body.

With the deaths of Henry Grew Crosby and Mrs. Josephine Rotch Bigelow, both prominent in Boston society, officially recorded as a case of suicide and homicide, the authorities were baffled last night, after an all-day investigation, in their attempt to find a motive for the shooting. The bodies of the couple were found on Tuesday night in a studio apartment in the Hotel des Artistes, 1 West Sixty-seventh Street.

While an autopsy was being made on the two bodies at the morgue yesterday, Mrs. Bigelow's husband, Albert S. Bigelow, former Harvard hockey star and now a graduate student at Harvard, was on his way here from Boston to claim her body.

Following the autopsy, the body of Mr. Crosby, who was the son of Stephen Van Rensselaer Crosby, a leading Boston banker, and the nephew of J. P. Morgan, was removed to an undertaking establishment at 2 East Ninetieth Street, pending plans for the funeral. Mr. Crosby was 32 years old.

Since the marriage, last June, of the former Josephine Rotch, who was 26 years old, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Rotch, of Commonwealth Avenue, Boston, to Mr. Bigelow, there had been no separation or outward estrangement between the couple.

The news of the finding of the bodies, each with a bullet wound in the head, in the apartment of Crosby's friend, Stanley Mortimer Jr., a portrait painter, mystified their friends in Boston. The autopsies showed, according to Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales, assistant medical examiner, that the couple had been drinking, but that they had not been intoxicated.

Mr. Crosby had registered at the Savoy-Plaza Hotel, where his parents and his wife also are registered. Mrs. Bigelow had been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Ward M. Burgess of 1,192 Park Avenue.

Mr. Crosby, a graduate of Harvard in the Class of 1922 and a World War veteran, had made his home in Paris for the past few years. His mother is the former Henrietta M. Grew, a sister of the late Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan. A few months after his graduation from Harvard, he was married to Mrs. Mary Jacob Peabody. He was a poet and had recently been connected with the Black Sun Press of Paris.

Mrs. Bigelow, whose husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Bigelow of Brookline, Mass., was a member of the Vincent Club of Boston and the Boston Junior League. She and her husband had made their home on Beacon Hill in Boston.

FOSDICK CHURCH DROPS BAPTIST FROM TITLE

Changes Name to the Riverside Church—Increases Board of Trustees to 12 Members.

The Park Avenue Baptist Church, of which the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick is the pastor, took formal action last night to change its name to the Riverside Church and to drop the word "Baptist" from the title. This action was taken at a meeting of the corporate membership of the church, in the completed portion of the congregation's new building at Riverside Drive and 122d Street.

The decision to change the name was reached more than a year ago, but the State law then made it impossible for a religious corporation to change its name, Dr. Fosdick said last night. At the last session of the State Legislature the law was changed and last night's action was taken to empower the church officials to file with the Secretary of State the necessary certificate of a change of name.

In addition to changing the name, the church membership last night took two steps to prepare for the enlarged program the church expects to carry out with the completion of its new structure on Riverside Drive. The first of these actions was to increase the board of trustees from nine to twelve members.

The second was to abolish the old church school committee which conducted Sunday school classes and to create in its place a committee on religious education to be appointed by the pastor, which will conduct a full-time program for persons of all ages.

John D. Rockefeller Jr., whose term as a trustee expired last night, was re-elected to serve until 1932. Re-elected with him were Eugene McK. Fromont and William H. West. To fill the new trusteeships created at the meeting the following were elected to serve for one, two and three years, respectively: Winthrop W. Aldrich, Alber L. Scott and James M. Pratt.

Maltby G. L. Harris was elected a deacon to succeed Samuel A. Shannon, who has left the city. W. D. Reeve was elected to succeed Trevor Arnett, who resigned as deacon because of ill health, and the following deacons were re-elected for a three-year term: J. Howard Ardrey, Dr. George R. Baker, Samuel R. Bishop and Elmer E. Sanborn.

FRIGHT KILLS WOMAN, 82.

Death of Mrs. Pennybacker Laid to Fire Near White Plains Home.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Mrs. Laura Van Pelt Pennybacker, 82 years old, member of an old Virginia family, died early this morning at the home of her son, J. E. Pennybacker, at 131 South Broadway, this city, shortly after smoke had begun to rise from a fire next door. It was believed that the excitement and odor of the smoke contributed to her death.

Mrs. Frances Weeks, widowed daughter of Mrs. Pennybacker, said her mother's heart had been weak for a year. The elderly woman was active, she said, and not of an excitable nature. She said Dr. James R. Welding had just examined her mother and declared her condition not serious, when upon reaching the door he was recalled and found her dead.

Rotarian 'Pep' Called a Myth; Survey Shows Growing Dignity

The boyish exuberance of Rotarians which won the disdain of Sinclair Lewis and his readers is largely a myth today and is becoming more of a myth every year, George Lang, sociology student at Columbia University, has reported following a detailed study of Rotary organizations. "The outlook of the rotary club is increasingly conservative," Mr. Lang reported after a year spent in watching Rotary "stunt nights' and reading hundreds of reports of rotary meetings and activities.

Mr. Lang found that the organization is taking on dignity and becoming "less convivial" year by year. The student compared them in their present state with the "old men's clubs of London."

He reported that men join Rotary for one of four reasons: Privilege, prestige, patronage or economic advantage.

MISS STONER SEEKS MARRIAGE ANNULMENT

Former 'Child Prodigy' Finds First Husband, Whom She Thought Dead, Is Living.

Winifred Sackville Stoner, former "child prodigy," filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday to annul her marriage to Philippe Clinton De Bruce, a Frenchman, whom she thought had been killed in an auto accident in Mexico City in 1922. Relying upon this information, she had married Louis Hyman in 1925, but obtained a divorce in 1927. The suit filed yesterday is made necessary because the plaintiff finds herself still the wife of De Bruche, who has called himself a count, and has reappeared in New York.

The plaintiff says she married De Bruche on Aug. 7, 1921, when she was 16 years old, believing his statements that he was a composer, poet and member of a noble French family, entitled to call himself a count. She learned a year later, she says, that he was not of noble birth and was not a person of good repute. Shortly after she got this information, she says, the defendant disappeared and she was told by his friend, Frank Davis, that he had been killed in Mexico City.

In her petition Miss Stoner says she received a telephone message at her home, 418 Central Park West, three weeks ago, suggesting that she go to the lobby of the Hotel Ansonia. She went there, she said, and saw De Bruche, who was living at the Hotel Bretton Hall.

WELFARE KEEPERS WIN CUP

Good Scores Made in Pistol Competition by Jail Guards.

Trophy-winners in the Department of Correction's recent pistol tournament for wardens, headkeepers and keepers held on Welfare Island were announced yesterday by Richard Patterson Jr., Commissioner of Correction, who said the scoring demonstrated a high degree of proficiency.

Harry Quarles, keeper at Riker's Island, won the keeper's prize with a score of 372 out of 400. Quarles scored 100 per cent in rapid and slow fire at the bullseye and 100 per cent in rapid fire at the silhouette of a man. Joseph McBrien, a keeper of Welfare Island scored 100 per cent in slow fire at the bullseye and 100 per cent in rapid fire at the silhouette. The Patterson Trophy, a twenty-four inch silver cup, was won by the Welfare Island Penitentiary team with a score of 945 out of 1,000. Riker's Island was second with 935 and Hampton Farms third with 915.

The Col. John J. Dooley trophy went to Riker's Island for its score of 440 out of 500. Hart's Island was second with 439 and New Hampton third with 421. James E. Thompson, headkeeper of Raymond Street Jail, won the competition for wardens and headkeepers with 382 out of 400.

CLEARED OF POISON CHARGE

Boarder Absolved by Court of Woman's Accusation.

A charge of felonious assault against James Caldwell, 66 years old, of 2,004 Lexington Avenue, was dismissed yesterday by Magistrate William C. Dodge in Morrisania Court. Caldwell was accused by Mrs. Mollie Denenk, 33, of 1,900 Daly Avenue, the Bronx, of trying to poison her by dropping a bichloride of mercury tablet in her tea on Nov. 10, last, when he was a boarder in her home, then at 1,542 Bryant Avenue, the Bronx.

Caldwell, a stone cutter and the widowed father of four married children, denied having put a tablet in Mrs. Denenk's tea, saying he had no reason for doing so.

Magistrate Dodge said he could not see that any motive was shown for Caldwell desiring to take Mrs. Denenk's life, and he thought he could save the State some money by dismissing the case.

ANDERSON LEADS COUNCIL.

Bishop Assumes Charge of Mission Board at Meeting Here.

The Right Rev. Charles P. Anderson of Chicago, the new Presiding Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, took his place yesterday as president of the National Council at a meeting of the council in the Church Missions House, 281 Fourth Avenue.

The office of head of the council, who directs the missionary work of the communion, goes with that of Presiding Bishop. Dr. Anderson succeeds the late Bishop John Gardner Murray, who died suddenly early in October.

MELLICK LEFT $1,000,000.

Estate of Partner in Banking Firm Is Willed to Widow.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Dec. 11.—The estate of J. Hartley Mellick, who died in Plainfield on Nov. 30, is bequeathed to his widow, Mrs. Elinor Waring Mellick, under the terms of his will filed for probate here today. The estate is valued at $1,000,000.

Mr. Mellick was a member of the banking firm of Carlisle & Mellick of New York. Mrs. Mellick and Edward J. Waring are named executors to serve without bond.

DEBUCHI FORESEES GROWING TRADE TIE

Ambassador Says Commerce and Intellectual Relations With Us Are Gaining Steadily.

WELCOMES US IN FAR EAST

Declares Japan's Attitude Toward China Will Be Friendly, and Hopes for Order There Soon.

Cordial economic and intellectual relations between Japan and the United States furnished the main topics of speeches last night by Katsuji Debuchi, Ambassador to Washington from Japan, and Charles MacVeagh, former American Ambassador to Tokio, at the annual dinner of the Japan Society at the Hotel Astor.

Not since the close of the World War, said the Japanese Ambassador, has trade between the two countries been so well balanced as this year. He commented on the steady improvement in his country's economic condition, saying that his government has decided to lift the gold embargo on Jan. 11.

"In this connection," he added, "I desire to express my sincere appreciation of the generous cooperation extended by the banking group of New York in arranging the necessary credit for the removal of the embargo."

Mr. Debuchi declared that it was a matter of mutual satisfaction that American trade with the Far East is progressing steadily. "The volume of commerce carried over the Pacific," he said, "is bound to increase. This will in turn encourage the growth of general interdependence and common interest among the countries. We cordially welcome you to the markets in the Far East, believing that the gain will be mutual and that we have no cause to be rivals."

The Ambassador, dealing with intellectual relations, reminded the audience of the conference of the Institute of Pacific Relations at Kyoto and the International Engineering Congress at Tokio.

"My countrymen," he said, "have been particularly pleased to observe that in both the gatherings the Americans took a prominent part, thereby greatly contributing to the intellectual cooperation between our countries."

After discussing the situation in China and deploring the civil strife, he defined Japan's attitude in that country.

"Japan," he said, "will under all circumstances assume a liberal and friendly attitude toward China and will be prepared to extend to her the ready hand of cooperation. At the same time I sincerely hope that China will speedily put her house in order and carry out the necessary reforms in accordance with her expressed desire."

After thanking the American people for the cordial reception accorded the Japanese training squadron last Summer, Mr. Debuchi said that the Japanese delegates to the naval conference in London have just arrived at Seattle, Wash., and will come to New York before sailing for London.

"Japan has gladly accepted the invitation to the epoch-making conference," said the Ambassador. "What Japan wants is not mere limitations but actual reduction of naval armament. Inspired by the lofty ideal of humanity, and in the endeavor to reach the desired goal, Japan will be happy to cooperate with the other powers, especially the United States, whom we regard not only as our direct neighbor but as the fellow-guardian of the peace of the Pacific."

Mr. MacVeigh, after paying high tribute to the hospitality and helpfulness accorded him by all in Japan, confined his speech to the friendly relations between the United States and Japan and to the efforts at present being made to obtain permanent world peace. He denounced the old bugaboo about Japan seeking more possessions under an ultra-imperialistic policy and said:

"There is no basis for the assertion so often made and so commonly believed that the rapid increase in population compels Japan to adopt a policy of aggressive territorial expansion. One of the ablest Prime Ministers Japan has had, perhaps the ablest after Prince Ito, contended that the Japanese possessions, taken collectively, are sufficient for the needs of the people for at least one century and probably two."

In the meanwhile, said the former American Ambassador, Japan must have a long period of peace in order to further its industry and extend its commerce.

"In this view of, or hope for, the future Japan is not alone," he added. "The people of the United States want peace. They want it passionately—the peace of prosperity, of contentment and happiness for themselves and their children."

Alexander Tison, president of the society, introduced the speakers.

RULES AGAINST TEACHER.

F. P. Graves Upholds Failure to Name Miss Hardy a Principal.

Frank P. Graves, State Commissioner of Education, in a ruling made public yesterday declared that the Board of Superintendents is within its rights in refusing an appointment to an elementary school principalship to Miss Ruth Gillette Hardy, teacher at Girls' Commercial High School, who has been on the eligibility list since 1925. Her name has been repeatedly passed over by the superintendents, who held that her "temperament" unfits her for the position, although she has been licensed by the Board of Examiners.

Charges have been made frequently in the last few years that the superintendents did not approve of Miss Hardy because her views were too radical. The commissioner upheld the power of the superintendents to choose nominees from the three names highest on the eligibility list. He held that the choice of the highest on the list was not mandatory.

Carr Faces Income Tax Suit.

The government began proceedings yesterday to collect from the bankrupt estate of Alexander Carr, the actor now playing in "Mendel, Inc." at the Sam H. Harris Theatre, $8,000 due for income taxes for 1922 and additional $2,000 for interest. Mr. Carr filed a bankruptcy petition in the Federal court last Tuesday, in which liabilities of $88,210 and assets of $6,478 were listed.

Dog That Preyed on Park Pheasants Is Killed By Policeman Who Traps Him After Long Vigil

A year or so ago Commissioner Herrick placed some 200 pheasants in that section of Central Park called Fort Clinton. He then caused large signs saying the birds "are for your instruction and pleasure" to be set up at appointed intervals. Finally, he sat back to watch lower Harlem become pheasant-minded. But nothing much happened save to Patrolman Thomas O'Shea.

Now, the latter was told by his superiors in the Arsenal station to take good care of the commissioner's new pets. He grumbled through one Winter, drove small boys away from the fort through the hot Summer and presently found himself back in December again. He was a year older, and with the dignity of that year came a new devotion to his duty. While fellow-officers became heroes by pulling children from the broken ice of Harlem Meer, Patrolman O'Shea guarded his pheasants.

Ten days ago when he paid his morning visit to Fort Clinton bearing food he noticed that something was wrong. Pheasants were in the trees and the bushes rather than on the ground. A few feathers that had obviously belonged to pheasants now deceased were lying about. Apparently there was a marauder somewhere around; more than apparently it was Patrolman O'Shea's place to find out.

The next day there were more feathers and fewer pheasants, and the day after it was the same. But as O'Shea was walking sadly away on the second occasion he noticed a dog swimming across the narrow creek toward the fort. The explanation of the feathers dawned on him so he went through a gate in the high fence which protects Clinton from all onslaught save by water—and gave chase. But the dog casually loped away and swam calmly back.

Patrolman O'Shea then began a week's siege. He appeared at Fort Clinton at all hours. Sometimes he saw the dog hopefully swimming over; sometimes he saw it swim away. Sometimes, and the cases were all too frequent, he saw only the feathers of departed pheasants. He crept silently through the woods; he sat silently in one spot for long periods. Once a dog barked in the distance; that was all.

Yesterday morning, however, he again sat waiting. Around him were a few feathers, and up in the trees were horrified pheasants. He had been there but a short time when he saw the dog swimming hopefully toward him. He drew his pistol and got behind a tree. When the dog came into unsuspecting range he took aim and fired a single shot—then went away whistling. Presently the pheasants came down.

AMBROSE LIGHTSHIP TAKES MILE VOYAGE

After 22 Years in One Spot Always Ready to Cruise, She Shifts Position to South.

LIGHTS NOW IN DIRECT LINE

New Anchorage, Between Shoals and Incoming Vessels, Removes Danger of Grounding.

The Ambrose Lightship, beacon light to incoming vessels for twenty-two years, was moved yesterday more than a mile. It was the first time the ship had moved since taking up her position, although during all that time she has had a head of steam and was ready to cruise at any moment.

Ambrose Channel, through which ships must pass to reach New York safely, runs in a direct line with West Bank Light and the large finder light on Staten Island. During the twenty-two years the Ambrose Lightship was anchored at her old position, it was necessary for pilots and Captains to strike a course at an angle from her anchorage.

Directly south of the old position were dangerous 39-foot shoals and a slight miscalculation might have caused a vessel to ground.

In the new position the lightship lies on a direct line between the West Bank signal and the large light on Staten Island. At the same time she will be between incoming liners and the shoals, thus eliminating the chance of an ocean liner going aground there.

Yesterday with no ceremony and no change in the routine of the fourteen-man crew, the steamer pulled her anchor and steamed to the new anchorage, 1¼ miles to south by southeast.

Captain Lange, who has been with the vessel during all of the twenty-two years, directed the transfer. The voyage lasted only a few minutes, and again the lightship dropped her anchor.

The whistle which booms "hello" and "good-bye" to every vessel moving through the harbor now sounds from a new spot, and Ambrose Lightship continues her role of the "most lonely vessel in the world."

WELFARE PRIZES AWARDED.

Dr. Eva Reid of California Wins $300 for Article on Social Work.

Awards for articles on social work were announced yesterday by the sponsors of a nation-wide contest, the Harmon Foundation and the Social Work Publicity Council. Dr. Eva Reid, chief of the Psychiatric Clinic of the University of California Society for Mental Hygiene, received the first award of $300 for her article, "Fighting Through." The second award of $200 went to Harold J. Matthews, secretary of the State Conference of Social Work, Columbia, Mo., for his article on "Are Old People Human?" The story of "Lithuanian Steve," written by Lillian M. Johnson, director of child welfare in Nebraska, received the third award of $50.

Nearly 200 articles were submitted in the contest, which closed on Sept. 15. The judges were Kathleen Norris, author; Bruce Bliven, editor of The New Republic, and Ellery Sedgwick, editor of The Atlantic Monthly.

Another contest for a year's publicity record by a social organization will close on Feb. 1. Four awards of $100 each will be given for the best records of a national agency, a regional agency, an agency in a city or county of 200,000 or more population and an agency in a city or county with a population less than 200,000. Judges for this contest are Leon Whipple, Associate Professor of Journalism, New York University; Ewart G. Boutwell, Russell Sage Foundation, and Harlan James, American Civic Association.

HARRY CUMPSON'S CONCERT

American Pianist Gives Artistic Performance in Town Hall.

Harry Cumpson, an American pianist whose skill has served many local performances of strange modern composers, while his later seasons on the recital stage have shown him a player of sound ideals, renewed that good impression at his concert last night in the Town Hall, where he is again to be heard in February. Between the balanced groups of Brahms and Debussy in their shorter, favorite works he gave Franck's prelude, chorale and fugue and Beethoven's C-minor variations, discriminating between the classic or romantic spirit and mere technical show. Mr. Cumpson was singularly successful in the deliberate and reflective manner of his performances of a popular Brahms "Caprice," Op. 76, No. 2, never blurred in its massive harmony and soaring melodic line, yet infused with the composer's dynastic heartiness and clarity.

PLANS 2 NEW ROUTES FOR AIR MAIL TO COAST

Interdepartmental Committee Recommends Southern Service From New York.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—A second and probably a third new transcontinental air mail service, connecting New York City with the Pacific Coast, was assured today in recommendations to Postmaster General Brown by the Interdepartmental Committee of Civil Airways.

The committee also recommended the creation of a new civil airway and air mail service connecting New York City with St. Louis on a route over the Alleghany Mountains by way of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Columbus and Indianapolis.

The proposed new transcontinental service would be routed via the southern transcontinental route, the route being in effect an extension of the New York-Atlanta service from Atlanta to Los Angeles and San Diego via Birmingham, Jackson, Shreveport, Dallas, Fort Worth and El Paso, with a spur to San Antonio between Fort Worth and El Paso.

The committee also recommended the creation of a new civil airway and air mail service connecting Louisville with Dallas and Fort Worth via Nashville, Memphis and Little Rock.

The adoption of this route would provide a connecting link between the present northern route via the present air mail service between Cleveland and Louisville, with the new southern service at Dallas and Fort Worth providing a third service between New York and the Pacific Coast.

The Postmaster General announced last week that he proposed to start the new services, but this probably will not be possible until next Summer, when new budget appropriations become available and after the Department of Commerce has been able to install new lighted airways. All three services recommended today must be flown at night, under present plans.

In planning the new southern service, the Postmaster General is understood to be seeking an alternate route across the continent, as well as a service to furnish air mail facilities to cities in the Southwest, many of which now have passenger service but no air mail.

NOTE BALKS ESCAPE IN NEW JERSEY JAIL

Bars of Window in Institution at Salem Are Discovered Almost Sawed Through.

Special to The New York Times.

SALEM, N. J., Dec. 11.—An attempted delivery from the county jail here, believed to have been engineered by three prisoners, was frustrated yesterday afternoon through a note, placed on the warden's desk by a prisoner, Sheriff George T. Dixon announced this afternoon.

According to Sheriff Dixon, three bars in a window on the first floor of the jail, opening out of the common room where all the prisoners are permitted to congregate during the day, had been sawed almost in two. In a search last night several hacksaw blades were discovered in the cells of one of the three men implicated by the note.

The three prisoners named by Sheriff Dixon, all of whom are said to have been identified in the note left on Warden John Hopkins's desk, are Edward Hill, 53 years old, of Chester, Pa., who was returned to the jail here last week from New York, where he was rearrested following his escape from the convict road camp in September; David Bruce, 38, a negro, who has been in the jail two weeks, and Earl Giles, 26, who has been an inmate for the past month.

Hill is regarded by the sheriff as the ringleader. He has about four months to serve of a six-month sentence on a worthless check charge. Bruce is serving a three-month term for larceny, while Giles has been in jail awaiting trial on a charge of illegal entry.

DENIES BREAK WITH HOOVER

Legge Declares the President Supports Farm Board Acts.

MEMPHIS, Dec. 11 (AP).—Alexander Legge, chairman of the Farm Board, today denied the existence of any misunderstanding between President Hoover and the Farm Board and declared unfounded reports that objection has been made by Julius Barnes, chairman of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to acts of the Farm Board.

The statement was issued to controvert "rumors" and was made coincident with an announcement from Washington that Chairman Caraway of the Senate Lobby Committee had ordered an investigation into charges of a campaign by commission grain dealers against the board's program for a farmer-owned grain marketing agency.

"The President is vitally interested in what the Farm Board is trying to do," Mr. Legge said. "The board has had the most whole-hearted, cordial and sympathetic support from the President at all times."

11 STUDY FUNDS OPEN TO COLLEGE WOMEN

University Association Here Has Fellowships for Work in Many Countries.

CHOICE OF SUBJECTS WIDE

One Donated by Awarding Group Permits American Student to Study Where She Will.

Eleven fellowships to college women for research in philosophy, art, science, literature, social science, medicine and mental science have been made available through the American Association of University Women. Miss Belle Rankin, executive secretary of the association, announced yesterday.

Some of the fellowships specify the field of study; others permit free choice. Some specify whether the work is to be done in Europe or America. The International Fellowship of $1,500 given by the A. A. U. W. is open to women from all over the world and merely requires its holder to carry on a year's research in some country other than her own.

A Latin-American Fellowship given by American university women is open only to women of the Latin-American republics, to assist them to prepare themselves for public service in their native countries through advanced study in some educational institution of the United States. The Rose Sidgwick Memorial Fellowship of $2,000, in memory of a member of the British Educational Mission which visited the United States in 1918, is open to British women for the purpose of graduate work in American colleges and universities.

Open to American women holding the degree of Doctor of Philosophy or Doctor of Science, or with equivalent preparation, who give promise of distinction in the subject to which they are devoting themselves, there is the Sarah Berliner Research and Lecture Fellowship. SAYS DRAINAGE OF OIL FORCED FALL TO LEASE

Former Pan-American Petroleum Official Denies Fraud Charge in California Suit.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 11 (AP).—Government charges that the leasing of $15,000,000 naval oil reserve lands in California to the Pan-American Petroleum Company was accomplished by fraud were met today in the suit to cancel the contracts with defense testimony that the transaction was a necessity caused by private drilling in near-by lands.

J. C. Anderson, former executive of the company, said the oil stores of the field had been endangered by explorations on adjoining tracts. The drilling, he said, threatened to drain the government lands not only of oil but of gas by which the flow of oil is maintained.

Realizing this situation, Mr. Anderson testified, Albert B. Fall, Secretary of the Interior in 1921, leased the property to Edward L. Doheny, president of the company at that time. The witness denied that $100,000 given to Fall by Doheny, for which the former Cabinet official was convicted of bribery, had any part in the making of the leases.

If the government had continued to allow the lands to remain idle, Mr. Anderson said, the value of the property would have diminished accordingly. In presentation of its case the government introduced depositions from its geologists, in which they recommended to Fall in 1922 that the lands remain idle because drilling would create an overproduction in oil.

TO DEFEND MISS PARKS.

S. P. Orlando Named Counsel in Trial for Murder of Two Children.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMDEN, N. J., Dec. 11.—Former Assistant Prosecutor Samuel P. Orlando was appointed today as counsel for Gladys May Parks, who will go on trial on Jan. 13 charged with the murder of Dorothy Rogers, 4 years old, and Timothy Rogers, 2, children of Alan N. Rogers of Woodbury.

Anthony J. Baka, the prisoner's reputed common law husband, notified Supreme Court Justice Lloyd yesterday that he had obtained counsel for her, but Justice Lloyd refused to recognize his action, since Mrs. Baker, as the prisoner calls herself, had signed a petition of poverty, with an application for an attorney at the State's expense.

Mr. Orlando said he would ask Prosecutor Clifford A. Baldwin for a bill of particulars and a copy of the murder indictments to which the prisoner pleaded not guilty.

TWO CONFESS SHARE IN FATAL HOLD-UP

Philadelphia Men Say Third Prisoner Killed Messenger in $34,000 Robbery.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 11.—A passing glance by a traffic policeman, the memory of Inspector of Detectives William Connelly and bits of deduction here and there resulted today in the arrest of three men in connection with the murder and robbery of a bank messenger in North Philadelphia on Friday.

Two of the prisoners, William Mackenthun, 26 years old, and Walter Maloney, 21, have confessed to participation in the crime which caused the death of C. Cameron Cook, the messenger. Both have accused Thomas F. Martin, 28, the third prisoner, of the actual killing. They also gave the name of a fourth bandit who is believed to have with him $17,000 of the $34,000 loot.

Detectives were at their wits' end in an investigation of the crime when Traffic Inspector Fox walked into headquarters with Patrolman Russell Turner. Turner said he was on duty last Friday when a brown automobile carrying three men passed him.

"I waved to one of them," he continued. "It was a chap named Mackenthun. He didn't seem glad to see me."

Inspector Connelly remembered that a young man of that name had been suspected in October, with "a fellow named Maloney," of holding up a gasoline filling station, but both had been discharged.

Mackenthun and Maloney were arrested and confessed several hours later. About half of the loot was recovered in a secluded grove pointed out by Mackenthun.

Talks on Shaw's Philosophy.

Dr. Archibald Henderson, biographer and interpreter of George Bernard Shaw, discussed Shaw's philosophy last night in an address before the Institute of Arts and Sciences in the McMillin Academic Theatre, Columbia University. Dr. Henderson is head of the department of mathematics at the University of North Carolina.

WEBER IN NEW POST ON SCHOOL BOARD

Bronx Member Unanimously Elected to Succeed Stern as Vice President.

BUILDING CONTRACTS VOTED

Total $2,180,719 for Five—City Is Requested to Issue Corporate Stock for $984,505.

William J. Weber, Bronx member of the Board of Education since 1917, was elected vice president of that body by unanimous vote yesterday afternoon. The post had been vacant since the death on Oct. 28 of M. Samuel Stern, whom the board eulogized in a memorial resolution adopted after the election of Mr. Weber.

Mr. Weber was born in New York in 1879. He has been in the printing business all his life and is the head of the Weber-Earley Company of 200 Hudson Street. Since his appointment to the board his work has been mainly on the Committee on Buildings and Sites, of which he is chairman. He is also a member of the finance committee and the committees on care of buildings, attendance, local school boards, physical training and nominations.

Mr. Weber resides with his family at 246th Street and Fieldston Road, the Bronx. He is a member of the Liederkranz Club, the Elks, the Royal Arch Masons, the Coeur de Lion Knights Templar, the Foresters of America, the Modern Woodmen of the World, the Ancient Order of United Workmen of Connecticut, and other organizations. He is a Democrat, as are all the other members of the board.

The board approved the award of contracts aggregating $2,180,719 for the construction of five new school buildings. The number of the schools, their location, the contractor, the number of sittings and the price follow:

Public School 238, Avenue P and East Eighth Street, Brooklyn; J. Weinstein Building Corporation; 2,502 seats.

Public School 241, President and Carroll Streets, Brooklyn; Lynn Engineering Company; 1,598 seats; $524,700.

Public School 102, Archer Street and Taylor Avenue, the Bronx; C. and W. Construction Company; 1,575 seats, $530,009.

Public School 228, Wortman Avenue and Hemlock Street, Brooklyn; J. Weinstein Building Corporation; 1,002 seats; $294,336.

Public School 106, Edgmere Avenue and Beach Thirty-fourth Street, Queens; George F. Driscoll Company; 482 seats; $233,337.

The board also approved plans for the erection of new Public School 70, the Bronx, and new Public School 49, Queens.

The Board of Estimate was requested to authorize the issue of corporate stock to the value of $984,505.54 for salaries for inspectors and draftsmen at work on the building program for 1930.

The problem of the 2,952 unemployed elementary school teachers was discussed informally by various school officials, who said that the gravity of the situation long had been recognized by the administration, but that no solution had yet been found. At yesterday's meeting about sixty teachers received sabbatical leaves and that will provide as many temporary positions for unemployed instructors, but it is recognized that not enough sabbatical leaves are being granted to provide substantial permanent relief.

PAUL REVERE'S ANVIL TO BE SOLD AT AUCTION

Used by Noted Rider in Work as Silversmith—Granddaughter's Trunk Also Offered.

The anvil on which Paul Revere practiced his calling as a silversmith is to be sold at auction here. This relic of the Revolutionary patriot, who is more closely associated in the popular mind with nocturnal horseback riding than with craftsmanship, will be offered to the highest bidder at the American Art Association-Anderson Galleries, Inc., here and will be placed on exhibition in the galleries on Dec. 28.

The anvil is an item in the Flayderman collection, which includes also a little leather-covered traveling trunk, once the property of Paul Revere's granddaughter, Deborah Revere. The anvil, not quite 10 inches high, is in the form of a square tapering column on a stepped base. It was sold by his grandson, George Revere, to Alexander Lincoln of Boston, and became part of the present collection by purchase from Alexander R. Lincoln, grandson of the purchaser. The original receipt for the purchase of Revere's stock and tools, which will be given to the purchaser of the anvil, reads:

"Rec'd of Alexander Lincoln the sum of five hundred and seventy dollars and 56/100, being the full amount of all the stock and tools as were appraised to him by Thomas Dewhurst and Samuel B. Meacham on the first of October, one thousand eight hundred and twenty-five. George Revere. Boston, Nov. 16, 1825."

Deborah Revere's trunk has a wooden frame, covered in leather, bordered with brass nails, with an oval medallion of brass nails on the lid enclosing the initials "D. R." The original label inside the lid reads: "Eaton and Gray, Saddlers, Harness, Trunk and Cap Maker; No. 40 Court Street, Boston." It was made about 1820. Deborah Revere married Alexander Lincoln and the trunk was purchased from their grandson, Alexander Lincoln.

The Flayderman collection of early American furniture and furnishings contains many historic pieces, including the arm chair used by John Hancock, signer of the Declaration of Independence, at his inauguration as first Governor of Massachusetts. An affidavit, stating its history, and sworn to by a descendant of the Governor's family, accompanies the chair. Another piece, the Judge John Cushing chair, formed part of the original furnishings of the old State House at Boston and, according to tradition, is the chair in which Judge Cushing sat during the trial of the British soldiers who participated in the Boston massacre, according to the galleries.

SENATORS IN CLASH OVER WATERWAYS

Copeland Before Harbors' Conference Urges All-America Canal —Walsh for St. Lawrence.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (AP).—Conflicting views on Great Lakes to Atlantic waterway development were presented to the rivers and harbors congress today by Senator Walsh of Montana and Senator Copeland of New York, both Democrats.

Senator Walsh urged the feasibility and necessity of the Great Lakes to St. Lawrence waterway as the "most imperative tasks confronting American statesmanship." He scored the attitude of New York in opposing that project and said that New York's substitute plan was not feasible and that New York had no right to the St. Lawrence power sites, as they belonged to the nation.

Senator Copeland spoke in behalf of the "all American" Great Lakes-Hudson ship canal through New York State.

Mr. Copeland said the St. Lawrence waterway, approved by wheat growers of the West, was "out of the question."

"It does not compare in value to the United States with the so-called all-American canal," he continued. "The latter is capable of accomplishing for the Great Lakes and the West all that the St. Lawrence can give."

He added that the latter route would "run to an American port, carry domestic freight to and from the Atlantic Seaboard, give the manufacturers and farmers of the West access to Central and South America, the Panama Canal, the west coast of Africa and the entrance to the Mediterranean."

"It will help to develop our own United States," he said, asserting that the money would be "spent in our own country, and its control will be forever in our own hands."

Mr. Walsh declared it "inconceivable" that the potential electric energy of 5,000,000 horsepower of the St. Lawrence Rapids would long remain dormant. He intimated that power interests had been holding up the waterways project because of the electrical development concerned.

Delegations from Michigan and Ohio supported Mr. Walsh.

Voting to support the Hoover waterway program, the Congress urged that all projects authorized should be completed within five years and asked passage of a rivers and harbors act by Congress at the earliest practicable day.

Hospital Children to See Santa.

Children in the contagious disease hospitals of the city are to be entertained at parties on Christmas Day by Edward F. Cadley, Acting Hospital Commissioner, who will appear as Santa Claus to distribute the gifts collected for them by the Department of Hospitals. To make certain that every child would receive a Christmas package, Commissioner Cadley appealed to the public yesterday to send toys, radios, warm woolen clothing and similar gifts addressed to John J. McCarthy, treasurer, Department of Hospitals Christmas Fund, Municipal Building, Manhattan.

THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

An Air Fight Over London.

THE SKY HAWK, with Helen Chandler, John Garrick, Gilbert Emery, Lennox Pawle, Lumsden Hare, Billy Bevan, Daphne Pollard, Joyce Compton and Percy Chalinger, based on Llewellyn Hughes's story. "Chap Called Bardell," directed by John Blystone. At the Gaiety Theatre.

A melodrama of the skies which has not been equaled in its adroit handling, its competent acting, its authentic atmospheric effects, or the tonal quality of the voices of the participants was launched last night by William Fox at the Gaiety Theatre. It is a film that even in its early stages catches one's interest to an unbelievable extent. It is called "The Sky Hawk," being an adaptation of Llewellyn Hughes's story, "Chap Called Bardell."

The climax of this exciting production is an air battle over London between a Zeppelin and a hornet-like airplane. In it full marks are given for the courage of a Britisher and the Germans. It is one of the few audible screen subjects wherein such great pains have been taken to unfurl the story with attention to realistic detail. What trifling anachronisms there may be, matter not, for the intelligent supervision is constantly apparent. And also, one cannot but be impressed by the cleverly drawn contrasts that flash here and there during the thrilling episodes.

John Garrick, obviously a Britisher, figures as Jack Bardell, who brings down the Zeppelin, while throngs in Whitechapel and the West End are keyed up to a high pitch of enthusiasm. It is a melodrama, it is true, and it must be gauged from that angle, but that does not mean that it does not ring true. The voices of the English are really English and Helen Chandler, an American actress, plays the part of the heroine, Joan Allen, who is a Canadian.

Lennox Pawle, the English actor, officiates as Lord Bardell, Jack's father, while Daphne Pollard and Billy Bevan turn to good account the cockney comedy roles.

It is just before and during the fight at night over misty London that John Blystone, the director, seizes upon the absorbing idea of depicting what went on during a Zeppelin raid. There is the theatre that receives warning of the raid. One perceives the audience and then the comedian calmly informing the gathering that a Zeppelin is attacking the metropolis. Women in evening gowns are asked quietly by their escorts whether they wish to leave, but all decide to stay and the dancing girls come before the footlights and cavort about the stage in one of their precision terpsichorean acts.

In the East end there is a hurry and bustle for the London subway, called the tube, but one of Blighty's fifty-year old buxom flower girls stays out in the roadway, because she can see better what's "gahin' on." There are some frightened persons and some solemn ones. Then one goes aloft to the Zeppelin and perceives the Germans conversing always in German, dropping their bombs, half a dozen at a time.

There are restaurants below crammed with patrons, eating and drinking, and, in his home, Lord Bardell is subsequently perceived with a number of friends going up to the roof to get an uninterrupted view of the battle in the air. In the London streets Joan runs along, half hysterical, for she knows that Jack Bardell is piloting the plane that is attacking the Zeppelin. Sergeant Tom Berry and his paramour, Minnie, are also somewhere in the Strand eagerly watching every spurt made by the tiny airplane. The searchlights are sending their beams at the Zeppelin and anti-aircraft guns are firing their futile missiles here and there far below the giant airship. It is all a vivid reminder of the dark days of the war.

The narrative is by no means an unlikely one and in filming it Mr. Blystone had the advice of the author and also Campbell Gullan, a Britisher. The dialogue is terse but suitable, and while in the introductory incidents officers are not a little severe on Jack Bardell, it is what makes the story. Young Bardell, who receives his commission in the Royal Flying Corps, is told by Major Nelson, admirably played by Gilbert Emery, that he is to leave for France that afternoon. Bardell had not expected to leave for a fortnight, and it happens that he is to be married to Joan just about the time he is scheduled to take off for the front.

Bardell, with the aid of the one-eyed Sergeant Berry, without permission, gets an airplane to fly to his father's home, Bardell Towers. Unable to get in communication with Joan on the telephone, Jack takes off for his home and in returning he makes a bad landing and crashes, with the consequence that both his legs are temporarily paralyzed. It is the verdict of a court-martial that Bardell's accident was not beyond his control and through the publication of a paragraph hinting that he is a coward, he receives a white feather.

Although he has not regained the use of his legs and is compelled to go around in a wheel chair, Bardell succeeds in gaining possession of a rejected airplane. He and Sergeant Berry work on this machine until they have it in good running order. Then Bardell hears that the airplane is to be commandeered. This news comes during the raid of the Zeppelin. It is a case of do or die with him, as he knows that he will never get another chance. Quickly, he wheels himself out to the make-shift hangar and Berry scurries around and obtains what little gasolene he can. Soon, with Joan pleading with him not to go, Bardell darts off into the sky to attack the airship single-handed.

Miss Chandler gives a striking performance of Joan. Mr. Garrick is fine as Jack Bardell. During a mass scene he shows that he has a rich singing voice. Mr. Pawle is capital as Lord Bardell. Lumsden Hare's portrayal of Joan's father is splendid.

In one of the introductory Movietone features H. G. Wells is seen and heard in a talk on the problem of getting rid of old governments "that are worn out and which we have grown out of." In his high-pitched voice, Mr. Wells dilates upon the strides made in all other direction but governments. He shows a map of Europe and declares it to be a patchwork, "with little sovereign states jammed together." He points to the size of the United States, which he says is not what he believes to be "the ultimate size of sovereignty."

He declares during one passage of his address that he is a very patriotic person. "I am English," he asserts, "but my government is always trying to make me call myself British, and I won't."

He goes on to say that he likes Scotsmen, but that he likes Norwegians and Rhinelanders equally well.

"I find," he declares, "an American as satisfactory as an Afrikander or an Australian, and the Chinese seem to me as good as British Indians.

"They say that the British Empire is a quarter of mankind. Why stop at a quarter? If I can share one government with a Scotsman, why should I not share it with a German or a Russian. . . . Before we can begin to solve the problems we may have great battles before us to keep or win the freedom needed to solve it."

TICKET QUESTION TAKEN UP

Managers Name Hopkins to Devise Plan to Curb Speculators.

Broadway managers again took up the subject of ticket speculation yesterday afternoon when a dozen met at a closed meeting in the lounge of Henry Miller's Theatre. Arthur Hopkins was appointed chairman of a committee to devise ways and means to curb the speculation evil.

An exhaustive report on the subject will be prepared by the committee. Later, a general meeting of all Broadway managers will be called to discuss the committee's findings. Gilbert Miller was among the managers who attended the meeting.

'DIANA' TO CLOSE SATURDAY

"Headquarters" and "The Pelican" Also to End Engagements.

"Diana," a play which deals with several episodes in the life of the late Isadora Duncan, will be withdrawn on Saturday night from the Longacre Theatre where it opened on Monday. Mary Nash has the title rôle in the play, of which Irving Kaye Davis is the author.

"Headquarters" will close on Saturday night at the Forrest Theatre, and "The Pelican" will end its engagement at the MacDougal Street Playhouse in Greenwich Village.

Greenroomers to Honor E. Ray Goetz

A "midnight stag" in honor of E. Ray Goetz will be given by the Greenroomers at their new club house, 68 West Forty-fifth Street, on Saturday night. A show will be presented under the direction of Sharon Stephens and S. Jay Kaufman.

"City Haul" to Open Here Dec. 30.

"City Haul," the play by Elisabeth Miele which Gil Boag is producing, will open on Broadway Dec. 30, either at the Liberty or the Eltinge Theatre. If the play goes into the former house, "Subway Express" will move, elsewhere. "City Haul" will play next week in Newark, and will be seen Christmas week at the Flatbush Theatre, Brooklyn.

"Outward Bound" at Barnard.

Sutton Vane's "Outward Bound," selected by the Barnard College dramatic society as its annual Winter play, will be performed tomorrow and Saturday nights at the Brinkerhoff Theatre. Under the direction of Murray Kinnell, separate casts will appear in the play on successive evenings.

DISCUSSES PUPPET PLAYS.

National Junior League Confers on Shows for Children.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—The National Junior League Theatre conference devoted itself to group meetings at the Drake Hotel today. Theatre children's plays were discussed at one meeting under the chairmanship of Mrs. Bankhead Banks. At another gathering puppets and marionettes were the subjects of consideration.

At the Selwyn Theatre this afternoon the Chicago Junior League set up scenes from former plays under the critical eye of Robert Edmund Jones, critic and author.

Night activities took the 150 delegates to the Women's Athletic Club, where two shows were put on. One was of puppets staging "Jack and the Beanstalk," given by the St. Louis Junior League. The other was of marionettes given by the Omaha Junior League.

The conference, which represents the ninety-nine junior leagues of the country, is meeting to discuss the problems confronting the production of marionette and puppet shows and children's plays.

COLUMBIA COMEDY STAGED.

"Prima Donna," Written and Acted by Students, Is Presented.

"Prima Donna," a three-act comedy written, directed and performed by undergraduates, had its premiere last night in the Earl Hall auditorium of Columbia University before a student audience. It was presented by the Morningside Players under the auspices of the Institute of Arts and Sciences and will be performed nightly until Saturday.

The comedy is by Lillian Harlas, a student in the university playwriting courses and at one time an assistant stage manager for the Theatre Guild. Milton Smith, a student of stagecraft, designed the sets and directed the play with the assistance of Berrell Rawls as stage manager. "Prima Donna" is the first production of the season. All of the plays planned for the current year are to be the work of students, it was announced.

WILL GIVE JOINT REVUE.

Fred Keating and Albert Carroll to Appear at 49th St. Theatre.

Fred Keating, magician, and Albert Carroll, impersonator and annually the star of the "Grand Street Follies," will offer a joint revue for two weeks at the Forty-ninth Street Theatre, beginning Sunday evening, Dec. 22. Mr. Keating will give his own program and, as master of ceremonies, will introduce each of Mr. Carroll's numbers. The latter, it is announced, will be largely new. Mary Morley, pianist, will accompany Mr. Carroll and will also appear as a soloist.

PAULINE FREDERICK ILL.

Ptomaine Poisoning Interrupts Los Angeles Appearance.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 11 (AP).—Pauline Frederick, stage and motion picture actress, was suffering today from ptomaine poisoning which caused her to become violently ill last night just before she was to appear in a Los Angeles theatre. Her physician, called when she collapsed a minute before the curtain was to rise, said he thought her condition not dangerous.

Junior League to Give Play.

The stock company of the Junior League Players will present "Sonya's Search for the Christmas Star" at Hampden's Theatre on Friday afternoon. Performances will also be given on Saturday morning, on Friday afternoon, Dec. 20, and on Saturday morning, Dec. 21. The play is a translation from the Norwegian of Sverre Brandt and is said to have been produced in Stockholm, Oslo and Berlin.

"Blind Window" to Be Revised.

"Blind Window" will not come to the Hudson Theatre on Christmas Eve, as previously announced. Instead, David Belasco had decided to close the play for revision after its Philadelphia engagement, which ends on Dec. 21, and bring it to Broadway later in the season.

"Blind Window" is an adaptation by B. Harrison Orkow of a Hungarian play by Elemer Boross. Beth Merrill heads the cast.

WILLIAMS OFFERS 3 PLAYS.

Second Presentation of Season in Little Theatre on Jan. 13.

Special to The New York Times.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Dec. 11.—The Williams Little Theatre will make its second presentation of the season on Jan. 11, with the offering of three one-act plays, each of a widely different style. "The Boor," by Anton Tchekov, will open the program. It is a Russian comedy, done in an imperialistic style. Mrs. King and Mr. Radcliffe-Graff have the leads, with direction by Thaddeus Clapp.

Essex Dane's "When the Whirlwind Blows," a dramatic picture of post-revolutionary Russia, will be presented next. Mrs. Charles Graham, Mrs. Lawrence Bloedel, and Mrs. Richard Newhall will take the feature parts, with Russel Wheeler '31 directing.

The last production will be "Tom Thumb," from the book by Henry Fielding a romantic comedy which is to be presented with a rough atmosphere. There will be a large cast, headed by Ray Boyce as Tom Thumb, Mrs. Safford as Hunca Munca, and Mrs. Stuart Chapin as Mustacha. A. Reiff '30, president of the Little Theatre, will direct the final play.

PRODUCERS SUE EQUITY.

Louis O. Macloon and Wife Want to Be Taken Off "Unfair" List.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 11.—Louis O. MacLoon and his wife, Lillian Albertson, theatrical producers, brought suit in Federal court today for an injunction and $100,000 damages against the Actors' Equity Association, Frank Gillmore, its president, and Paul Dullzell, its executive secretary and treasurer. The complaint charges that the association and particularly President Gillmore have placed the plaintiffs on the "unfair" list and have threatened to prevent the production of "The New Moon" on Jan. 12, 1930, at the Majestic Theatre.

Judge Henning has ordered the defendants to show cause before Judge James on Dec. 23 as to why they should not be enjoined.

The complaint charges that the notices sent out to Equity members state that any who appeared in a play produced by the plaintiffs would be suspended from the association. It also charges that it is impossible for the plaintiffs to produce a play without the employment of members of the association.

Junior Players to Give Pantomime.

Two casts of the Junior Players of the Neighborhood Playhouse are now rehearsing for the annual holiday matinees which they will give at the Booth Theatre on the afternoons of Friday, Dec. 27; Sunday, Dec. 29; Monday, Dec. 30, and Tuesday, Dec. 31, and on Saturday morning, Dec. 28. Their production will be the dance pantomime, "La Boutique Fantasque," which they presented last season. It will be the first time the Junior Players have appeared in the Broadway district.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Street Scene," which moves to the Ambassador Theatre from the Playhouse on Dec. 23, will give daily matinees there beginning Dec. 26 and continuing through New Year's Day.

Leroy Prinz is staging additional dances for "Top Speed," the Bolton-Delmar-Ruby musical comedy, opening in Chanin's Forty-sixth Street Theatre on Christmas night.

"Many Waters" will suspend performances next week at the Times Square in accordance with the Equity ruling. It will resume on Dec. 23.

Grover Burgess, who had the leading rôle in "The Silver Tassie," will have the title part in "The Playboy of the Western World," the Synge play which the Irish Theatre has placed in rehearsal.

Barry Lupino will be in the cast of "Babes in Toyland," opening at Jolson's Theatre on Dec. 23.

Remo Bufano's Marionettes, now appearing in special performances at the Garrick Theatre, will move to the Ganzevoort Theatre on Saturday, Dec. 21.

"The Game of Love and Death" will be transferred from the Guild Theatre to the Biltmore on Dec. 23 at which time "Meteor" will open at the Guild.

The Road Is CLEAR!

More than 3,500,000 New Yorkers are today working their way toward a sure and permanent success. These men and women of courage and ambition have a clear picture of worth while methods. They are the savings bank depositors of Greater New York.

5663 persons have opened new savings accounts with the Bowery Savings Bank since November 1st with total initial deposits of $5,565,187.

These men and women are not asking impossible favors of fortune. They know by cold sober calculation that the opportunity to work and to save carries with it the promise of financial independence—

Especially when their funds earn 4½% interest from day of deposit to day of withdrawal.

MANY OPERAS SET FOR THE HOLIDAYS

Matinee of "Hansel and Gretel" and "Pagliacci," "Carmen" and "Girl of the Golden West."

"DIE WALKUERE" REPEATED

Bodanzky Conducts a Spirited and Expressive Performance—Mmes. Stueckgold as Sieglinde.

Holiday opera matinees in profusion were announced from brightly colored posters that greeted last night's assembling audience at the Metropolitan's third current performance of "Die Walkure." Heading the list was a popular matinee of "Pagliacci" and "Hansel and Gretel" on Christmas Day, when the singers will be Martinelli, Oltrabella and Danise in the first named, and Bourskaya, Mario and Manski in the other.

Mme. Jeritza will sing in "The Girl of the Golden West" at a special Friday matinee, Dec. 27, with Martinelli, Tibbett and Pasero. Mme. Galli-Curci, as already made known, is to reappear Tuesday night, Dec. 31, in a special New Year's Eve performance of "Rigoletto," with Gigli, Danise and Rothier. A New Year's matinee on Jan. 1 will present Jeritza, Martinelli and Pinza in "Carmen."

"Die Walküre" last evening again enlisted Mmes. Manski and Clausen, Messrs. Kirchhoff, Mayr and Whitehill among those previously heard in this favorite episode of "The Ring" cycle. Mme. Stueckgold sang as a a gentle and picturesque Sieglinde.

Mr. Bodanzky, who took the conductor's chair lately held in turn by Rosenstock and Riedel, marked his return by opening up a cut from the many passages often omitted for brevity. The restoration in this case was a five-minute bit of Wagner's music in the dialogue of Wotan and his goddess over the flight of the earth-born lovers.

The performance as a whole was musically spirited and expressive, both in Wagner's intricacies of argument and in the broader outlines of action set to tone-poems of universal appeal. The winged flock of Valkyries included Mmes. Aves, Wells, Fleischer, Bourskaya, Telva, Wakefield, Carroll and Flexer, and Ernst Lert was in charge of the stage.

An audience that listened in silent appreciation and with equal heartiness applauded during two brief intermissions showed particular cordiality to Mme. Manski, who has not often sung Brünnhilde before. The opera, even with the restored music, was so expedited backstage that, although the performance did not start till 8 o'clock, it was only 11:10 when the house filed into the streets after the "Fire Music" finale.

SOTHERN SEES STAGE AS MOSTLY VULGAR

Shakespearean Actor Now Trying to Arouse Public to Endow Theatres.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—The American stage, for the most part, is in "lewd and vulgar depths," E. H. Sothern, Shakespearean actor, who is making a year's tour in recitals and lectures, declared upon his arrival here today.

Mr. Sothern feels that through his tour he may be able to arouse public interest in the founding of endowed theatres, so that the equality of American actors and stage may be improved.

"The stage in this country has become commonplace, often vulgar and despicable, primarily commercial," he said. "I do not decry the commercial aspect of the American stage, but of the noble, pure and beautiful quality desired in a theatre we in this country have very little, and it will take many years to reach that state. Fifty years ago we led the world in stock companies of fine standards. Now we are in lewd and vulgar depths for the most part."

Julia Marlowe, his wife, who retired from the stage five years ago, after a remarkable Shakespearean career, could not accompany Mr. Sothern on his tour, having been compelled to remain in Italy for her health, the actor said.

ISIAH SELIGMAN HEARD.

Pianist Who Rarely Appears Gives Recital in Steinway Hall.

Isiah Seligman, a pianist who has appeared but rarely in the last half-dozen years, gave a recital last night in Steinway Hall. A thoughtful and musicianly quality characterized his playing of works by Bach, Mozart, Chopin, Debussy and other classic and modern composers, though a somewhat hard and uncompromising robust tone might well have been tempered to the acoustics of the small auditorium. This was especially true of the Mozart variations in C major on the air "Ah vous dirai-je maman."

A skillfully written novelty on the list was Joseph Schillinger's "Grotesque," performed here for the first time. The work was cordially applauded by the large audience and was repeated. Other items were the Bach-Busoni Chaconne, Scriabine's Sonata, op. 22, Blanchet's "Au Jardin de vieux serail," Mana-Zucca's Etude de Concert, a nocturne, a mazurka and a ballade by Chopin, Debussy's "Reflets dans l'eau" and Liszt's twelfth Hungarian Rhapsody.

Russian Symphonic Choir Sings.

The Russian Symphonic Choir, composed of twenty-two mixed voices, gave a concert last night at the Hotel Barbizon, attracting a large audience, which applauded the singers in a program of choral works by Rachmaninoff, Tchaikovsky, Borodin, Rimsky-Korsakoff, Gretchaninoff and other composers. The leader of the group, Basil Kibalchich, also conducted a number of his own compositions. Incidental solos were sung by Mme. Ivanova and Messrs. Mamonoff, Apolonoff, Grigorieff and Slepuschkin.

MUSIC NOTES.

Sidney John Smith, tenor, is a newcomer in the "Grand Duchess" cast for tomorrow's revival at the Brooklyn Little Theatre.

Leopold Mannes has written music for the King-Coit School's performance of "The Tempest" on Dec. 20 at the Garrick Theatre.

EFREM ZIMBALIST PLAYS TO A THRONG

Violinist's Program in Carnegie Hall Includes Glazunoff's Concerto, With Composer in Box.

Efrem Zimbalist, the distinguished violinist, presented last evening at Carnegie Hall a program which was admirably suited to his gifts. It included the popular Pugnani-Kreisler "Praeludium and Allegro," Bruch's "Scotch Fantasy" and Glazunoff's concerto in A minor, changed opportunely at the last moment from the previously announced Hubay G minor concerto. For good measure there was added a group of short pieces by Cottenet, Suk, Koscak Yamada and Szymanovsky.

The playing of Mr. Zimbalist displayed, as always, unostentatious poise, sincerity, repose, breadth and an artistic balance between the objective and subjective. With no parade of mere technic, the auditors could, nevertheless, not help being impressed with the brilliance of the purely mechanical side of the violinist's performance. So idiomatically did he succeed in varying his tone-color, that the four strings of his violin often sounded rather like separate instruments of a quartet. His D-string might have been a viola. Glowing double-stopping, ethereal pianissimo effects near the bridge, and the quality of the violinist's tone seemed like a musical version of a canvas by Felix Ziem.

Mr. Zimbalist's "editing" of Pugnani was perhaps the most interesting part of the evening to the violinists in the audience. For one thing, he changed the bowings, as usually printed and played, with gratifying results. For another he "played rests" between various sections and the effect was dramatic.

Bruch's "Scotch Fantasy" was lovely. Aside from obvious tones, the work is manifestly synagogal chanting. The playing of the recitalist, with its soaring "lift" and lofty intensity, was very moving.

For many years Mr. Zimbalist has taken the Glazunoff concerto to his heart. Last night he played before the composer, who was in the audience. Mr. Glazunoff rose many times in his box to acknowledge the plaudits of the auditors.

The audience that gathered to hear Mr. Zimbalist filled every seat, most of the stage and all the available standing space at the back of the hall. The hearers insisted upon a repetition of Suk's "Burleska." Yamada's Japanese lullaby and five encores, which included a brilliant solo by Sarasate.

BERLIN JOINS HARRIS FOR MUSICAL COMEDY

Will Write Music and Lyrics of 'Talkie, Talkie,' to Be Produced at Music Box Next Fall.

Irving Berlin, who has lately been devoting his time to the talking pictures, has joined forces with Sam H. Harris for the production at the Music Box Theatre early next Fall of a musical comedy which will be called "Talkie, Talkie." Mr. Berlin will, of course, write the music and lyrics of the production.

Mr. Berlin and Mr. Harris were associated in the various Music Box Revues and in "The Cocoanuts," in which the Marx Brothers appeared. Mr. Berlin was last represented in Broadway musical comedy by the "Follies" of 1927, in which Eddie Cantor starred. He will return to the Pacific Coast on Sunday to complete his motion picture work.

KING ENJOYS 'BITTER SWEET'

George and Consort See One Show; Norwegian Royalty, Another.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Two London theatres were under royal patronage last night. King George and Queen Mary attended the performance of Noel Coward's revue, "Bitter Sweet," in which Peggy Wood, the American actress, has the leading rôle, while the King and Queen of Norway saw "The Show's the Thing."

King George showed great enjoyment, laughing frequently. As the King and Queen were leaving the theatre they were cheered by a crowd of undergraduates who had invaded the West End to celebrate a Rugby match by universities.

Frank Craven to Preside at Bazaar.

Frank Craven, star of "Salt Water," will preside at the official opening of the Professional Woman's League's annual bazaar at 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Hotel Ansonia. The bazaar, which is for the benefit of the league's philanthropic fund, will continue until Saturday midnight.

James Cruze Undergoes Operation.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 11 (AP).—James Cruze, motion picture director, was operated on today for appendicitis. Reports from the hospital said the patient was resting easily. Mr. Cruze was preparing his first production under his own company when stricken.

JEANET E. SULLIVAN TO WED ON DEC. 26

MISS SHANLEY'S BRIDAL

Ceremony With E. W. Doelger to Be Performed by Bride's Cousin, Rev. Timothy Shanley, on Jan. 9.

Arrangements for the recently announced marriage of Miss Jeanet Ellinwood Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Seager Sullivan of 61 East Eightieth Street, this city, to Lewis Perry Curtis, son of Mrs. Roderick P. Curtis and the late Mr. Curtis of Southport, Conn., were announced yesterday by Mrs. Sullivan.

The wedding will be held at 4 P. M. Thursday, Dec. 26, at the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, Madison Avenue at Seventy-third Street. Dr. Henry Sloane Coffin, president of the Union Theological Seminary, formerly rector of the church, will perform the ceremony. A reception will be held at the Colony Club immediately after the ceremony.

A program of selections from Bach and Wagner will be played by Seth Bingham, organist of the church, as the guests assemble.

Miss Constance Sullivan, sister of the bride, will be the maid of honor. The bridesmaids will be Mrs. James Pomeroy Hendrick, another sister of the bride; Miss Louis Curtis, a sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Godfrey Twachtman, Mrs. Otto B. Reimer, Miss Julia Lee and Miss Frances Chrystie.

Joseph Toy Curtiss will be best man. The ushers will be Edward Livingston Wells Curtis, brother of the bridegroom; James Pomeroy Hendrick, Frederick Whitley Hillis, William Huse Dunham, John Harcourt MacDill, Godfrey Twachtman, Jonathan Wells and Dr. James Bordley 3d.

Mr. Curtis is an instructor at Yale University and the couple will live at 732 Prospect Street, New Haven, Conn.

Shanley—Doelger.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Joseph Shanley, of 252 West 71st Street, have sent out invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Agnita Marie Shanley, to Ernest Woerz Doelger on Jan. 9 in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, in West Seventy-first Street. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Timothy Shanley, a cousin of the bride, and will be followed by a high mass.

Mrs. Beverly C. Saunders Jr. will be matron of honor and Miss Edwina Michell Shanley, a sister of the bride, will be maid of honor. The other bridal attendants will be Mrs. Marcella Vernon, Mrs. James Philip Reichman of Chicago, Miss Ruth Cornet of St. Louis and Miss Dorothy Kane. Peter Doelger will be best man for his brother. The ushers will be Daniel Kane Shanley, a brother of the bride; Adrian F. Smith, Joseph A. McDonough, John F. McDonough, William Hassinger, William Corbett, Norman V. Farrell and Bertram Jordan Jr.

A reception will follow at the Plaza.

PALM BEACH PLANS BOTANICAL GARDEN

Widening of Royal Palm Way With Four Rows of Trees Also Suggested by Club Women.

LAKE TRAIL IMPROVEMENT

Would Open Old Wheel Chair Route to Auto Traffic—Season's Social Life Under Way.

Special to The New York Times.

PALM BEACH, Fla., Dec. 11.—Mrs. George A. McKinlock, president of the Garden Club of Palm Beach and chairman of the executive committee, and Mrs. Henry Rea, honorary chairman, will submit to the Town Council next week a plan for the proposed beautification of Palm Beach, prepared by Bennett, Parsons & Frost, town planners. At a meeting last Spring the Garden Club decided to undertake a beautification program.

The proposals to be submitted include the establishment of a botanical garden; development of the Lake Trail, a distinctive feature of Palm Beach; widening of Royal Palm Way with four rows of royal palms to extend from Lake Worth to the ocean; a parkway on either side of the Town Hall. The Lake Trail, which follows the shore of Lake Worth for several miles, was built years ago for wheel-chair, bicycle and pedestrian traffic, and has never been opened to automobiles. The botanical garden will be between the lake and the ocean, accessible from the Lake Trail and from the county road, according to the Garden Club plan.

The first meeting of the Garden Club will be held in January. Dates for the flower show this season are Feb. 28, March 1 and 2.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Emery will arrive from New York on Saturday to be guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Shepard Jr. at Casa del Pastor, their home in Dunbar Road.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jordan, who are occupying their ocean front home for a few weeks before the arrival of their tenants, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Corbin, in January, gave a small dinner this evening.

Chester Williams of Hot Springs and Pinehurst has gone North following a short visit in Palm Beach, but will return in January with Mrs. Williams. They leased, last season, the home of Mrs. Charles Albert Smylie.

Mrs. Vincent Bendix departed from the New Palm Beach Hotel tonight for Chicago, but will return later in the season.

Colonel Robert Glendinning of Philadelphia is spending a fortnight at Casa Del Leoni, his home in Worth Avenue. He will go North for Christmas and return early in January with Mrs. Glendinning, W. S. Janney, J. K. Wilcox and Major F. H. Maguire are guests of Colonel Glendinning during his pre-holiday visit.

Mr. and Mrs. William G. Warden of Philadelphia will remain North until the first of the year. Mrs. Warden's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Heckscher Wetherill who spent the early season last year at the Warden villa, are living abroad this Winter.

Members of the Palm Beach colony who are expected within a week include Mr. and Mrs. Warner L. Jones, whose house is in Via La Selva; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Richard Cowell, who have a new house in El Vedado Lane; Mr. and Mrs. William H. Sweatt, in Sea Breeze Avenue; Mr. and Mrs. G. Bryan Pitts, at their home in North Ocean Boulevard; Mr. and Mrs. Allan P. Kirby, whose new villa is in South Ocean Boulevard.

Kenneth G. Smith has joined Mrs. Smith at their new house in Via del Mar. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were among dinner guests last evening at the Restaurant Flamingo. Others were Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Speidel, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas H. McGuire and Ohan S. Berberyan with six guests.

Baron and Baroness Constantine von Economo were guests of honor yesterday, before their departure for New York, at a tea given by Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Fatio. Among other guests were Mr. and Mrs. Howard Major, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley R. Reynolds, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Lanfranchi, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dobyne, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Clawson, Mr. and Mrs. John Shepard Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Hobart E. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Smith, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Sawyer, Mrs. H. Hood Bassett, Edward M. Shields, Frank A. Shaughnessy.

Mrs. George A. Dobyne was serenaded last evening at her home, Casa Beata, by a group of about thirty "Romany Singers" in costume. This was the first appearance of the society of a chorus organized last Spring by Mrs. Dobyne with the help of her son-in-law, John Charles Thomas. The "Romanys" last evening entertained Mr. and Mrs. Dobyne and their dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. George A. McKinlock, with a program of gypsy songs and dances. In addition to tambourines, some of the songs were accompanied by four violins.

MISS PRUYN ENGAGED TO OGDEN PHIPPS

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dunbar Pruyn to Wed Grandson of Philanthropist.

MISS GERAGHTY BETROTHED

Her Mother Announces Her Troth to Clarence F. Hussey, Graduate of Fordham Law School.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dunbar Pruyn of Glen Cove, L. I., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Pruyn, to Ogden Phipps, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps of this city, Westbury, L. I., and Palm Beach, Fla. The engagement is of wide interest not only in this city but in Albany and abroad. Miss Pruyn is a granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert C. Pruyn of Albany, N. Y., and also of Mrs. George Bird of this city. She was graduated from Brearley School and was introduced to society in this city four seasons ago. Robert L. Pruyn is her brother.

Mr. Phipps is a grandson of Henry Phipps of this city and Palm Beach, Fla., the philanthropist, and of Mrs. Phipps. On the maternal side he is a grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills, whose home for many years was at 2 East Sixty-ninth Street, and through his maternal grandmother is a member of the Livingston family.

His mother is the former Miss Gladys Mills, twin sister of the Countess of Granard of Forbes House, London. Mr. Phipps is a great-grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Maturin Livingston, and of the late Mr. and Mrs. Darius Ogden Mills. He is a nephew of Ogden Livingston Mills, Under-Secretary of the Treasury. On the paternal side Mr. Phipps is a nephew of John S. Phipps and Howard Phipps, Mrs. Bradley Martin and Mrs. Frederick E. Guest. He is the brother of Miss Barbara Phipps, a débutante of this season.

No date has been set for the wedding.

Geraghty—Hussey.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The bill introduced by Senator Dill of Washington to extend the life of the Radio Commission from Dec. 31 "until otherwise provided by law" was today favorably reported by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee, with an amendment proposed by Senator Copeland of New York.

As amended, the commission obtains authority to appoint a chief engineer at $10,000 a year and "not to exceed" two assistants at $7,500 each.

No hearing was held by the committee today. David Sarnoff, vice president of the Radio Corporation, will be heard tomorrow. General Harbord, it is understood, will appear before the committee on Friday.

TRANSIT OFFICIALS MEET WITH WALKER

Delaney, Fullen and Mayor Prepare for Unification Parley Tomorrow.

CONSIDER CONTROL BILL

Executive Is Said to Believe 1930 Measure Should Be Virtually the Same as This Year's.

In preparation for a second unification conference with B. M. T. counsel tomorrow morning in the office of Samuel Untermyer, special counsel to the Transit Commission, Chairman Delaney of the Board of Transportation and Chairman Fullen of the Transit Commission conferred yesterday with Mayor Walker. They discussed with him at some length the transit control bill to be introduced in the 1930 Legislature in January. Special emphasis was placed upon the three proposed changes drafted by Mr. Untermyer and submitted to the B. M. T. for study at a conference on Tuesday.

While no statement was issued by any of those participating in yesterday's conference, it is understood that Mayor Walker voiced the belief that the text of the bill should be substantially the same as that of the 1929 draft unless it could be shown that without the proposed amendments the unification plan could not hope to succeed.

Mayor Walker discussed with Mr. Fullen and Mr. Delaney the resolution, which probably will be submitted to the Board of Estimate today, placing that body on record as favoring the Untermyer plan in principle and asking for legislation to make it effective. While it was expected that the resolution would come before the board this morning, there is a possibility that its introduction may be postponed until after the conferences with the B. M. T. have resulted in some definite understanding on the company's attitude toward the bill.

The Transit Commission announced yesterday that it had received from the Interborough a copy of the same complete list of certificate holders which was recently sent by President Hedley to Nathan L. Amster, chairman of the Manhattan stockholders' protective committee. It is understood that the company, in sending the commission the list, was influenced by Mr. Fullen's testimony before the joint legislative commission investigating the public service laws. Mr. Fullen told the commission that no public body had been able to get a list of the certificate holders.

With the list in its possession the Transit Commission is now in a position to carry out, in part at least, its avowed policy of trying to reach the "real owners" of the Interborough and to persuade them to cooperate in getting the directors to adopt a policy of cooperating with the city in unification proceedings. Whether direct action will be taken along such lines has not yet been decided. Possibly the commission will bide its time and deal later on with a protective committee of Interborough stockholders favorable to company participation in unification parleys. Mr. Amster will begin organization of such a committee within the next two weeks.

HIS INDICTMENT AN ERROR.

Manager of Clothing Firm Is Freed in Reported Theft.

Herman Buchalter, 46 years old, of 575 West End Avenue was exonerated on a larceny indictment on his appearance yesterday before Judge Koenig in General Sessions. He had been erroneously indicted, Assistant District Attorney Kane told the court, in connection with the alleged theft of $1,125 in canvas linings from Bashwitz Brothers, clothing manufacturers at 268 Seventh Avenue, by whom Mr. Buchalter had been employed as manager.

Shipping clerks had told him that the goods had been received from other firms, Mr. Buchalter told the prosecutor, at the time he mailed a check for them.

A short time before, Solomon Bashwitz, a retired partner in the firm, was found dead with a bullet wound in his head in his apartment in the Hotel Olcott in West Seventy-second Street. The police began an investigation when relatives of the dead man declared there was no motive for suicide, and added that the pistol found near the body did not belong to him.

Bates to Talk on Federal Prisons.

Sanford Bates, superintendent of United States prisons, is to be heard tonight at 10:30 o'clock over WABC's network in a talk concerning the plans of the Federal government for the care of thousands of inmates in penal institutions throughout the country. The title of the address is "A Protective Prison Program." It will be broadcast from Washington as one of the weekly programs of the National Radio Forum.

REDFIELD DISAVOWS CLASH OVER STELZLE

Declares He Quit Film Post in Church Council for Lack of Time.

William C. Redfield, former Secretary of Commerce, who resigned in October his post as chairman of the motion picture commission of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, declared last night that his action was in no way prompted by dissension in the commission because of reported activities of the Rev. Charles Stelzle, who was said to have acted in the dual capacity of publicity man for the council and for the Motion Picture Producers and Distributers of America, headed by Will H. Hays.

"I resigned simply, because I had too many other things which made demands upon my time," Mr. Redfield said. "I knew nothing about Mr. Stelzle's alleged activities. If my resignation had been due to any feeling that there was improper interference by the motion picture group or any other group with the legitimate functions of the commission I would have made that fact known at the time. There would be no point to resigning under such circumstances unless the circumstances themselves were pointed out by me."

Mr. Stelzle said last night that there was no basis in fact for the report that he had been instrumental in organizing the council's motion picture commission. Nor was it a fact, he declared, that the executive committee, at a recent meeting in Chicago, had voted to dispense with his services.

"I have never written a line for the newspapers for the Federal Council concerning its motion picture commission," he said.

Mr. Stelzle declared that he had no contract with the Hays motion picture group, but was employed on a week to week basis. He characterized as "absurd" any idea that he was retained to influence the motion picture commission's attitude toward the activities of the Hays organization.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Dec. 11 (AP).—A check of the bequests in the will of the late Senator Francis E. Warren disclosed an estimated valuation of $1,594,449 instead of about $8,000,000 first reported. A bequest of 7,500 shares of stock in the Standard Oil Company of Indiana left to the widow was read as 75,000 shares by a reporter for a local newspaper and was so given to The Associated Press, and a misunderstanding of the value of United States Rubber Company stock combined to cause the discrepancy.

LOSES $30,000, ENDS LIFE

Suffering for several years from stomach trouble, and having lost his life's savings of $30,000 in the stock market decline, Frederick Costa, 50 years old, of 430 Mott Avenue, the Bronx, committed suicide yesterday afternoon by jumping in front of a Jerome Avenue subway train at the 149th Street and Mott Avenue station in the Bronx. Police and I. R. T. emergency crews extricated the body.

Costa's wife said ill health had prevented him from working regularly for several years and he had invested his life's savings in the market to provide for himself and his family. Since losing the money he has been melancholy, she said. He left a young daughter.

DRYS DISPLACE COLVIN.

Prohibition Committee Elects W. F. Varney Party President.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Dec. 11 (AP).—A resolution demanding the resignation of D. Leigh Colvin, president of the National Prohibition party, was adopted by thirty members of the party's national committee at a meeting here today. William F. Varney of Rockville Centre, N. Y., was appointed to succeed him.

The resolution declared that Mr. Colvin was not in harmony with the policies of the Prohibition party and that he failed to support its Presidential candidate in the 1928 election, and worked for the success of the Republican party. Mr. Colvin was not present at the meeting.

TOOMBS SENTENCE UPHELD

Missouri Court Affirms Three-Year Term of Insurance Man.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Dec. 11 (AP).—The Missouri State Supreme Court today affirmed the three-year sentence in the State penitentiary and a $5,000 fine given Roy C. Toombs, former president of the International Life Insurance Company of St. Louis.

Toombs was charged with issuing stock in excess of the amount authorized by the charter of the company.

Declares 22 Athletes Ineligible in Agreeing to Demands of Conference.

WOULD REMAIN IN FOLD

Surrender Is Unexpected, as Formal Resignation From Group Was Anticipated.

ATHLETES' FUND IS ISSUE

Students Aided Come Under Ban—Hawkeyes Demand Right, However, to Name Own Coaches.

Special to The New York Times.

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Dec. 11.—The athletic board of the University of Iowa, after a session lasting from early afternoon until almost midnight tonight, decided by resolution that the university's proper sphere lies within and not without the Big Ten Conference.

And, as a demonstration that it means what it said, the board capitulated completely to demands made upon the university by the faculty committee of the Big Ten in Chicago last Saturday.

The Big Ten faculty in a two-day session had upheld a previous resolution severing athletic relations between the nine other institutions in the Western Intercollegiate Conference and the Hawkeyes. Iowa thus was virtually ousted from the Big Ten.

Action Most Unexpected.

The athletic board's action in surrendering to the demands of the Big Ten faculty committee came as a bombshell. Formal resignation from the Big Ten had been anticipated.

Iowa's complete surrender was marked by the board's attitude toward the so-called "Belting Loan Fund." This was excoriated by Professor James Paige of Minnesota, leader of the faculty fight on Iowa's readmittance. It was also the chief point of attack on Iowa made by Fielding Yost of Michigan in a meeting of the athletic directors.

Dean C. C. Williams, faculty representative of Iowa, and Edward Lauer, athletic director, defended the fund and refused to yield to Paige's demand that all athletes who had received loans from the fund be declared ineligible.

That was the rock over which the Iowa delegates and the Big Ten faculty members split.

Fund Called Violation.

The Big Ten called the fund a violation of Conference rules and Iowa's refusal to bar athletic recipients of loans proof that Iowa had not reformed.

Tonight the Iowa athletic board admitted that the Conference attitude was justified and thereupon declared twenty-two athletes ineligible. This was the biggest batch of athletes declared ineligible at Iowa for years.

The athletic board also voted to ask the Big Ten to send a committee to Iowa City shortly to determine whether or not Iowa should not reinstate these athletes.

The only point on which the Iowa board refused to bow to the Big Ten was on the matter of who should be on the Iowa athletic staff. The board refused to recognize the right of the Conference to dictate who should or should not coach at Iowa.

Among the twenty-two athletes, declared ineligible, the names of five were made known after tonight's meeting. They are Oran Pape, football star of Dubuque; Irving Nelson, football star of Omaha, Neb.; Dick Attiro, substitute football player and star basketball player of Quincy, Ill.; Steward Leaks, football substitute of Independence, Mo., and Mike Farrah, halfback, who tonight was elected co-captain of next year's Hawkeye eleven.

Text of Resolution.

The text of the resolution expressing Iowa's decision follows:

"Whereas, the board of control at the University of Iowa, believing that Iowa's proper field of competition lies within the conference, is of the opinion that it should continue membership and will conduct the administration of athletics in conformity with the principles established by the intercollegiate conference.

"The intercollegiate conference denies the Iowa petition in large measure because the Athletic Board at Iowa certified as eligible certain athletes who had borrowed money from a fund which was unethical in its inception. The board again affirms that its decision was based in good faith on the principle that it was not fair or just to the individual athlete to penalize him for the innocent participation in an irregularity of past athletic administration. Recognizing the superior authority of the conference to reverse the eligibility findings of any member institution, the board in control of athletics at Iowa accepts the decision of the conference and declares the athletes in question ineligible.

Invites Investigation.

"The board will request the conference to send a committee to Iowa City within the near future to review the situation for the purpose of ascertaining whether essential justice due these men may not warrant their reinstatement.

"Regarding questions which were raised at the conference meeting concerning the personnel of the staff and of the administrative organizations at the University of Iowa, the board in control of athletics cannot recognize the right of the intercollegiate conference nor of any other body except the regularly constituted authorities of the State of Iowa to interfere with such matters of sovereign jurisdiction."

No reason for the complete change of front was given by the members of the Athletic board. It was understood here that pressure was principally responsible.

Despite Iowa's surrender to the Big Ten faculty, its athletic teams cannot participate with other conference teams this Spring at least. The earliest hearing that the Big Ten can give the Iowans will be at its annual Spring meeting. Inasmuch as Iowa was neither suspended nor expelled from the conference, its delegates will attend the Spring meeting.

Loses in Its Opening Basketball Clash of the Season After Taking Early Lead.

HAINES IS HIGH SCORER

Leads Victors With Total of 15 Points—Tigers Trail at Half-Time by 18 to 12 Count.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 11.—Princeton lost its opening basketball game of the season to the Albright quintet, 46 to 16, tonight. The visitors tallied 28 points in the last half, while the Tigers were able to annex only four.

Karlip, Albright guard, opened the scoring by a long toss from the corner of the court. The Tigers retaliated and soon took a short-lived lead, 6 to 5, which was soon covered by four sucessive goals by Albright. The Orange and Black team was unable to regain the lead throughout the remainder of the game. The half ended, 18 to 12, in favor of the visitors.

At the opening of the second half the Tigers were unable to make any headway toward overcoming the fast floor work by Albright. Captain Ed Wittmer, who entered the game about the middle of the first half, played throughout the last period. Paul Carey, star Tiger floorman, was forced to retire during the second half because of four personal fouls.

Charlie Haines, forward, led the scoring for the visitors with fifteen points. Dave Neff and Abe Karlip tied for second honors with ten tallies each. Paul Carey led the Tiger attack with a total of six points.

Wins Easily From Clark Five—Nye and Ward High Scorers.

Special to The New York Times.

WORCESTER, Mass., Dec. 11.—Wesleyan had little trouble in defeating Clark in basketball tonight, 51 to 15. The opening few minutes promised a close game, with Clark holding the visitors at 5 to 4. Wesleyan's offense soon opened up and the outcome then was never in doubt. The half ended with the visitors leading, 28 to 4.

Clark put on a spurt at the opening of the second half, but it was short lived. Nye, centre, was high scorer man of the game with six baskets from the floor and Ward runner-up with four field goals and three from the foul line.

Brooklyn Quintet Scores Second Straight Victory—Schuckman Is High Scorer.

Leading all the way, the St. John's College of Brooklyn basketball team triumphed over the Cathedral College quintet of New York, 47 to 23, at Holy Spirit gymnasium last night. It was the second victory in as many games for St. John's and the second setback for Cathedral.

St. John's got off to a seven-point lead in the early minutes of the game, but Cathedral rallied and cut the St. John's advantage to four points at the end of the first quarter, the score being 13 to 9. At the end of the first half the winners led, 21 to 12, and at the conclusion of the third period were ahead, 36 to 15.

Al Schuckman, St. John's right guard, captured the high scoring honors, tossing in five field goals and two fouls for a total of 12 points. Right behind Schuckman was the St. John's centre, Marty Begovich, who registered four field goals and three fouls for 11 points. Charles Brennan and Nick Arlotta were the leaders of the Cathedral attack, tallying 8 and 6 points respectively.

COLUMBIA QUINTET TOPS ALUMNI, 51-35

Triumphs in Season's Debut Over Team Which Won College Title in 1926.

JONES LEADS OFFENSIVE

Scores 18 Points for Varsity, Which Is Never Headed After First Five Minutes.

The Columbia varsity basketball team made its season's bow last night, facing the Columbia Alumni five before a crowd of 500 at the Columbia gymnasium, and at the end of the struggle had an advantage of 51 to 35.

Against the varsity combination, the alumni team matched five men who composed the 1926 Columbia varsity, a team that romped off with the Intercollegiate championship that season. The present varsity lagged slightly behind this quintet of old stars in the first five minutes of play, then suddenly found itself and jumped to the front, not to be headed again all evening.

Dave Jones of the varsity distinguished himself by his steady and strong play and it was he who forced the issue against the former Columbia stars and at the conclusion of the struggle had run his personal score to eighteen points by six field goals and six fouls.

Ably assisting Jones were Gregory and Schoenfeld, each of whom waged a hard battle. Laub, Rothenfeld, Mannheim, Lorch and Madden of the alumni team, the five who were the mainstays of the 1926 championship quintet, waged a ceaseless attack while they were in the game, with the bulk of the attack from their side coming from Laub, Rothenfeld and Mannheim.

Rothenfeld opened the game with a field goal and added a foul a few seconds later while the varsity got only a single point on Jones's foul. The varsity seemed to be rushed off its feet but rallied, and Schoenfeld's field goal tied the score and Jones's foul put the varsity ahead, and from then on the undergraduates stayed in front.

Near the end of the first half, with the score 21 to 9, both teams sent in their reserves. Against the varsity seconds the alumni reserves made a slight gain, to end the half with the varsity leading by 24 to 12.

The alumni seconds started against the varsity first team in the second half and the varsity ran wild, pushing the count to 29-13, making 15 points to none for the alumni. Then the alumni first team went in and checked the varsity to some extent, but could not draw very close.

The varsity showed a strong though uneven attack with accurate shooting and a strong defense. The varsity reserves also showed strength.

Jamaica High School's hockey team, for four successive years holder of the Public Schools' Athletic League city championship, remained in the race for its fifth title, when it triumphed over the New Utrecht High School, 2 to 0, at the Brooklyn Ice Palace last night. In another league contest, Thomas Jefferson and Franklin K. Lane played to a scoreless tie.

By its victory, Jamaica still has an opportunity to qualify for the play-off series which will determine the championship. Jamaica is now in a tie for second place with Manual Training, each team having won five games and tied one. However, Jamaica has one defeat against it, to none for Manual Training.

Manual Training will play its final game in the regular playing season tomorrow night against the league leading Erasmus Hall sextet.

Should Erasmus Hall turn in a victory over Manual Training, Jamaica will then be deadlocked for second place with Manual Training and a play-off for this position will be necessitated. The winner of second place will meet Erasmus Hall in the championship series as Erasmus Hall has already clinched one of the play-off positions.

Action in the Jamaica-New Utrecht contest was fast, and brilliant saving by both goal tenders, Conners for New Utrecht and Anderson for Jamaica, kept both teams scoreless in the first period.

Shortly after the start of the second period, Bob Madden, Jamaica defense man, skated through the entire New Utrecht defense and netted the puck for the first tally.

Captain Eddie Kornfield, Jamaica centre, accounted for the final goal in 7:22, when he brought the disk down the length of the rink and, twelve yards away from the net, took a long shot, which passed Conners.

In the Thomas Jefferson-Franklin K. Lane engagement both teams battled through two periods without a score. The forward lines of both teams tried hard, but as in the feature game, the goalies prevailed.

Conquers Seton Hall Five, 28-24, Mortell's Foul Goal Deciding.

Two foul goals by Jack Mortell in the last thirty seconds of play enabled the St. Francis College quintet to defeat the Seton Hall five, 28 to 24, on the victor's floor last night. The visitors were ahead, 16 to 14, at half time.

Mortell led his team-mates in scoring with seven points. Near the close of the game Mortell suffered a cut on left eye in a close scrimmage and several stitches were required to close the wound, following the game.

YALE SEXTET BEATS BOSTON UNIVERSITY

Palmer With Three Goals Stars in 6-2 Victory as Hockey Season Opens.

NELSON GETS 1ST OF YEAR

Ell Attack Is Under Way at Start, Keeping Boston Sharply on the Defensive.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Dec. 11.—Yale tonight defeated Boston University in opening the college hockey season in the New Haven Arena before 1,200 spectators. The score was 6 to 2.

Yale's brilliant attack was headed by the veteran Win Palmer, who scored three goals. Captain Bob Wilson's defensive play featured the Yale team game.

Currier and Lombard, who scored for the visitors, displayed the best form for Boston University. Yale's faultless technique resulted in a game without an inflicted penalty. The visitors' play was almost equally clean, resulting in only three penalties.

Nelson Scores First Goal.

Frank Nelson and Win Palmer sent scoring shots into the Boston University netting midway of the period. Nelson caught the puck on a rebound in front of the visitors' cage and whizzed it past Grodburg for the first goal of the season.

Nine minutes later Palmer's top notch speed and versatile skating took him through the entire Boston University defense and his short poke past Grodburg gave Yale its second goal.

Yale's first string attacking trio kept Boston University on the defense throughout the period, and although the Yale shooting was appropriately inaccurate for an opening game, a dozen crashing drives reached the visiting goalies. Only three Boston University shots penetrated as far as Farrel, the Yale goal guardian. These were easily blocked. Yale played the period without a penalty and Boston University's only infraction was by substitute Barofsky.

Currier Shoots Into Yale Cage.

The visitors showed a flash of speed and team-play after Palmer and Bostwick had been blocked in opening the second period. A sharp elusive dash by Captain Lombard yielded a try for goal which Farrel kicked away. The puck was intercepted by Currier, who cracked it into the Yale cage.

Palmer's lightning shot into the visitors' cage, after taking Wilson's pass five minutes later, was spectacular. Wilson's crashing run from deep defense, followed by his pass to Winter, last year's freshman captain, gave Winter the chance for Yale's fourth goal and he made good.

Grodberg's head was injured in a collision with the cage, but he insisted upon continuing to play.

Lombard Drives Puck Home.

Within two minutes after the third period opened Captain Lombard of Boston University tempted Seiter, Yale's substitute goalie, from the cage and drove the puck past him. Three minutes later Palmer outgeneraled the Boston goalie similarly and scored with a side-shot. Substitute Schley's long shot caught Grodberg by surprise and gave Yale its sixth goal.

Yale threw its second and third teams upon the ice in the final ten minutes. Bergholtz was penalized for jostling with Muhlfeld of Yale.

LAFAYETTES DEFEATS DELAWARE FIVE, 30-23

Keeps Home Record Clear by Victory at Easton—Adams and Dimmerling Shine.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTON, Pa., Dec. 11.—Lafayette kept its home record clear tonight by defeating the University of Delaware five, 30 to 23.

The visitors trailed 14 to 6 at half time, scoring only two field goals, but opened up an attack in the second half which had the Maroon bewildered for a few minutes.

Le Carpentier, a substitute who went into the game in the closing minutes, starred for Delaware, whipping three twopointers through the cords and making good two free free shots.

Adams, Dimmerling and Lipets ware outstanding for Lafayette.

Plea by Landis for Peace in Robins' Camp Fails—Alexander Returns to Phillies

LANDIS PEACE PLEA TO ROBINS FAILS

Warring Factions Meet Commissioner, but Move for Conciliation Is Futile.

NO BAN ON BROADCASTING

Matter Left to Each National League Club to Determine—Joint Session of Two Circuits Today.

By JOHN DREBINGER.

Efforts, futile though given none the less whole-heartedly, to bring about a conciliation among the warring factions in the Brooklyn Baseball Club overshadowed most everything else that transpired in the baseball world yesterday as the National and American Leagues held the concluding sessions of their separate meetings in the Hotel Commodore.

The American League, of course, kept itself discreetly out of the matter, but the National League, it seems, took a very active part in it. Its activities began quite early in the day, when President John A. Heydler, actuated by purely altruistic and humanitarian motives, conceived the idea of conducting the four Brooklyn directors, Wilbert Robinson, Steve McKeever, Joseph Gilleaudeau and Frank York, into the presence of Commissioner Landis in the latter's suite in the Roosevelt Hotel. Mr. Heydler, it appears, had thought up what he considered a most excellent conciliatory plan and was confident of success.

Reports on what transpired in the good commissioner's room still are a bit vague, but it can be reported with authority that Mr. Heydler's well-laid plans were handsomely torn into shreds.

Half an hour after the session began Commissioner Landis emerged from his suite mopping his brow. He frankly admitted he had never seen anything quite like it.

Directors Emerge Singly.

Soon, however, he mustered enough courage to return, and some minutes later the four Robin directors came out in groups of one at a time. It is understood the commissioner on finally gaining an audience informed the Brooklyn delegation its fight was entirely too big for his suite and should be carried into the great outdoors.

And so the Brooklyn situation is exactly where it has been all these weeks. Uncle Robbie is still the president and manager of the Robins, backed solidly by Gilleaudeau, director representing that half of the club owned by the Ebbets estate, and opposed just as vigorously for re-election by McKeever, owner of the other half, and the latter's director, York.

Last out of the commissioner's room came Mr. Heydler, plainly fagged but still optimistic. On his way out of the hotel he was stopped by an alert newspaper photographer, who asked him if he would pose for a picture as the "great mediator of the Brooklyn situation."

"I will not," said Mr. Heydler rather wearily, "as I don't happen to be the mediator in the Brooklyn situation."

Heydler Late at Meeting.

Mr. Heydler's efforts in behalf of the Brooklyn club caused him to be half an hour late for the National League meeting in the Commodore, but the delay apparently caused no great inconvenience, as the league's magnates, so far as was announced, did nothing of any great moment.

They discussed radio broadcasting, but took no action. Two representatives of the National Association of Broadcasters appeared before the meeting and explained the benefits they believed baseball was deriving from the radio. Before they were through the magnates told them a few things, among these being the fact that they did not fancy the way some of the broadcasters portrayed the game to their hearers. Their chief objection was directed against alleged editorial comments by the broadcasters on umpires' decisions, which tended to incite the public mind against the arbiters.

But the broad question as to whether broadcasting of games should or should not be continued remained unanswered by the league, the decision of the meeting being that this was a matter that each club would have to determine for itself, an attitude similarly taken by the American League.

Lively Ball Discussed Again.

The so-called lively ball again came up for discussion, and it was decided that an attempt would be made to have the baseball manufacturers remove the gloss from the balls before they are delivered. During the last half of the last season the umpires performed this function, which brought about an appreciable decrease in the home-run-hitting output. But no other changes in the composition of the baseball in use today are being considered by the club owners.

Barney Dreyfuss of the Pirates, Charles A. Stoneham of the Giants and William F. Baker of the Phillies were appointed to serve on the constitution committee; Sam Breadon, Cardinals; William Veeck, Cubs, and John Heydler were named as the rules committee, and Judge Emil Fuchs of the Braves, Wilbert Robinson of the Robins and Sidney Weil of the Reds were chosen as the committee on radio and telegraph.

National League umpires, it was announced, will again officiate in the Spring training season, a return to the custom that was suspended last Spring.

If the National League seemingly did little at its final session yesterday, the American League, meeting in the same hotel, did even less. President E. S. Barnard, at the close of the meeting, stated that the owners of his league consumed four hours discussing matters of interest only to themselves, that he had nothing to announce and that no action was taken on anything that will come up in the joint meeting.

The last of the major league conclaves is set for this morning at 11 o'clock, when the sixteen club owners will sit in joint session before Commissioner Landis in the Biltmore.

Miss Catherwood Retires; Olympic High-Jump Star

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Dec. 11.—Miss Ethel Catherwood, who broke the world's high jump record for women in scoring one of Canada's two first places in the 1928 Olympic Games in Holland, today announced her retirement from athletic competition.

In clearing the bar at 5 feet 3 inches at the last Olympic Games, Miss Catherwood eclipsed her own previous world's record made at Regina, Sask., on Sept. 7, 1926. She is the third member of the Olympic championship women's track and field team to withdraw from competition since the Olympics.

ALEXANDER TRADED TO THE PHILLIES

Goes From Cards to the Club Where He Reached Peak of His Pitching Powers.

ATHLETICS GET SCHANG

Veteran Catcher Traded by Browns —McGraw, Pitcher, and Hale Involved in the Deals.

By ROSCOE McGOWEN.

Grover Cleveland Alexander, who has been one of the greatest of National League pitchers, is returning to the club where he attained the peak of his powers as a hurler. Yesterday the veteran righthander was traded, with Harry McCurdy, young catcher, to the Phillies for Outfielder Homer Peel and Pitcher Bob McGraw, it was announced by Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, and William F. Baker of the Philadelphia club. There was no cash consideration.

The prime motive of the Phillies in the transaction was the acquisition of a catcher to replace the late Walter Lerian, killed in an automobile accident late this Fall. Alexander, athletically aging and in ill health last season, gives little promise of being an effective and dependable hurler.

Although "Old Pete," as he was affectionally dubbed, turned in his most brilliant and sustained performances from 1911, when he came to the Phillies from Syracuse, to 1917, when he was traded to the Cubs, the high spot in his career was reached in a World Series game against the Yankees in 1926. His striking out Tony Lazzeri, slugging second baseman, at the tensest moment in that series, caused columns to be written about him.

Schang's Start Is Recalled.

Another trade completed yesterday brought another veteran back to the American League club in which his major league career began. Wally Schang, catcher, was traded by the St. Louis Browns to the Athletics for infielder Sammy Hale. Schang first came to the Athletics in the draft from Buffalo. He worked in the outfield and at third base as well as behind the bat in three of the five years he spent there before going to the Boston Red Sox in a trade along with Joe Bush and Amos Strunk. Three players and $60,000 came from the Boston club for Schang and his two mates.

Schang became a Yankee in 1921 in the deal that brought Waite Hoyt to the Ruthian forces and he remained a Yankee for five years when he went to the Browns, where he has been since.

George Burns, veteran outfielder and first baseman, who became a major leaguer in 1913 when he joined the Detroit club of the American League, and who spent most of the recent season on the Athletics' bench, was signed yesterday as manager of the Mission Club of the Pacific Coast League.

Other trades and deals were rumored around the league headquarters at the Commodore yesterday and the place was filled with ball players, mostly veterans, who are in a receptive mood.

Grimes Awaits Developments.

Burleigh Grimes, star pitcher of the Pirates, and also a former star for the Robins and Giants, said he was staying here "until I find out something," but refused to reveal his purpose. He has been reported as a candidate for Uncle Wilbert Robinson's managerial berth—not yet vacated—and admits frankly that he would like such a job.

Since Grimes's pitching record of last season makes it unnecessary for him to worry about his immediate pitching future and since he ordinarily does not desert his beloved Wisconsin woods for Winter baseball meetings, his presence here is more significant than that of any other player.

Jack Hendricks, former manager of the Cincinnati Reds, also was around headquarters and spent a part of his time conferring, or visiting, with Uncle Robbie.

The Pittsburgh Pirates kept their bargain counter open last night and announced the release of Claude Linton, one-time University of Wyoming all-round athletic star, to the Baltimore International League team. This transfer represents the last move of a deal put through by the Pirates in September which secured for them Al Bool, the Baltimore catcher.

Linton has been a Pittsburgh vassal since leaving college, spending farm-out seasons with Columbia, S. C., of the South Atlantic League, in 1927 and with Decatur, Ill., of the Three Eye League, in 1928. This year he was a member of the Pirate catching staff all season.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11.—After trailing at the end of the half, Pennsylvania rallied to defeat Gettysburg in the annual basketball game at the Palestra tonight, 38 to 22. Gettysburg led at the intermission, 11 to 9.

Midway in the first half, Hoke, the Gettysburg centre, and Big Jim Peterson of Penn were ruled out. Harold Sanders, sophomore centre, relieved Peterson and proved the star of the game with six field goals and three fouls out of four tries for a total of 15 points.

Al Brodbeck of Mount Vernon, N. Y., who took Ulrich's place at right forward late in the first period, came through with three field goals while Tom Magner contributed two.

Len Tanseer, captain of last year's undefeated freshman team, made his varsity debut and played a good game at guard as well as sinking a long field goal and tossing a pair of fouls. Gulian and Cramer, Gettysburg's flashy football ends, starred for their team.

In the preliminary game the Penn Athletic Club defeated the Penn junior varsity, 29 to 18, mainly through the efforts of Harvey Mathews, former Red and Blue star, who scored thirteen points.

WHITESIDE RESIGNS FROM SYRACUSE POST

Assistant Crew Coach Receives Release From Contract to Take Up Duties at Harvard.

Special to The New York Times.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Charles J. Whiteside, assistant coach of Syracuse University crews for the past two years, announced his resignation today. He will leave to accept an appointment to the crew coaching staff at Harvard University.

Whiteside has been prominently identified with rowing at Syracuse since 1915, when he captained a freshman crew which won the intercollegiate title. The following season he stroked the varsity at Poughkeepsie and once again Syracuse was returned winner. He finished his intercollegiate rowing career when he enlisted in the army. He returned after the war and upon completing his education at Syracuse, two years ago Coach Ten Eyck called him as his assistant to eventually take over the duties of head coach.

He has never rowed under any coach other than Ten Eyck and is well versed in the style which has gained many intercollegiate titles for Syracuse in the past. Whiteside was released from his contract by the athletic governing board to enable him to accept the advantageous offer tendered by the Crimson authorities.

BROWN NAMES FOGARTY.

Halfback Selected as Captain of Bruin Football Eleven.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 11 (AP).—W. Lincoln Fogarty, 21, of Flushing, L. I., was elected captain of Brown's 1930 football team at a meeting of twenty-two lettermen this afternoon. Fogarty, holder of the college javelin throw record, has been a regular halfback with the Bruins for two years.

A. B. Schweikert and Salvatore Di Iorio, two Providence boys, were elected captains of soccer and cross-country respectively at a meeting which followed that of the football squad.

Columbia Crew and Glendon Selected As Honor Guests by Veteran Athletes

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 11.—Columbia University's intercollegiate rowing championship crew and Coach Richard Glendon Jr. were selected today as guests of honor at the annual dinner of the Veteran Athletes' Association to be held on Feb. 1 at the Penn Athletic Club.

The Joly Championship Trophy, awarded anually to the national champion college football team probably will go to either the undefeated Notre Dame or Pittsburgh team, although the final selection was delayed until after the Pitt-Southern California game at Pasadena, Cal., on New Year's Day.

Dick Gentle, captain-elect of Penn, was designated as having made the most spectacular long-distance touchdown run of the past season.

Butler University's basketball team of Indianapolis was picked as the champion college team of the United States and will be honored as well as members of the Pennsylvania Eastern intercollegiate championship winners. Among others to be honored are: Oscar L. Richards of the New York Athletic Club, who in 1928 at the age of 75 won the St. Moritz ice-skating title; W. O. Hickok, former Yale football star and weight thrower; Phil King, Princeton's great football player of earlier days; Foxball Keene, sportsman and horseman; Tom Keene, former world champion quarter miler and present track coach at Syracuse; Steve Farrell of Michigan, sprint star of other days; Arthur Zimmerman, former world champion cyclist; Clark Hinkle, Bucknell's high-scoring football fullback, and Bobby Jones, national open golf champion.

Miss Eleanore Sears of Boston, former tennis star, and long-distance walker, is on the list of invited guests.

The following were elected to the board of directors to fill the two existing vacancies: Louis Little, former Penn football star, who recently transferred from Georgetown to Columbia University as head coach, and Joseph Lewecka, former Lafayette captain and back-field star.

Hanover Quintet Shows Power and Smooth Teamwork in 62-13 Victory.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Dec. 11.—Displaying smooth teamwork and scoring power, the Dartmouth basketball team opened its season against Vermont University tonight with a 62-13 victory, held to a 19-10 count in the first half, the Indians flashed an attack in the final period which the Vermonters were unable to stop. Dartmouth's three veterans, Cheney, Lewin and Schmidt, worked together with the two sophomores, Burch and Kramer, in mid-season form. The losers could not penetrate the Green defense in the second half.

McGee led the Dartmouth scorers with thirteen points, while Kramer and Lewin accounted for twelve and ten, respectively.

DARTMOUTH CUB FIVE WINS.

Defeats Kimball Union Academy, 57-30, in First Game.

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Dec. 11.—The Dartmouth yearling basketball team opened its season tonight by defeating the Kimball Union Academy five by 57-30. The untried freshman quintet flashed a brilliant offense in the second half which bewildered the schoolboy team. The score at half time was 23-17, with the yearlings ahead.

Hal Mackey, star end of the freshman football eleven last Fall, playing at centre for the Dartmouth Cubs, was the star of the game. Scoring eighteen points by nine field goals, he dominated the contest. Maxwell and Quinn also starred for Dartmouth. Hamilton and Lee played brilliantly for the losers.

MISS WARING GAINS FINAL AT PINEHURST

Defeats Mrs. Maxwell by 1 Up in Golf Tournament for Season Members.

WILL MEET MRS. CHAPMAN

Greenwich Player Wins Right to Oppose Defending Champion, Beating Mrs. French.

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 11.—Mrs. John D. Chapman of Greenwich, Conn., and Miss Helen Waring of New York will meet here tomorrow for the women's season members' title. Miss Waring, defending titleholder, today defeated Mrs. Harry V. Maxwell of Spring Lake by 1 up, while Mrs. Chapman, who won the Carolina tournament last week, defeated Mrs. Emmet French of Youngstown, wife of the professional star, by 6 and 5.

Miss Waring and Mrs. Maxwell staged a nip and tuck battle, with the New York girl going out in 42 after missing an eight-inch putt on the eighth to stand even with her opponent. The lead alternated, coming back with Mrs. Maxwell squaring the match on the seventeenth with a 6 when Miss Waring was short on her approach. The medalist's 4 on the par 5 eighteenth was good enough to win the hole and the match.

The cards:

Out—
Miss Waring	5	5	5	5	4	4	4	6	5	—43
Mrs. Maxwell	4	6	5	5	5	5	4	5	5	—43
In—
Miss Waring	4	3	5	5	5	4	4	7	5	—42—85
Mrs. Maxwell	5	3	6	4	5	5	5	6	5	—43—86

Mrs. Chapman was on her best game against Mrs. French, whose fine score of 46 out could do no better than set her 5 down at the turn. Mrs. Chapman going out in 43. Short approaches at the second, fourth and eighth cost Mrs. French each of the holes. Mrs. Chapman took three of the last four holes to win by 6 up and 5 to go.

COLD HALTS ARMY DRILL.

Football Squad Holds Conference With Coach Jones.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 11.—Football practice was quite out of season today because of intense cold and frozen ground. Army's grid squad, preparing for the Stanford game, instead of holding an outdoor practice, gathered in Captain Biff Jones's office, where a half-hour conference was held. Consideration was given to using the floor of the gymnasium, but Captain Jones vetoed the idea on two counts. From his standpoint it was impractical for use in football work, and besides would interfere with the practice work of the Army basketball team, which is preparing for its opening game on Jan. 8.

STANFORD DRILLS HARD.

Works on Sloppy Field in Preparation for the Army.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Cal., Dec. 11 (AP).—Stanford's football team, driving hard for the West Point game here Dec. 28, got its first taste of sloppy weather yesterday as Coach Pop Warner sent his charges through a 90-minute session on a rain-soaked gridiron.

Three members of the squad, Chang Artmas and Red Thompson, tackles, and Rudy Rintala, halfback, were ruled out for the weekend and Warner was faced with the problem of filling the left tackle position in the Cardinal line.

EUROPEAN RUNNERS INVITED BY A. A. U.

Bids Extended to England, Italy, France, Germany and Finland for Winter Meets Here.

ITALY PLANS TO SEND 3

Larva and Loukola, Olympic Champions, Get Invitations—Britain Unable to Send Athletes.

By ARTHUR J. DALEY.

Athletes from five European nations have been invited by the A. A. U. to run in New York this Winter, it was revealed yesterday by Daniel J. Ferris, national secretary-treasurer. The invitations were extended through the sports governing bodies of England, France, Finland, Germany and Italy to certain specified athletes and only England has officially replied to date, having declined.

The idea of having the A. A. U. issue the invitations instead of the clubs promoting meets was conceived by Ferris in order to eliminate the possibility of under-cover guarantees or of extra expense money. According to the Ferris plan, the A. A. U. will defray the costs, assign the runners to meets that have been held annually, give to smaller clubs the glamour and crowd-appealing power of having international attractions and avert chance of sharp practice.

Ferris proposed to divide the indoor season into three separate divisions, January meets, February meets and March games, and the invitations were so worded that the different nations were limited to a certain month. According to international track law, visiting athletes will be limited to a twenty-one-day stop-over in the country issuing the invitation. The British body could not see its way clear to send men for a specified month of the year and the offer was refused for that reason.

Tavernari, Italy, Invited.

Although the bid to Italy only bore the name of Ettore Tavernari, quarter-mile, half-mile and 1,000-yard ace, it is understood that Luigi Beccali and Luigi Facceili also will make the trip over. Ferris expressed surprise at this turn, but so capable are the two added entrants that they undoubtedly will be accepted.

Tavernari has done 400-meters in 0:48 6-10, the half in 1:52 2-10 and 1,000 yards in 2:23 4-10. When one considers that Lloyd Hahn's American indoor record for the last named distance is 2:28 4-10, some idea of the speed of the Italian is provided.

Facceili, sixth in the 400-meter hurdles race at the Olympic Games, has traveled 800 meters in 1:20 4-10, the identical record figures for the slightly longer 880 yards. Beccali is a distance runner, having done 1,500 meters (nearly a mile) in 3:58 4-10 and 2,000 meters in 5:33 8-10, an Italian record. Paavo Nurmi's indoor mark for this distance is 5:22 2-10, not very much faster than the best time of the Italian.

Invite Three From France.

From France the athletes invited include Jules Ladoumegue, second in the Olympic 1,500-meter race; Sera Martin, sixth in the Olympic 800 meter run, and a lesser known quarter-miler, Moulles. Harry Larva, the Olympic 1,500-meter champion, and Toivo Loukola, the Olympic steeplechase titleholder, comprise the Finnish delegation.

Germany has been asked to send Joachim Buchner, third in the Olympic 400-meter run and 0:48 6-10 man, Herman Engelhardt, third in the Olympic 800-meter test, E. Muller, Olympic 800-meter semi-finalist, and Harry Storz and Eldracher, sprinters.

Italians to Leave Next Month.

MILAN, Dec. 11 (AP).—Announcement that the American Amateur Athletic Union has invited three Italian athletes—Ettore Tavernari, Luigi Facceili and Luigi Beccali—to go to the United States to participate in indoor track meets has produced an enthusiastic reaction here. This is the first time a complete Italian team has been invited to America for the whole indoor sports season. The trio plans to leave the middle of January and return the end of March.

CARNEGIE PLAYS USED.

Southern California Tested on Tactics of Easterners.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 11 (AP).—Scrimmage was on the practice program for the University of Southern California football team today in preparation for its game with Carnegie Tech here Saturday.

The practice session included brushing up by the Trojans on the plays which the Pittsburgh team is expected to use in its contest with the California eleven.

Coach Howard Jones has emphasized to his squad that it must not consider the game merely as a warm-up for the East-West classic between the Trojans and the Panthers of Pittsburgh at the Pasadena Rose Bowl New Year's Day.

LAYDEN CONFIRMS OFFER.

Duquesne Mentor Asked to Succeed Little at Georgetown.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 11 (AP).—Elmer Layden, head football coach at Duquesne University, today confirmed reports that he had been offered the position of athletic director and head coach at Georgetown University.

Layden said he had been asked to take the position vacated by Coach Lou Little, who resigned to coach at Columbia University. The Duquesne mentor, former star fullback of the famed Four Horsemen of Notre Dame, signed a three-year contract last year to coach at Duquesne.

HIGHLAND MANOR WINS.

Girls' Basketball Team Triumphs Over Stevenson, 32 to 9.

The Highland Manor School and Junior College girls' basketball team of Tarrytown defeated the Robert Louis Stevenson School, 32 to 9, on the latter's court yesterday. Miss Doris Rosenberg and Miss Lenore Berlin both of New York City, and Miss Esther Goldman of Brookline, Mass., the captain, starred for the winners.

To Try to Annex Track Honors 5th Straight Time—Manual-Madison Fives Play Today.

Forty-seven schools will be represented in the twenty-first annual relay carnival of the Eastern District High School to be held in the Thirteenth Regiment Armory, Brooklyn, Saturday afternoon. A large number of Eastern District students will also compete in several closed events, which are slated to start at 1:30 P. M. An added feature will be a P. S. A. L. Brooklyn division basketball game between New Utrecht High and Eastern District High.

Seventeen city high schools and six private schools have entered the relay events open to high and prep schools. Outstanding among the competitors will be the New Utrecht High School team, which has dominated the indoor scholastic track world for more than five years and which has captured the team honors in the Eastern District meet for the past four seasons.

Last year the New Utrecht runners took three firsts and one second in five open events for a total of 18 points, thrice as many as the total credited to Thomas Jefferson High, which was second with six counters.

To Face Stiff Opposition.

New Utrecht is favored to win the honors again on Saturday, but will meet with plenty of stiff opposition from several schools. Among the other teams entered are James Madison, Thomas Jefferson, Boys' High, Commerce, George Washington, Manual Training, James Monroe, Erasmus Hall and Alexander Hamilton. A 1,200-yard novice relay, medley relay (660, 220, 440 and 880), a one-mile relay and 880-yard relay are included in the list of open events.

Thirteen junior high schools have entered the relays in their division. Those teams will compete in 90-pound 440-yard relay, 120-pound 440-yard relay and unlimited weight 880-yard relay.

Frederick Douglass Jr. High placed first in every one of the three junior high relays last year. Seven evening high schools will toe the mark in the 880-yard and one-mile relays for such schools.

Brooklyn Fives to Play.

In the feature scholastic basketball game listed for today, Manual Training and James Madison will clash in a Brooklyn division P. S. A. L. game in the latter's gymnasium.

Other schoolboy court contests today include Bishop Loughlin Memorial High at St. Francis Xavier High and Glen Cove High at Hempstead High.

The second game in the final round-robin series of the P. S. A. L. Junior High School basketball championship tournament will be played between the I. and I. Straus Junior High quintet, winner of the Brooklyn division, and the Frederick Douglass Junior High five, winner of the Upper Manhattan-Bronx sectional title, at Public School 99, Manhattan, Saturday at 10:20 A. M.

The first contest, played Tuesday, resulted in a 32-to-12 victory for Douglass over Forsythe Junior High School, winner of the Lower Manhattan division. The third and final game of the series will bring together the Forsythe and I. and I. Straus quintets at P. S. 99, Manhattan, on Saturday, Dec. 21, at 10:30 A. M.

Wenonah to Open Season.

Wenonah Military Academy of Wenonah, N. J., has three veterans and several reserves from last year as a nucleus for this season's basketball team, which will open its season against Perkiomen at Pennsburg, Pa., on Saturday. The letter winners from last year are Jere Bream, who captained the football team; Joe Oklewicz and Harry Nesbitt. The substitutes from the 1928-29 squad are Bill Hepburn, Mickey Shuman and Charles Peters.

Among the promising new candidates are Jim Reynolds, George Kutz, Roland Long, Rud Knepper, Red McCouch, Jim Mills, Chuck Westcott and Gus Probasting.

Port Chester High School's basketball squad is ready for the opening Westchester Interscholastic A. A. game of the season with New Rochelle at Port Chester tomorrow. Port Chester has an all-veteran team. The letter men from last year are Charles Baker, Sol Schechter and Sidney Millheiser, forwards; Leonard West, centre, and Rocco Pauline and Edmund Romano, guards.

Lawrenceville's basketball team will journey here on Saturday to furnish the opposition for Horace Mann's quintet in the latter's opening game Saturday. The Horace Mann swimmers will start their season at the same time against the Fieldston School mermen.

5TH SQUASH VICTORY FOR COLUMBIA CLUB

Strengthens Hold on Lead in Class A Play by Defeating Fraternity Club, 5-2.

The Columbia University Club strengthened its hold on first place in the Class A division of the Metropolitan Squash Tennis League by defeating the Fraternity Club team on the latter's court yesterday by the score of 5 to 2. The victory is the fifth scored to date by the Columbia players, who have yet to meet defeat this season.

The New York Athletic Club went into a tie for second place with the Crescent A. C. by scoring a clean sweep over the Harvard Club. Of the seven matches listed to take place on the Winged Foot courts the New York A. C. took six by actual play and won the seventh by default.

The Crescents turned back the Princeton Club on the former's courts in Brooklyn by the score of 5 to 2. Whitestone scored the only Princeton victory when he conquered R. G. Messer in a brisling encounter by 15—8, 8—15, 15—8.

Another clean sweep was made by the Yale Club, which defeated the Park Avenue Squash Club, 7 to 0, on the latter's courts:

ROCKETS TO PROPEL BOAT.

Pope Will Attempt to Set Outboard Record at Miami Today.

MIAMI, Fla., Dec. 11 (AP).—Malcolm Pope, Winter Haven, Fla., outboard motor boat racer, will attempt to set an outboard speed record here tomorrow with a boat powered with rockets.

Pope has been here for several days making preparations for an attempt to push his tiny craft through the waters of Bay Biscayne at a speed of 100 miles an hour. The trial will be made over a 1,000-foot course.

The boat is specially constructed for speed, and is equipped with thirty-three rockets which furnish the motion.

Pope has been a racer of outboard motor boats for several years and is the holder of a number of racing records.

With three members of the triumphant Lockett Trophy team in the line-up, including the national champion, the Harvard Club Class A squash racquets team won its third successive victory of the Metropolitan League season last night to go into a tie for first place with the University Club.

Playing on their own courts, the Crimson representatives made a clean sweep over the Nassau Country Club, but though the players from Glen Cove lost all five of the matches they made an excellent showing all down the line. Two of them took a game from members of the intercity team that went to Boston.

Pool Is Forced Hard.

J. Lawrence Pool 2d, the amateur champion, met Hunt T. Dickinson in the feature engagement and won in three successive games at 15—9, 15—9, 15—12. While Pool did not have to show his hand, nevertheless Dickinson gave a fine account of himself, particularly in the third game, in which Pool found it necessary to hit with all his blinding speed to prevent the play from going to a fourth chapter.

George Debevoise, who played at No. 3 on the Lockett Trophy team and won both of his matches, was sorely pressed all the way by Van H. Cartmell. Playing a steady game and using a hard, low wallop at opportune moments, Cartmell made a strong fight for the first two games and after losing them pulled out the third after it had been set extra points.

In the next chapter Debevoise, playing brilliantly, found it impossible to draw away from his opponent and they stayed on even terms to 12—all. A game of 5 was set and it was not until the score had gone to 4—all that the Harvard representative put over the vital shot to prevent the play going to a fifth chapter. The score was 15—12, 15—11, 14—18, 18—17.

Haskins Loses First Game.

Lathrop Haskins, playing at No. 2, dropped the opening game to Richard Peabody of Nassau before winning at 15—18, 15—6, 18—10, 15—8. The Harvard player's superior steadiness gave him the upper hand after the first chapter.

J. D. DuBois and Robert Grant Jr. were the other two winners. Du Bois vanquished John J. McCloy in three hard-fought games, while Grant yielded a game to E. L. Maxwell and came close to losing another.

DETROIT, Dec. 11.—Frank Taberski, the defending champion, scored his first victory in the world's pocket billiard championship tournament when he defeated Spencer Livsey of Los Angeles, 125 to 48, today, after twenty-four innings of play that at times scintillated with brilliant safety shots and at the very end was marked by the uncanny ability of the champion, who went out with an unfinished run of twenty-five.

This struggle was preceded by one in which Erwin Rudolph of Chicago maintained his amazing pace with which he began the tournament and took undisputed hold on the lead. Rudolph, who now has won two games and has yet to meet defeat, annexed his second victory by downing Joseph J. McCann of Jacksonville, Fla., 125 to 14, in five innings. The match was the shortest so far played in the tourney.

Rudolph, in sensational form, made some of the best shots so far executed by any of the contestants and climaxed his triumph with an unfinished run of 54. Rudolph already has gained the high run honors of the tourney with a cluster of 63 in his first game and his run of 54 is the second best made to date.

Won 2 Games in 15 Frames.

Rudolph's first victory was scored at the expense of Onofrio Lauri of Brooklyn. In that match Rudolph required only ten innings to beat his man so that he has taken both of his victories in a total of fifteen innings, which is less in the aggregate than any of the other victors have required to win a single contest.

McCann made the break shot. Then Rudolph followed with 4. He gathered 6 on his next effort and Rudolph followed with 49, missing on a difficult cut shot. McCann's next attempt added 8 to his score. Rudolph made 3 and played safe. McCann missed. Rudolph added 15 before playing a deliberate safety. McCann scratched then Rudolph ran out with 54. In his last run, Rudolph had such perfect control of the balls that he made 49 of the 54 points in the two end pockets at the head of the table. Referee Ferguson said it was the greatest exhibition of perfect control he ever saw in a run of over 50.

Taberski Trails at Start.

The Taberski-Livsey game was a defensive one for the first sixteen innings. Taberski trailed by 8 to 5 at the end of ten innings, then forged to the front by 21-11 in sixteen innings. At that point, however, Taberski seemed to gain command of his form and assuming an aggressive style of play ran 17 in the seventeenth inning.

After that he hit his stride rapidly and in the last eight innings totaled 104 points, performing with a mastery at times that reminded onlookers of his form when he won the title. The unfinished run of 25 with which Taberski brought the match to an end was a fitting touch to the contest.

Lauri conquered Marcel Camp of Detroit, 125 to 101, in tonight's contest which went nine innings. The Brooklyn player recorded a sensational high run of 70 in the fifth inning to come from behind. The string is the best of the tournament has developed thus far.

Camp rallied in the sixth frame with a cluster of 58, his best, which gave him a lead of 93 to 77 at that stage of the game. The 21-year-old Detroit youth, who is the youngest player in the championship, now has won and lost a game, his victory having been over Taberski on the opening night.

LAYTON IS VICTOR TWICE.

Takes Two More Blocks in 3-Cushion Match From Cochran.

Johnny Layton, world's three-cushion champion, took two more blocks from Welker Cochran, winning the fifth and sixth sessions of their twelve-block three-cushion billiard match at Dwyer's Broadway Academy yesterday. Layton now leads, 300 to 253.

In the afternoon Layton won, 50 to 31, in thirty-eight innings, having a high run of 8 to Cochran's 4. At night Layton triumphed, 50 to 46, in fifty innings, each clicking 5 in their best clusters.

WOODS LEADS WITH CUE.

Divides Day's Matches With Seaback, but Keeps Advantage.

Arthur Woods and Charles Seaback divided the fifth and sixth blocks of their week's pocket billiard match at the Strand Billiard Academy yesterday, Woods leads, 728 points to 570.

In the afternoon Seaback won, 125 to 117 in eleven innings, having a high run of 25. Woods's best effort was 27. At night Woods triumphed, 125 to 64, in eleven innings. His best cluster was 47 and Seaback's 12.

FIRST MISSION WINS BY LENGTH AND HALF

Carries Miss Watson's Colors to Triumph Over Taddywawa in New Orleans Feature.

KNIGHT PILOTS 2 VICTORS

Leading Jockey Scores With John T. D. and Essie to Raise Total for Year to 139.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 11.—Seven claiming races run over a track that was only good at Jefferson Park today made for none too thrilling a program, but the Thomas Kearney Purse saw the first victory at this meeting of Miss Blanche Watson's First Mission. The gelding was the favorite, so there was some consolation for the sorely tried form players, who have not been doing so well of late.

The race was a sprint of six furlongs and First Mission had a length and a half to spare at the end, with Taddywawa a fast-going second and Hypnotism third. Nine others trailed.

First Mission had three previous opportunities since coming here and failed, even though heavily backed each time. Perhaps the able hands of Lloyd Geving had something to do with this afternoon's score, as it was Geving who was in the pilot house at Latonia the last time the gelding came home in front.

First Mission got away like a flash and kept galloping in front. Moreover, Geving took Miss Watson's horse the overland route. This probably helped a lot, as the track was none too good along the rail.

Taddywawa Off Poorly.

First Mission was in hand at the finish but would have been forced to a speedier pace if Taddywawa had gotten off better. This filly broke slowly and then was caught to the outside of a press of horses which forced her to cover much extra ground. When clear in the stretch she closed with a rush but there was no chance of overtaking the leader. First Mission's price was as good as $12.20 for a $2 ticket even though he was the public choice, and his time was 1:14 3-5.

Jockey M. Knight, who is heading the list of the country's riders in number of winning races, added two more to his score by winning with John T. D. and Essie. The latter, victor in the fifth race, brought Knight's total to 139.

The filly is owned by Sundheimer and Pearsall and was the favorite, but Knight had to put her into a drive to make safe the victory.

Essie tired in the stretch and it took all of Knight's skill to keep her going until the finish, as Carin was coming on courageously at the end of the mile and seventy yards and would have been first in a few more strides. Essie swerved during the race and complaint was made that it was due to a low-flying airplane. However, no other horses seemed affected and the incident was not treated officially.

Essie was backed down to even money and was timed in 1:47.

Copper in Front.

John T. D. ran a mile and a furlong for his triumph and Knight had all his work to do in the first part of the race. At this time, Copper was leading and seemed able to keep going. But on the far turn Knight and John T. D. raced Copper down and went on to take the lead. Knight again took the middle of the track for the better footing. Vole gave chase, skimming the rail to save ground. Vole's bid was a strong one but he was three lengths to the rear at the finish and the winner was going easily.

John T. D.'s victory added another score by a woman owner, as he is owned by Mrs. R. S. Copeland. He was the second choice in the betting and paid $6.20. Vole was the favorite and might have won only for a sluggish start. As it was, he was very strong at the finish and, as the winner's time was only 1:56, Vole appeared to be running below his best form.

Sports of the Times

By ROBERT F. KELLEY.
(Pinch Hitting for John Kieran.)

IF, here and there in a few scattered and ill-informed districts, there still remains any doubt that football is the most important period of our national existence, there is baseball to prove it. Football is the only affair of local or national importance which baseball permits to interfere with it.

Baseball is the nearest approach to an all year around sport that we have. The congealed and frost-bitten spectators had hardly stumbled from the icy confines of the Yankee Stadium after the Army-Notre Dame game when the baseball people gathered for their quaint sitting and standing contests known as the annual meetings.

They are finishing up this branch of the sport this afternoon in the joint meeting of the American and National Leagues. And at this meeting they are expected to take an action significant in this set-to between the two pastimes.

Unless the magnates do the unexpected, which is not often the case with them, both leagues still agree to end their seasons earlier next year than they have in the past. It is regarded as certain that the league season will be over in September, an unheard of thing because it means that the world's series may be finished up before the first signs of snow.

Admission of Defeat.

This would appear to be something in the nature of an admission of defeat. During the closing weeks of the pennant races this year the games were held more or less in private, which is not the idea of the baseball magnates, or players, at all.

This was due in great measure to the fact that the country was beginning to fill with sound of feet kicking inflated leather ovals. This is a duller sound than the crack of bat against baseballs, but the action is not regarded as being duller to watch.

Thus baseball retreats from the only sport which has been able to fight back so far. Save for the latter part of October and the month of November, baseball is going merrily along with its Winter meetings, its Spring training trips and the longest season of play enjoyed by any of our major sports.

And football, having more than held its own, threatens to take the offensive. There are games now held as late as January, and there is Spring practice at most places. Most significant of all is this year's action of the Navy football people in holding post-season practice until Christmas.

The Annual Punishment.

Baseball people must be possessed of more than the average physique in order to get through these annual affairs which are called meetings. They consist of two endurance contests with the sternest sort of rules which are rigidly enforced. The managers, scouts and players, being, as a rule, younger men, go through their contests standing. The owners take theirs sitting down.

As a rule the owners start first, for they are playing with the benefit of seats. For a short while, just a day or so, before the start of the meeting some of the standees arrive, but they are only going through a bit of preliminary work and every so often break up this training with brief rests in chairs.

At a stated hour, usually late in the morning, the owners report at a room, disappear and lock the doors behind them. Late that evening the outsiders are summoned and allowed to enter.

A False Alarm.

When the doors are pried open the first comers are met with a thick, rolling cloud of blue smoke that makes instinctive a dash for the fire-alarm box. Stepping across the threshold, the forms of the magnates, still firmly seated, hands gripping the arms of their chairs, and pretty grimly silent by this time, are seen dimly through the fog of cigar smoke.

Since that morning these men have been sitting there, being told that something more than four million people watched their games during the past year; that so many hundred dozen baseballs were used; that a new umpire has been hired and other choice bits of spicy gossip.

It is one of the traditions of these games that both the private sitting of the magnates and the public standing of the others be conducted with conversation. But there is a difference in this part of the contests, also. The owners talk out loud and without stopping. The steady rumble of their voices comes through the closed doors all during the contest.

The men outside who do the standing talk only from the sides of their mouths and, if the chance presents itself, behind pillars and around corners. It is whispering, among the standees.

The Mysterious Conversations.

It is in the lobbies and corridors of the hotel in question that all the monster trades which are predicted before each meeting take place. Hence the mysterious conversations. Here stand the managers, the scouts and the assistants. Added starters are players out of jobs or dissatisfied with the ones they have now. These men, not so conversant with the traditions of the event, sometimes sit down.

The old Waldorf Hotel used to prevent this sort of accident by removing all the chairs and wall seats from the lobby the afternoon preceding the meetings. It was indignantly denied that this was a precautionary matter and explained that the practice was merely in keeping with the event and another of the deep-rooted traditions of the old hotel.

But Mack trucks are pushing their blunt noses through the gaping holes that used to be the Waldorf's walls, and the Commodore, with a new, modern lobby and balcony, is either unwilling or unable to find storage place for its seats and leaves them in place.

This has caused a lapse in good form here and there and, perhaps, marks a beginning of the end of the old sport. But the event is still tough enough to make Bob Shawkey, going through it for the first time as a manager, complain and sigh for the days when, as a mere pitcher, he could take it or leave it alone.

RANGERS TO OPPOSE CANADIENS TONIGHT

Montreal Sextet, Tied for Lead in Own Group With Ottawa, to Play at Garden.

Distinguished company from the upper strata of the professional hockey world will visit Madison Square Garden tonight, namely, the Montreal Canadiens, whose victory over Detroit Tuesday night tied them with Ottawa for first place in their half of the league. The Rangers form tonight's Garden garrison, and the hook-up of these two teams puts emphasis on high-speed skating as the outstanding prospective feature of the contest.

The Canadiens, otherwise called Flying Frenchmen and sometimes known as Red Devils from the flaming hue of their uniforms, have won their last two games, their Detroit victory featuring Howard Morenz as scorer of the two goals that were the margin of victory.

The French fliers were here before Thanksgiving Day to play the Americans. Tonight will be their first meeting of the season with the Rangers on any ice in the league.

The propable line-up:

Rangers.		Canadiens.

REMINDER ANNEXES PINEHURST FEATURE

Entry of B. Y. Barton of Akron Scores in Six-Furlong Flat Race of Special Meeting.

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 11.—Reminder, the bay gelding owned by B. Y. Barton of Akron, Ohio, triumphed today in the feature event of the Pinehurst Jockey Club's special meeting, a six-furlong flat race. Reminder was ridden by Jockey Paul Jones.

Exciting finishes marked all but one race which Claire Amour, chestnut filly owned by C. A. Davis of Columbus, Ohio, won by several lengths with Jockey Charles Davis up.

The Mid-December trot was won in straight heats by Gwendolyn Aubrey, owned by H. M. Dingley of Auburn, Me. The midwinter pace was almost within the grasp of Prodigal Silk, owned by W. H. Watt of East Orange, N. J., when the horse broke at the entrance to the stretch and finished second, yielding to Donna Volo Peter, owned by T. S. Wheeler of New York.

The equestrian events were unusually interesting. Teams of officers and enlisted men from the artillery at Fort Bragg competed against civilians in several of the events.

THE SUMMARIES.

Mid-December trot, one mile—Won by Gwendolyn Aubrey; Forest Girl, second; Marcella Scott, third. Also ran, Son Ringan. Time 2:18.

Midwinter pace, one mile—Won by Donna Volo Peter; Prodigal Silk, second; Bubbles, third. Also ran, Cherry Volo. Time 2:15.

Five furlong race—Won by Claire Amour; Shay Bark, second; Talatie, third. Also ran, Empresses. Time 1:06.

Six furlong race—Won by Reminder; Jane Seales, second; Joe Kriger, third. Also ran, Purple Sealskin, Baby Playmate, Cloe's Rodgester.

Corporation Head, at Senate Hearing, Gives Details of Proposed Communications Sale.

SAYS HE FIXED THE PRICE

Radio Corporation Would Receive 400,000 I. T. & T. Shares in Exchange for Its Property.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The proposed deal between the Radio Corporation of America and the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, together with the contracts entered into by the Radio Corporation of America at home and abroad and complete details of its policy and operation, will be among the points on which the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee will seek light tomorrow from David Sarnoff, vice president of the Radio Corporation.

Owen D. Young, who appeared before the committee Monday and yesterday, described the terms of the negotiation and the methods by which he arrived at the price fixed in the agreement.

The actual negotiations with the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, he explained, had been carried on by Mr. Sarnoff, executive vice president of the Radio Corporation of America (who consulted with him from time to time, both then being in Paris) with Colonel Sosthenes Behn of the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, who was in New York.

Mr. Young said Dean Jay of J. P. Morgan & Co. was associated with the transaction only by reason of the fact that the Morgan firm is the International Telephone and Telegraph Company's banker.

Mr. Young described the proposition as "preliminary understanding," which, he said, if "contemplates that when, as and if the laws of the United States permit, the International Telephone and Telegraph will buy the communications service of the Radio Corporation of America, both international and ship-to-shore, and pay the Radio Corporation therefor 400,000 shares of the stock of the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, meaning by that the shares as they existed in February of this year, when the understanding was made."

Purchase Suggested by Behn.

The suggestion for the proposed purchase of the communications division of the Radio Corporation of America by the International Telephone and Telegraph, Mr. Young said, had come in the first place from Colonel Behn, and the latter made successive offers before agreement was reached on a price.

"How was the price arrived at?" asked Senator Dill.

"Because I fixed it," said Mr. Young, "and I am very glad to have the opportunity of stating how it was done. The Radio Corporation of America, when it acquired the American Marconi Company, paid for it 2,000,000 shares of its $5 preferred stock and 2,000,000 shares of its common stock.

"The preferred stock had a total par value of $10,000,000, which was then 2,000,000 shares at $5 per share. It has been changed since to 200,000 shares at $50 par, so that it represents $10,000,000, and with the five points of call price, which is $1,000,000 more, makes $11,000,000. The market value of 2,000,000 shares of common stock of the Radio Corporation of America today are worth something like $86,000,000.

"The last I noticed it, it was $43 a share. The total of that is $97,000,000 of market value. Therefore, I had to get something having a market value equivalent to the market value of the shares of the Radio Corporation, which were outstanding on account of communications.

Suggests Three Tests.

"One million two hundred thousand shares of International Telephone and Telegraph Company stock would have a market value today of about $80 per share, which is $96,000,000.

"Suppose we test it by three different methods. One method of which I have spoken is the market value. That is one test.

"The second test is this: Four hundred thousand shares of International Telephone and Telegraph Company stock at a par value of $40,000,000, and Colonel Behn told me that the International Telephone and Telegraph Company stock had been paid in at par. Therefore, in order to be on an equality with the other shareholders of the International Telephone and Telegraph Company, we might be expected to put in something that was fairly the equivalent of $40,000,000 in the way of investment.

"The physical tangible property of the communications business of the Radio Corporation of America is somewhere around $25,000,000, I should say."

This, Mr. Young explained, did not include patents or an established business, but the tangible physical property, meaning stations, land, &c.

"But $10,000,000 of that," he said, "was put in between 1907 and 1914. Perhaps, say, on the average it would be the equivalent of a payment of $10,000,000 in 1910. That $10,000,000 had no returns whatever until 1923.

Would Double in 13 Years.

"If you accumulate a return on that even at 6 per cent and compound it, between 1910 and 1923 that sum would double, making it equivalent to $20,000,000. After 1919 the Radio Corporation actually put in $15,000,000 more. For three or four years that had no return. Then we began paying dividends on our preferred stock.

"Therefore, if you take the $20,000,000, which is the fair equivalent of the original investment with the accumulated return, and the $15,000,000 which the Radio Corporation put in—and there should be something for delayed return on the $15,000,000, but we might omit that—that makes $35,000,000.

"And then an allowance between that and $40,000,000, which is only $5,000,000, is the value, you might say, of patents, good-will and the like. Therefore I considered 400,000 shares as being the fair equivalent on an investment basis.

"Now let us take the third basis. The radio communications business to be transferred was earning about $1,500,000 net.

"The 200,000 shares of International Telephone and Telegraph stock to be delivered paid $6 per share or $1,200,000. Therefore I was turning over more earnings to Colonel Behn by $300,000 than his dividends would bring to me on the stock required.

"Then I made provisions that the other 200,000 shares should be delivered at the rate of 40,000 shares a year, with the idea that the growth of the radio business would at least meet the dividends on these instalments as delivered.

Says Trade Was Fair.

"So, tested by any one of three tests, or by all three tests—market values, investment against par value, earnings against dividends—it seemed to me the trade was fair; and that Colonel Behn finally accepted it as such is perhaps the best testimony—at least that it was not unreasonable.

"The 200,000 shares of International Telephone and Telegraph stock, if they were now delivered, bear a dividend of $6 per share. The dividend requirements were, therefore, $1,300,000, or I turn over to Colonel Behn by the sale $300,000 more in net returns than he pays me back in dividends."

Senator Dill wanted to know what Radio Corporation of America stock was worth at the time of the transfer, and Mr. Young replied that speculation on that point was quite fruitless.

"Nobody knows," he said, "what the radio communications business was worth in 1919. All that it represented was an opportunity."

"But," said Senator Dill, "the point is, you were getting profits that might come over a period of ten years in the form of increased value of this stock."

"I am selling a developed communications business," said Mr. Young, "and I am expecting to get for it something of equal market value."

Senator Dill, insisting that he wanted to "show what kind of a deal it is," said that the $40,000,000 worth of International Telephone and Telegraph stock is now worth about $100,000,000, the price at which it could be sold on the market, and argued that there was accordingly a profit of $60,000,000. Mr. Young said there was no profit of that kind.

Says Parallel Is Difficult.

"If you are going to deal with the investment in the Radio Corporation of America field," he explained, "you must deal comparatively with the investment in the International Telephone and Telegraph. You place yourself in the situation when you refer to market value in the International Telephone and Telegraph in connection with the investment in the Radio Corporation so that you have to talk about investments in the two companies to have the parallel; or you have to talk about market value in the two companies if you are going to have a parallel case.

"One of our great difficulties in these last few weeks comes about because people have not been relating market values to investment, and I do not propose to have that kind of confusion enter here."

"You are asking a monopoly from Congress to start with, or one company, which means the same thing," said Senator Brookhart. "What do you consider a fair return on the investment in that kind of corporation?"

Mr. Young replied that he had "supposed the generally accepted notion of a fair return on property used and useful in the public service was something like 8 per cent."

"Do you think" asked Senator Brookhart, "that the public utilities of the country are entitled to a rate of return greater than the average production of wealth by all the people and all the capital and all the increase of property values and everything?"

Must Have Ready Capital.

Mr. Young replied that "the return on public utilities must be such that you can readily get capital in competition with other concerns for public service use."

"You would have no objection, then," said Senator Brookhart, "to this Stock Exchange with its gambling institution, that bids money rates up as high as 20 per cent?"

"Oh, no," said Mr. Young. "Of course, I do not think that 20 per cent money has anything to do with investment money."

"Your theory then is," persisted Senator Brookhart, "that the Stock Exchange ought to be abolished as a speculative and gambling institution."

"Oh, no," replied Mr. Young, "I have said nothing about it. You have m[illegible] that statement."

"The Government of the United St[illegible]," said Senator Brookhart, "is able to get capital at about 5% per cent, or at any rate has always been able to get vast loans at a much lower rate of interest than the general public."

Mr. Young agreed that this was quite true, and Senator Brookhart said the reason was "because we permit institutions like the Stock Exchange to bid for and take a third of all the deposits in all the banks and the Federal Reserve System into the gambling game at high rates of interest."

Mr. Young said he did not see that connection.

Government Security Better.

"I should be very sorry," Mr. Young said, "to live in a country in which the credit of the government was not so superior to every other credit that it could get capital cheaper."

"And on this basic reason of your rate of return," Senator Brookhart said, "government ownership is the best thing for the people because it can get money cheaper than private parties, can it not?"

"I made some statements regarding that in connection with the development of water power on the St. Lawrence River," Mr. Young replied, "in which I said that in certain places, under certain conditions, especially on the development of great water power, there was a great advantage in the government doing it, because it could get money cheaper.

"I do not think that that necessarily applies to other public utilities, because I doubt whether the management in government hands of the utilities would be as serviceable to the public and as economical as it is in private hands, but that is a matter upon which there may be debate and a lot of different opinions."

"You mean by that statement," Senator Brookhart said, "that if the government would take over this service and put you at the head of it, you would not give the government as good service as you would a private profiteering company?"

"It means, Senator, nothing of that kind," Mr. Young replied. "It means, however, that while it is in private hands I can go to my directors and can make recommendations for research and can get appropriations promptly and expend them; while if I were at the head of a government owned company I would have to come to Congress and go before forty-eleven committees and in the end probably not get the money asked for or needed."

Denies Government Is Inefficient.

"You mean, then," asked Senator Brookhart, "that the government is inefficient, incapable of transacting its own business?"

"No, I do not mean that."

"You do not believe in the Government of the United States?"

"On the contrary, I believe unreservedly in the Government of the United States, but when it comes to the Government of the United States running a business enterprise I have grave doubts whether it can do it as well as a private concern."

Senator Brookhart said he agreed with Mr. Young "under present conditions," but contended that it was due to the fact that private interests "are undermining the efficiency of the government all the time and preaching the doctrine you are preaching now."

"If private interests were loyal to the government instead of being opposed to it," Senator Brookhart said, "it could conduct an efficient public utility business. Don't you think so yourself?"

"Well, Mr. Young replied, "I had hoped that private interests were quite loyal to the government."

Senator Brookhart asserted that money was being drawn away from local needs and uses "by the high bids down on the Stock Exchange."

Would Prevent Speculation.

"I certainly think the speculation on the Stock Exchange which drew capital from the business of this country, agriculture, the utilities, and everything else," Mr. Young said, "was a most unfortunate situation, because it did drain the credit of the country for a relatively short time into that maelstrom of speculation in New York, which was most objectionable. I wish it might have been prevented and I wish there were some way of preventing it in the future."

Mr. Young said that "the speculation and the speculative fever which happened to centre on the Stock Exchange was a most unfortunate thing for this country from the standpoint of legitimate business."

"If we will dispose of these institutions that are bidding interest rates up and put on a usury rate of 5 per cent, so that no money could be loaned for more than that rate, it would be easy to get money at 5 per cent, would it not?" Senator Brookhart asked.

Mr. Young protested that "the assumption is absolutely impossible for me to answer." If conditions in this country could be so readjusted that a 5 per cent rate could be the equivalent of the 8 per cent rate, he said, then he could agree to a 5 per cent rate.

Says Iowa Might Speculate.

Senator Kean commented:

"Speculation breaks out in other places just the same as on the stock market, we have had speculation in Florida, and next year might have it in Iowa."

Senator Brookhart said he was "against all of them, wherever they break out."

Senator Kean asked Mr. Young if it were not true that "the total loans of all the national banks and all the banks of the United States to the Stock Exchange for a period of a year, back in August or September, only exceeded by $200,000,000 the total loans that were made to brokers the year before, which is practically so small that it amounts to nothing."

"That is true," said Mr. Young. "As a matter of fact, I quite agree, Senator, that the speculation got out of hand because the regular banking authorities of the country no longer controlled credit, and credit was bootlegged outside of the responsible banking system, and that made speculation possible, which is regrettable."

"You are for enforcing the law against bootleggers all right, are you?" asked Senator Brookhart.

"I am," replied Mr. Young.

NEW PICK BARTH CONCERN.

Holding Corporation Formed for Associated Organizations.

Formation of the Pick Barth Holding Corporation under Delaware laws was announced yesterday. The company will have $16,000,000 capitalization and it will offer its senior 6 per cent notes in exchange for debentures and preferred stock of Albert Pick & Co. and the participating preferred stock of Albert Pick, Barth & Co., Inc. The exchange basis follows:

For each $100 of Albert Pick & Co. 6 per cent debentures, there is offered $100 of 6 per cent, three-year collateral trust notes, secured by the debentures surrendered in exchange.

For ach share of Albert Pick & Co. $100 par preferred stock there is offered $100 of 6 per cent five-year notes.

For each share of Albert Pick & Co. Barth & Co., Inc., participating preferred stock, without par value there is offered $30 of 6 per cent five-year notes.

The Manufacturers Trust Company is to act as depositary for the securities to be offered in exchange. Dec. 27 is the latest date for deposit.

HELP FOR GREAT NORTHERN

Charging Off $10,000,000 for Old Tunnel Swells Revenues.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (AP).—Operating revenues of the Great Northern Railway will show an increase of $2,040,000 for the year under a ruling today by the Interstate Commerce Commission that permitted the road to charge off an abandoned tunnel in the Cascades, valued at about $10,000,000, to profit and loss instead of operating cost.

Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern, said that in consequence the average earnings of the road for this year were expected to be approximately the same as those last year.

While charging the cost of the abandoned tunnel to operating cost, $170,000 has been subtracted monthly from the earnings of the road and would have to be subtracted for five years to wipe out the cost of the abandonment. The abandoned tunnel was supplanted by the new Cascade Mountains tunnel, the longest in the world, completed last year.

BANK LAW INQUIRY CLOSING.

Legislative Committee Will Hold Final Hearing Tomorrow.

The joint legislative committee which has been examining the State banking laws with a view to submitting recommendations to the next session of the Legislature for remedial legislation will hold a final public hearing tomorrow morning at the Bar Association Building to hear the suggestions of any person who have not been called as a witness.

One phase of the investigation has to do with the recent pronounced tendency toward investment trusts. The failure of the City Trust Company and the Clarke Brothers' banking firm, also, according to announcement made yesterday, has led to rather extensive consideration at legislation designed to prevent future bank insolvencies. It is expected that the recommendations of this committee which has held many public hearings both in this city and upState will be among the most important to come before the 1930 Legislature.

Miss Kitchener Shows Medals.

Miss Madge Kitchener, daughter of the late Walter Kitchener, at one time Governor of Bermuda, and niece of the late Lord Kitchener, is exhibiting a collection of her medals in bronze at the American Art Association-Anderson Galleries, Inc. Miss Kitchener, a pupil of Charles W. Hawthorne, served during the World War as a nurse and afterward turned to sculpture. Florence Waterbury, exhibiting with Miss Kitchener, is showing her decorative screens.

AVOID SPECULATION, GREEN TELLS LABOR

Federation Head Advises Wage-Earners to Exercise Care in Investing Savings.

OUTLINES SAFETY FACTORS

In Radio Talk He Says Workers Should Buy Only Securities of Assured Strength.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—A note of caution to the wage-earners regarding the investment of earnings and savings was sounded tonight by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, in a radio speech over the network of the National Broadcasting Company. Many wage earners, he said, had become investors in stocks and bonds.

"For many of these investment was something new, an experience for which they had not been trained," said Mr. Green. "It is, therefore, natural to hear of persons who have lost their savings in unwise speculation. Through lack of a proper understanding of finance and financial investment they were not in a position to discriminate between sound and unsound investments and between sound and unsound values.

"It is most fitting and apropriate that very substantial and serious consideration be given to the investment of wage-earners' savings. The recent experience through which the nation passed attracts our attention to this fact. Many millions of people lost heavily in the recent decline in stock market quotations.

Stresses Safety Factors.

"The working people can ill afford to engage in speculation because they cannot experience loss without imposing injury and sacrifice. Wage earners must of necessity invest only in sound, substantial securities. Prudence, safety and wisdom require that their funds should be invested only in such securities as may be guaranteed and in which there is no question of their value or their safety.

"It is not within my province to attempt to give expert advice on how to choose investments. I would not undertake to do so. However, there are a few common-sense rules which all can remember and which are worth emphasizing to those who are inclined to invest their earnings and their savings.

"First of all, I would advise against speculation or gambling. Think first of the safety of your investment. Be convinced and certain that you are really investing. In choosing a really safe investment take into account its earnings and its safety. Safety and sudden wealth do not go together.

"Before you make an investment satisfy yourself that you are dealing with a strictly reliable firm, one that has established itself in business and has a record for honesty and for the sale of high-grade investments.

Calls for Careful Study.

"Just a closing word of further advice. Be convinced beyond doubt that any investment you decide upon it suitable to your needs. Be sure it is safe. Always keep in mind that you may need your savings and your money at a moment's notice or at some definite time. This calls for consideration whether the investment you are about to make has a good market or that it will come due when your money will be needed.

"The question of a fair rate of return with unbroken regularity should be considered and when there is some doubt in your mind regarding your judgment and opinion, consult with your friends and particularly with a financial institution in which you may have confidence and faith. Proceed carefully, act cautiously. Do not speculate, but satisfy yourself that any investment which you may make of your savings and earnings is sound and secure."

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Again Decline, After Early Irregularity—Bonds Move Uncertainly, Money Unchanged.

Yesterday's stock market pretty much duplicated that of the day before; opening uncertainly, with some tentative advances, then giving way again in the later hours. The day's net losses varied widely. Most of them ranged around 2 to 4 points, but there were also declines of 7 and 8 points, which occurred in some of the high-grade shares which advanced most rapidly last week.

Foreign exchange rates continued strong, and a shipment of $1,300,000 gold to Sweden was announced. Direct gold outflow from New York to such countries as Switzerland and Sweden is not usual; neither took gold in this market during the large exports of 1927 and 1928, and even in the very heavy shipments of 1919 Switzerland got none directly and Sweden only $8,000,000. But the exchange market is feeling now the effects of the back-rush to all European markets of the capital for which speculative Wall Street was bidding so madly, only a few months ago. It has been a latter-day repetition of the experience of 1901, when Wall Street was priding itself on its new position as "world creditor," only to find, after the Stock Exchange crash of May, that our speculators had been dragging away capital even from the poorer markets of Northern and Central Europe.

There was no change in money rates, but much attention was given to the bids for New York City's 4½ per cent $65,000,000 loan. The award indicated the easing-off of money and the increasing favor in which high-grade bonds now stand, but the testimony was not as emphatic as the oversubscription to the United States Treasury 3½ per cents. When compared with previous long-term issues of the kind, yesterday's city offering brought a less favorable net interest charge than either of the offerings of 1928; but it is far below the cost of the four-year $52,000,000 Rapid Transit loan placed by the city last May. The general bond market still seemed to show something of hesitation yesterday; reflecting perhaps the fact that, contrary to the very common assertion, recent bond prices have not been low except in comparison with the high prices bid in 1927.

In the midweek reports of trade, attention was somewhat arrested yesterday by the freight car loadings. The report covered Thanksgiving week; therefore the decrease in loadings as compared with other recent weeks meant little. But comparison with previous years, in all of which the holiday occurred in the same week, was striking. There was a decrease of more than 62,000 cars from 1928 and 1927, and of more than 86,000 from 1926 and 1925; the week's loadings being in fact smaller than in the corresponding week of any year but one since 1919. For November as a whole the decrease from last year was 5 per cent, and the important aspect of the change was the fact that it occurred mostly in miscellaneous freight and general merchandise—whose movement has been apt to measure the actual course of trade. The returns of December traffic will now take on added interest. Ever since the war the larger variations of the car-loading returns have correctly reflected important variations in the state of trade.

Reports on the steel trade's situation are more cheerful; especially in the inference, drawn from current orders, that consumers have not been frightened away by the Wall Street break. "Nowhere are there signs," The Iron Age writes, "of a general paralysis of trade such as developed after other panics." It is admitted that the improvement has been less in actual business done than in sentiment. Prediction in some important districts has fallen to 40 per cent of capacity, and the Chicago and Pittsburgh ratio is unchanged at 65. But general feeling in the trade is undoubtedly relief from apprehension.

MILWAUKEE'S EARNINGS OFF

November and Eleven Months of Year Likely to Show Decreases.

The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific Railroad estimates that its gross revenues in November were about $12,922,000, a decrease of $766,000 from November, 1928. October net operating income was about $1,780,000, a decrease of $682,000.

For the eleven months net operating income was about $24,800,000, or $2,100,000 under that of the same period last year. Net income before interest charges was about $27,400,000, a decrease of around $800,000 from the same period last year.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

Heaviness in some of the leading industrial issues induced rather aggressive selling in the late dealings on the Stock Exchange yesterday. Price movements were highly irregular in the morning and at mid-day. The final quotations disclosed many sharp losses, but also a considerable number of advances. United States Steel common seemed to have been singled out for attack in the afternoon. Other stocks that yielded to pressure were Radio, General Electric, Fox Film, Western Union, Westinghouse Electric and Simmons. Professional selling figured importantly in the day's operations. This was indicated by occasional vigorous drives against vulnerable spots. The market had fair support in the afternoon, but not enough to halt the decline. Transactions exceeded 3,800,000 shares.

Preference for Low Yields.

A curious preference on the part of many investors for low-yield stocks has been reflected in recent market activity, bankers pointed out yesterday. It struck them as extraordinary that heavy accumulation has been going on in certain issues yielding 5 or 6 per cent, while there has been comparatively little demand for stocks that yield 8, 9 and 10 per cent. The explanation may be, brokers said, that the high-yield stocks advanced further than the low-yield issues and then did not recede so far in the recent reaction. Furthermore, it was pointed out, many of the low-yield stocks may have more in the way of prospects to be discounted than was apparent some time ago.

***

Window Dressing.

In anticipation of issuing year-end statements, and with a view to preparing the ground for the January reinvestment funds, Wall Street is absorbed at the moment in the annual occupation known as "window dressing," according to market letters of several brokers. Window dressing, the letters point out, not only entails steady or advancing market quotations in order to inspire confidence in the investment situation, but it necessitates readjustments in capital structure in several instances. In this category fall the reorganizations of several investment trusts which suffered heavy losses in the market's decline, the brokers say.

***

Christmas Dividends.

The procession of extra and increased dividends has continued with unabating force this week, but has not had the effect of stimulating interest in the stocks of companies which took the exceptional dividend action. The recent selling in leading issues has been described as pre-Christmas profit-taking by fortunate purchasers of stocks at their recent low levels. Because of higher yields available through the dividend actions taken in the last month, however, there are many worthwhile purchases available, and some observers are urging the purchase of such stocks as Christmas gifts.

***

Brokers' Loans Figures Tonight.

After seven successive declines in the total of brokers' loans, Wall Street is prepared for an advance in the figures to be given out this afternoon. In the opinion of some close students of the subject, however, another small drop is likely. This belief is based on the fact that recent buying in the stock market has been largely for cash, while such liquidation as has gone on has been for accounts which with difficulty were carried through the break. In addition, it is pointed out, dealers have disposed of considerable quantities of bonds which lately cluttered up their shelves and new issues have been small.

***

British War Debt Payment.

A payment will be due on Dec. 16 on the British war debt to this country and will be paid, as usual, in United States bonds. By picking up the securities in recent months when the high money rates in this market resulted in low prices for bonds of this class the British Government has effected a substantial saving, since the bonds are accepted at par. Incidentally the removal of this block of government obligations from the market, combined with the fact that only $325,000,000 in treasury certificates is being offered to replace more than $700,000,000 maturing, will result in something of a shortage in this class of investment, bankers have remarked.

***

Bidding for the Treasury Bills.

The initial offering of non-interest bearing treasury bills which run for 90 days, which will be allotted tomorrow afternoon, will be substantially oversubscribed, according to views expressed yesterday in banking circles. Banks, corporations and others are expected to bid for just such amounts as they require rather than obtain bills for resale. At all events, the list of bids submitted will provide an interesting sidelight on the views of bankers and corporation heads on the present money situation. Once the ice has been broken with an issue of 90-day non-interest-bearing treasury bills it is conceivable that bills of shorter maturities may follow.

***

More Construction.

Approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the west side improvement project by the New York Central was hailed in railroad circles yesterday as a constructive development. Since the New York Central is prepared to begin work on the project immediately, there will be a substantial addition to the building program urged by President Hoover on the railroads.

***

Gold Shipped to Sweden.

According to an unofficial report of the movements of gold during the past week, published in Wall Street yesterday, the first shipment of the metal to Sweden to take place this year went out in the period. The Swedish krona has been close to the gold point for several days and yesterday touched a new high at $0.2701 for cables. Foreign exchange experts calculate that gold can profitably be sent to Sweden at a price of $0.27. The amount reported shipped last week to Sweden was $1,300,000.

MONEY.

Wednesday, Dec. 11, 1929.

Rates and conditions in the money market remained much the same as on Tuesday, with business continuing along small lines. On the Stock Exchange 4½ per cent ruled, but during the forenoon street funds in odd lots loaned at 4. Time money was dull, only a fair amount passing at 6, the banks' offering figure. Commercial paper and acceptances were unchanged.

The Detroit Edison Company

General and Refunding Mortgage Gold Bonds, Series A
5% due 1949

Dated October 1, 1924 — Due October 1, 1949

Interest payable April 1 and October 1, in New York City. Callable at 107½ and interest on or before October 1, 1934, at 105 and interest for the next five years, the premium thereafter reducing at intervals to ½% for the last two years. Coupon Bonds in denominations of $1000 and $500 registerable as to principal. Coupon Bonds in denomination of $1000 and fully registered bonds interchangeable.

BANKERS TRUST COMPANY, NEW YORK, Trustee

Previous bonds of this series have been listed on the New York Stock Exchange and application will be made to list these bonds.

The Detroit Edison Company does the entire commercial electric lighting and power business in the City of Detroit, the fourth largest city in the United States, and in an extensive adjacent territory in the State of Michigan, serving a total population conservatively estimated at 2,190,000. The Company also conducts a steam heating business in the central area of the City of Detroit, and a gas business in four cities and seven villages.

The General and Refunding Mortgage Bonds are now secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a direct mortgage on the entire fixed property and franchises of the Company, and by the deposit of $12,500,000 First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds. Upon completion of this financing, they will be further secured by the deposit of $13,516,000 additional First and Refunding Mortgage Bonds. Additional underlying bonds may not be issued unless they are deposited as further security for the General and Refunding Mortgage Bonds. The indenture provides for the issue of additional bonds and also provides for modification of the indenture and of the rights of the bondholders in certain respects, with the assent of the Company and of the holders of not less than 85% of the outstanding bonds.

EARNINGS—Year Ended October 31, 1929
(Consolidated)

Gross Earnings	$56,431,624
Operating Expenses, Taxes and Retirement Reserve (Depreciation)	37,224,890
Net Earnings	$19,206,734
Annual Interest on Mortgage Bonds (including this issue)	6,083,190
Balance	$13,123,544

ABOVE NET EARNINGS 3.13 TIMES ANNUAL INTEREST ON MORTGAGE BONDS

On the basis of the valuation made by the engineering experts of the Michigan Railroad Commission as of June 30, 1915, on the then current prices, with the addition of net actual construction expenditures from that date to October 31, 1929, the value of the property of the Company on the latter date, excluding current assets and materials and supplies on hand, was about 3.2 times the principal amount of all the mortgage bonds now outstanding with the public, including this issue.

WE RECOMMEND THESE BONDS FOR INVESTMENT

Price 100 and Interest, Yielding 5%

Bonds are offered subject to the authorization of the Michigan Public Utilities Commission and the approval of counsel, for delivery when, as and if issued and received by us. It is expected that temporary bonds or interim receipts will be ready for delivery on or about January 6, 1930.

LISTING BARES GAINS IN TRUST'S STOCKS

Continental Shares, Inc., Shows Rise in Holdings of $7,644,490 Despite Market Slump.

FAVORS BASIC INDUSTRIES

Largest Block is in Cliffs Corporation, Owner of the Otis-Eaton-Mather Steel Properties.

Common stock of Continental Shares, Inc., was admitted yesterday to listing on the New York Stock Exchange, joining the few stocks of investment companies that have been approved by the Exchange.

The company's application shows that the market value of securities which it owned on Nov. 30 was $130,000,303, against a cost of $122,355,813, or an appreciation of $7,644,490, despite the sharp decline in stock values early in November.

While the company places some of its funds in stocks purely for investment, its chief purpose is stated to be to acquire substantial holdings, either alone or with affiliated interests, in prominent companies in such basic industries as steel, rubber, coal, paint and public utilities. Its largest holding on Nov. 30 consisted of 245,142 shares of common stock of the Cliffs Corporation, formed early this year as a holding company for the Otis-Eaton-Mather steel properties.

The company has large holdings also in the rubber, paint and public utility companies controlled by Cyrus S. Eaton of Cleveland and his associates. Among the larger holdings are 250,000 shares of Donner Steel, 134,351 of Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company and 107,800 of Firestone Tire and Rubber stock. It owns, in addition, 277 shares of Goodyear Shares, Inc. The latter has 1,000 outstanding shares and owns 285,105 shares of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company, worth $22,808,400 on Nov. 30.

Holdings of Cliffs Corporation.

The Cliffs Corporation has 795,414 outstanding shares and owns 99,860 shares of Republic Iron and Steel, 99,860 of Inland Steel, 125,821 of Youngstown Sheet and Tube, 109,837 of Central Alloy Steel, 29,957 of Wheeling Steel and 397,736 of the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron Company. These holdings, with those directly held by Continental Shares and by Mr. Eaton and his associates, together with the Donner Steel holdings, are regarded as the nucleus for a projected merger of Middle Western independent steel companies.

Total income of Continental Shares in the ten months ended Oct. 31, 1929, was $5,441,122, including $2,634,183 profit on sales of securities and the balance from dividends and interest received. Net profit, after Federal taxes and charges, was $3,626,198. Surplus, after dividends, was $1,854,949 on Oct. 31, 1929, against $1,152,201 on Dec. 31, 1928.

The following securities owned by the corporation on Nov. 30 were made public for the first time in the company's application:

FEDERAL LIGHT HALTS PLAN

Board Defers Convertible Flotation Owing to Market Conditions.

The Federal Light and Traction Company announced yesterday that since the last directors' meeting a substantial change had occurred in market conditions, and that the board had decided not to submit to stockholders at this time any proposal for the issuance of securities convertible into common stock.

A special meeting of stockholders, held yesterday, had been called to consider the plan which was withdrawn. E. N. Sanderson, president, told the stockholders that gross earnings this year would be about $8,500,000, or around $4 a share on the common stock.

Figures 60,000,000 Shares Taken Off Market in 5 Weeks

During the five weeks ended on Dec. 4 approximately 60,000,000 shares of stock were paid for outright and apparently taken out of the stock markets of the country, according to an analysis by Hemmerschlag, Borg & Co.

From Oct. 30 to Dec. 4, the survery shows, brokers' loans decreased $2,126,000,000, while the average price of 687 active stocks on the New York Stock Exchange advanced from $46.09 to $48.13 a share, indicating that continued margin liquidation was offset by cash purchases. On the basis of an average remaining equity of 25 per cent for the liquidated margin accounts, the reduction of $2,126,000,000 in brokers' loans represented the sale of securities with a value of $2,800,000,000 by margin traders, it is concluded. Since the average price of the 687 stocks was $46.81, the number of shares sold by margin traders to investors is estimated at 60,000,000.

TRUST COMPANIES DROP PLAN TO UNITE

Officials of Continental and Fidelity Unable to Agree, They Announce.

MOVE DEBATED A MONTH

Third Instance Here This Year of Proposed Union of Banks Failing to Be Approved.

Merger of the Continental Bank and Trust Company and the Fidelity Trust Company, which was to have resulted in an institution having total resources of more than $140,000,000, has been called off, Frederick H. Hornby, president of the Continental and James G. Blaine, president of Fidelity, issued a statement last night declaring that negotiations for the consolidation had been discontinued because of inability to agree on matters of policy.

Failure of this merger made the third instance this year in which negotiations to join two New York City banks had reached an advanced stage only to be called off. The first case was that of the Bank of America, National Association, and the Chatham Phenix National Bank and Trust Company, plans for a merger of which were abandoned because the directors could not agree on terms. The second was that of the merger of the National City Bank and the Corn Exchange Bank Trust Company, which failed of ratification by the National City's stockholders because the decline in price of the shares of the two banks had made it inevitable that cash would have to be paid for all Corn Exchange shares.

The Continental Bank and Trust Company recently attracted notice by an expansion program that included the subscription of additional capital by several members of Stock Exchange and Curb firms. The bank does a "Street" loan business largely and is known as the "brokers' bank."

Formal announcement of the merger plans was made on Oct. 9, when directors of both banks announced that they had approved the plan. No terms were announced and the officials refused to comment on reports that an exchange of one and one-third shares of Continenetal for one share of Fidelity would be the basis.

On the date of the announcement Continenetal shares were quoted at 60¾ bid, 61¾ asked; while stock of Fidelity was quoted at 76 bid, 79 asked. While quotations of the stock of both banks fell in recent weeks, the relative price levels did not undergo much change.

According to their most recent statements, the two banks compared as follows: Continental capital $6,000,000, surplus and undivided profits $11,275,405, resources $77,500,731; Fidelity capital $4,000,000, surplus and undivided profits $4,007,668, resources $65,522,648.

COMMODITY FIELD AIM OF INVESTMENT TRUST

Henderson Tells of Innovation Decided on by the New York & Republic Corporation.

The New York and Republic Corporation, an investment trust of which F. R. Henderson is president, will devote part of its capital to investment in concerns connected with commodities, it was announced yesterday. The company is said to be the first to interest itself in this field. Mr. Henderson is president of the Rubber Exchange of New York.

"While our corporation will invest in stocks and securities and conduct kindred financial operations, we have definite plans for further diversification of investments," Mr. Henderson said. "We purpose to invest part of our capital in carefully selected businesses associated with imported raw materials. This type of business has long been operated through the employment of private capital only, and many attractive opportunities for public investment are being overlooked.

"The price level of virtually all import raw materials is extremely low at this time, and unusual opportunities for profitable investment present themselves with due regard for safety of principal."

Capitalization of the New York and Republic Corporation is made up of 100,000 shares of $3 cumulative convertible preferred no par stock and 600,000 shares of no par common. The stock will be offered in units of one share of $3 cumulative convertible and 600,000 of common, together with a warrant entitling the holder to buy one additional share of common stock.

Dominion Glass Company Reports.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Dec. 11.—The Dominion Glass Company, Ltd., reports for the year ended on Sept. 30 earnings equal to 12.87 per cent on the common stock, compared with 10 per cent in the preceding year. The profits were $778,392, against $864,701. Deductions of bond interest and preferred and common dividends left a balance of $240,712. Net working capital was $3,306,142, as compared with $3,059,072 in the preceding report.

SELIGMAN TRUSTS PLAN EARLY MERGER

STOCK TRADES PROPOSED

Baillie Sees Broader Market for Securities of New Organization—Meetings Called for Dec. 27.

A plan for the consolidation into a single corporation of the Tri-Continental Corporation and the Tri-Continental Allied Company, Inc., investment trusts sponsored this year by J. & W. Seligman & Co., has been approved by the directors of both companies, it was announced yesterday. The Tri-Continental Corporation, it was said, had net assets, at market prices on Dec. 7, of $45,276,000, and the Allied Company on the same day had net assets of $42,248,000.

After allowing for the retirement of 112,000 shares of $50 par value preferred stock of the Allied Company, with attached warrants, which Seligman & Co. have offered to sell to the new corporation at $37.50 a share, the consolidated company would have net assets of more than $80,000,000.

The Tri-Continental Corporation was formed in January with the offering of $25,000,000 preferred stock and 1,000,000 shares of common stock at $27 a share, while the Allied Company was formed in August, when $50,000,000 was realized from the offering of $25,000,000 of preferred stock and 1,000,000 shares of common stock. Tri-Continental agreed to manage the Allied Company without cost.

Meetings Called for Dec. 27.

The consolidated company, it was said, will be known as the Tri-Continental Corporation. Special meetings of the stockholders of the present Tri-Continental Corporation and the Allied Company have been called for Dec. 27 to take action on the proposed merger.

In a letter sent to stockholders, Earle Baillie, president of both companies, said the consolidation would create a single corporation with one portfolio and one management, while its securities would have a broader market than those of the constituent companies.

Under the consolidation plan, preferred stockholders of the Tri-Continental Corporation will receive an equal amount of preferred stock of the new corporation. Instead of the present attached warrants for the purchase of one share of common stock at $27 a share, expring on Dec. 31, 1943, the holder of each share of preferred will receive detached warrants to purchase without limit as to time, one and one-half shares of the common stock of the new corporation at $22.50 a share.

Common stockholders of the Tri-Continental Corporation will receive 1.2 shares of common stock of the new corporation for each share held, while common stock of the Allied Company will be exchanged for the new stock on a share-for-share basis. For each unit certificate of the Allied Company, representing one share of $50 par value preferred stock, with warrant, and one and one-half shares of common stock, the holder will receive one-half a share of $100 par value preferred stock of the new corporation and one and one-half share of new common stock. Instead of the present attached warrant to purchase one-half share of common stock at $33 a share, expiring on Aug. 15, 1939, the unit holder will receive a detached warrant to purchase, without limit as to time, one-half a share of common stock of the new corporation at $22.50 a share.

Balance sheets and portfolios of the two corporations as of the close of business on Dec. 7 show that the Tri-Continental Corporation, with its portfolio valued at closing market prices on Dec. 7, had net assets of $45,276,000. Included in the assets was $9,691,983 in cash and call loans, and 150,000 shares of common stock of Tri-Continental Allied, and warrants to purchase 500,000 shares of common stock of the latter company, carried at their combined cost of $3,750,000. After allowing for $25,000,000 par value of preferred stock of Tri-Continental, the book value for each share of common stock was $20.27.

Net assets of the Allied Company on Dec. 7 amounted to $42,248,000 and indicated a liquidating value of the units of the company of $75.87 each, while the liquidating value of the common stock was $17.25 a share. Included in the assets was $16,193,860 in cash and call loans.

Assets of the constituent companies will be taken on the books of the new corporation at cost or market value, whichever is lower, and the new corporation will commence business with a surplus. Outstanding capitalization will consist of $43,365,000 of 6 per cent preferred stock, with a par value of $100, similar to the present preferred issues; 2,020,150 shares of common stock without par value, and detached warrants to purchase 1,005,830 shares of common stock at $22.50 a share.

Increase in Asset Coverage.

Through the acquisition and retirement of 112,000 shares of the Allied Company's preferred stock the asset coverage of the balance of the preferred stock will be increased from 169 per cent to 181 per cent prior to the amalgamation. The retirement of this block of stock will bring the asset coverage of the Allied Company's preferred stock to the same figure as that of the preferred stock of the Tri-Continental Corporation.

Additional warrants to be given to preferred stockholders of the Tri-Continental Corporation will be donated by J. & W. Seligman & Co., to compensate for the relatively greater reduction in the warrant price to holders of Allied preferred stock, it was said.

J. & W. Seligman & Co. announce that after giving effect to the consolidation and incidental transactions, they would own more than 325,000 shares of common stock, and purchase warrants for approximately 275,000 shares of the new corporation.

ROYAL MAIL VOTES TO DEFER DIVIDENDS

British Shipping Group Withholds Payments Pending the Audit of Its Finances.

STOCK TOUCHES NEW LOW

Kylsant Attributes the Slump to "Public Attacks"—Profits Said to Equal Last Year's.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—After months of silence, during which the prices of the shares crumbled disastrously, the directors of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, the world's biggest shipping combination, today announced that the usual dividends on preference shares would be passed and that no interim dividend on ordinary stock would be paid. It was stated that accountants were examining the books of all the Kylsant shipping companies.

"Public attacks on the company" are blamed by the directors for the protracted slump in the shares, which, they insist, has had no justification in actual fact. A preliminary report by Fries, Waterhouse & Co., has disclosed profits of £3,400,000 in 1928 after paying debenture and other interest, but before allowing for depreciation in fleets and for preference dividends.

"The results of the group for the present year are expected to be very similar," the directors declare.

Despite its reassuring features, however, the announcement fell as a bombshell on the Stock Exchange, where Royal Mail ordinary stock promptly declined 6 points to a new low of 27½s. Corresponding declines occurred in White Star preference, which touched 13s 3d, and in other Kylsant properties. For each of the past two years Royal Mail has paid an interim dividend of 2 per cent and a final dividend of 3 per cent.

The official statement issued today began as follows:

"At a meeting of the board of directors Lord Kylsant, the chairman, stated that attacks that had been made on the company and the publicity they have received having resulted in a heavy fall in the market value of the shares and debentures, Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co. had been instructed to examine the position of the shipping companies of which he is chairman."

Explaining the profit figures for 1928, the directors assert:

"Provision for depreciation has been made in the past on the combined fleets sufficient to write them down to a value which is less by over £6,750,000 than the aggregate value at which they would have stood if provision for depreciation had been made on the basis allowed for income tax purposes. In addition to the above excess provision for depreciation, the total reserves of the companies amount to considerably over £7,000,000 after allocating sufficient to write off the premiums paid for certain shipping shares and making provision for estimated shrinkage in value (under present conditions in heavy British industries) of investments other than in shipping companies.

"The trade facilities loan of £2,550,000 to the Royal Mail Steam Packet Meat Transports, Ltd., which was guaranteed by the Royal Mail, falls due for repayment in September and October, 1930. As public attacks on the company have made it impracticable at present for either company to make a public issue, application has been made to the trade facilities act advisory committee for an extension of the period of repayment."

Pending the committee's decision the directors declare that they have decided not to pay either preference or ordinary dividends "in order to conserve the cash resources of the company."

The so-called "public attacks" of which the directors complain were first heard last June when Lord St. Davids, Kylsant's brother, objected to the conduct of the company's affairs and resigned as a trustee of the debentures. Since then Royal Mail shares have been tobogganing and have dropped to two-fifths of their former value. Ordinary shares, which touched 88s last year and 76s this year, tonight closed at 27s 6d, while the 5 per cent preference, which attained 81s 6d earlier in year, today fell 7s 6d to 37s 6d. White Star preference shares amounting to £5,000,000, which the Royal Mail guarantees both as to capital and dividend, are now worth little more than half of their former value.

The combined tonnage of the Kylsant group, with affiliated lines, includes one-sixth of the total British merchant marine. It is comprised not only of the Royal Mail Line, the White Star Line, but also the Elder-Dempster Line and the Union Castle Line, with an aggregate share capital of $385,000,000. The Royal Mail also is heavily interested in the Lamport & Holt Line, the Pacific Steam Navigation Company, the Nelson Steam Navigation Company and affiliated enterprises in the meat trade between Great Britain and South America.

The reference in today's announcement regarding "investments other than in shipping companies" is considered significant tonight, for it is a widespread belief, never definitely proved, that the capital of Kylsant's gigantic fleet has been employed in businesses with which the shipping companies are not directly concerned.

New Phone Central 'Exchange' For Wire Companies' Officials

A new telephone central office designation "Exchange" will be introduced in Manhattan today, the New York Telephone Company announced last night. It will be used exclusively to designate the private branch exchanges serving about 5,000 telephones in the executive and general offices of the New York Telephone Company at 140 West Street and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company at 195 Broadway.

"Whitehall Official" will become "Exchange 4600," "Cortland Official 60" will be "Exchange 9800" and "Cortland Official 76" will change to "Exchange 6000."

The changes will permit the dialing of official numbers direct without dialing the operator and asking orally for the desired official number. As formerly, no charge will be made on calls for "Exchange" numbers.

SUIT ALLEGES DAMAGE TO DRUG STORE CHAIN

Stockholder in Neve Company Accuses United Cigar and Whelan Interests.

A suit by the Setay Company, Inc., as a stockholder of the Neve Drug Stores, Inc., against the United Cigar Stores Company, the United Retail Chemists, the Whelan Drug Company and officers of the corporations named, for an accounting because of alleged damage to Neve Drug Stores was disclosed in the Supreme Court yesterday when the Whelan Drug Company filed an application for particulars. This will be heard on Dec. 16.

F. J. Griffiths, president of the Whelan Drug Company, in applying for the particulars, said the defendants were charged with neglected duty in respect to the Neve company and with dominating its affairs, and that general statements and charges were made against them, all of which are denied. He said his company wanted to know exactly what it is charged with and asked that the plaintiff be compelled to state what merchandise and property of the Neve company was directed to be transferred to the Whelan company without consideration, and whether orders to this effect by the United Cigar Stores and the United Retail Chemists were written or oral; what merchandise was directed delivered to the Neve company which was inferior; what payments by the Neve company were erorbitant, and in what manner the directors negligently and carelessly had managed that company so that "great losses of capital and profits have resulted."

UNGERLEIDER TO CUT STOCK

Financial Corporation to Reduce 446,378 Shares to 250,000.

The stockholders of the Ungerleider Financial Corporation, meeting in Wilmington, Del., unanimously authorized yesterday a reduction in the capital stock from 446,378 to 250,000 shares.

All the shares now held in the company's treasury and a block to be purchased for this purpose will be retired. The board was authorized to purchase the latter stock at a price not to exceed $50 a share.

CONFER AT CAPITAL ON EASIER CREDIT

Governors of Reserve Banks Consider Plans as Set Forth by Hoover.

OPTIMISTIC ON OUTLOOK

Legislation on Branch and Chain Banking Also Discussed at the Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Governors and agents of the Federal Reserve banks throughout the country began their semi-annual meeting at the Treasury today, and are understood to have engaged in a general discussion of the banking and credit situation as it shaped up following the recent crash of security values on the Stock Exchanges. The officials were reticent about discussing their deliberations, and said nothing to indicate that they were concerned over conditions in the localities that they represent.

Under the plans for progress in finance and commerce as contemplated by President Hoover, the Federal Reserve System would play an important part in doing what it legitimately could to see that business received easy credit.

Up to the present time the Reserve banks in New York, Boston, Chicago, Atlanta and San Francisco have reduced their rediscount rates to 4½ per cent, and it was said that at today's conferences the belief was expressed that within a short time all Reserve banks would be down to that level. Except in the instances mentioned, the rate still is 5 per cent.

To Meet With Reserve Board.

It is expected that the governors and agents will be in session for another day or two and will conclude their deliberations by meeting with the Federal Reserve Board. Until that time at least, it was intimated, no statements would be made.

Reports here are to the effect that reserve banks will, if necessary, continue the purchase of government securities in the open market during the month in order to ease the credit and currency situation. Currency demand during the holiday season is heavy and it has been estimated that the total amount outstanding may reach $5,000,000,000 by Christmas.

Such information as could be obtained was that the representatives of the reserve banks were confident that Christmas trade would be satisfactory despite the slump in stocks. The representatives of the banks were said to believe that the recent conferences held by President Hoover with industrial and labor leaders would have a most beneficial effect in efforts to keep business on a solid foundation.

Banking Laws Considered.

The governors and agents also are considering among other things, it was said, the advisability of legislation having to do with branch and chain banking.

Governors of all banks except Boston and Kansas City were present, these two banks being represented by W. W. Paddock and C. A. Worthington, deputy governors, respectively. Governors present were:

George L. Harrison, New York; George W. Norris, Philadelphia; E. R. Fancher, Cleveland; George J. Seay, Richmond; Eugene R. Black, Atlanta; J. B. McDougal, Chicago; William McC. Martin, St. Louis; W. B. Geery, Minneapolis; Lynn P. Talley, Dallas; John U. Calkins, San Francisco.

DEMANDS FULL DATA ON TAX FILM PLAN

Committee of Class A Stockholders Is Formed, Headed by Farrar Lazarus.

Farrar Lazarus yesterday issued an announcement that a committee of holders of the Class A stock of the Fox Film Corporation had been formed with himself as chairman. His announcement stated that it was the intention of the committee to obtain a "clear financial picture of the complex situation existing by reason of the many subsidiary and affiliated companies with which Fox Film Corporation is concerned."

No information could be obtained as to how much, if any, of the Class A stock of the company is represented by Mr. Lazarus or his committee. Mr. Lazarus when reached on the telephone declined to discuss the amount of stock he represented stating that he had nothing to say aside from what had been said in typewritten notices he had sent to all newspapers. He intimated, however, that he might issue another statement this afternoon.

At the offices of the Fox Film Corporation two officials who admitted that they were acquainted with the holders of the larger amounts of Class A stock, which is concentrated in an individual or group, said they had never heard of Mr. Lazarus. Neither, however, would say that he was not a stock holder and they referred inquiries to John E. Otterson or Harry L. Stuart, the trustees who were recently appointed by William Fox to act with him in the control of his holdings in the stock companies.

Both were present in the offices of the Fox Film Corporation at the time inquiries were being made but employes of the company would not disturb them explaining that they were attending the meeting of the board.

It was stated, however, that the main object as announced by Mr. Lazarus for the forming of the committee, that of obtaining a "clear financial picture," had already been promised stockholders, as it was announced on Monday by Hughes, Schurman & Dwight, legal advisers to the trustees, that the first public act of the trustees would be the issuance of a financial statement covering all the temporary financing of the companies in addition to the earnings of the companies.

In his statement Mr. Lazarus said:

"In the letter sent to Class A stockholders it was stated that it is not the intention of the committee to embarrass the trustees recently appointed for the controlling voting stock of Fox Film Corporation, but to constructively cooperate with the trustees in working out the vast problems confronting them in regard to the financial status of the corporation.

"The committee pointed out that just prior to the break in the stock market it was voted to increase the Class A shares, then approximately 800,000 shares outstanding, to 4,000,000 shares, and to increase the directors from eight to twelve, giving the Class A stockholders the right to elect five of the twelve directors."

The annual meeting of the stockholders takes place on April 18, 1930, at which time the stockholders represented by the committee will vote to elect five representative directors provided for at the Sept. 13 meeting. Mr. Lazarus said no action should be permitted without the consent of the Class A stockholders to subordinate their interests or to change the construction of the now outstanding classes of stock or to increase the outstanding Class A stock or dispose of the same without adequate provision for the rights and equities in any action now contemplated in connection with refunding of the reported $30,000,000 of short-term maturing obligations of the company.

The two trustees appointed by Mr. Fox attended yesterday the first meeting of the board of directors of Fox Film Corporation which has been held since they were appointed. It is understood that the entire time of the meeting was spent in discussing various phases of the financial position of the company, and the discussion of the plans being prepared by the trustees for the permanent financing of the present short-term obligations of the Fox interests.

The City owns property valued at $32,187,522.

For purposes of taxation, taxes are levied on approximately 50% of the assessed valuation.

Miami has a population in excess of 150,000 (estimated by the Federal Census Bureau), and a winter population of more than 250,000; it is the largest city in Florida and the most popular winter resort in America. It is rapidly developing commercially as a seaport, clearing a large volume of tonnage to and from Cuba, Porto Rico, Central and South America.

The assessed valuation of real property representing an investment of more than $600,000,000 should assure the permanence and stability of the city.

The credit of Miami is excellent—it has never defaulted or compromised any of its obligations.

Tax collections in Miami compare most favorably with the best cities in the North. 88.3% of the taxes for 1928 were paid within the regular collection period. 25.9% of the taxes for 1929, now in process of collection, were paid during the month of November.

These bonds are direct and general obligations of the City of Miami, payable from unlimited ad valorem taxes levied against all the taxable property in the City.

DIVIDEND INCREASE BY WESTINGHOUSE

Electric Company Raises Rate on Common and Preferred From $4 to $5 a Year.

DUE TO EARNINGS IN 1929

About $10 a Share Reported by Robertson—No Action on Stock Split—Other Declarations.

The directors of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company increased yesterday the annual dividend on the common and preferred stocks from $4 to $5 and declared the first quarterly dividend at the new rate payable on the preferred stock on Jan. 15, and on the common stock on Jan. 31, both to stockholders of record on Dec. 31.

The increase in the dividend followed a report from A. W. Robertson, chairman of the board, that earnings for the current year would approximate $10 a share. The stock of the company is at $50 par value, making the new rate equivalent to annual disbursements of 10 per cent.

No announcement was made by the directors in regard to a split-up of the stock which has been reported in Wall Street as being under consideration. The plan was understood to embrace a three-for-one split-up of the present common stock and the creation of new preferred stock to be exchanged for the present preferred on a basis of three shares for each one of the present shares. Both of the classes of new shares would be, according to report, without par value.

The lack of any statement from the directors regarding the plan led to a divergence of opinion as to whether the plan had been abandoned. An authority close to the company, however, said it had been postponed pending further indications of earnings in 1930, upon which the dividend basis of the new stock would be estimated. The annual meeting of the stockholders will take place on the second Wednesday in April, and it was said that before that time the directors would have actual results to verify present indications of earnings as a guide to recommendations in regard to a dividend basis in case of a split-up. The purpose of the split-up is understood to be the wider distribution of stock selling at approximately $50 a share usually attains over one selling at $150. The common stock of the company closed yesterday on the New York Stock Exchange at 149¼ and the preferred at 142.

The new dividend rate will call for a disbursement of $13,346,195 a year, an increase of $2,669,239 over the $4 dividend rate. The company has outstanding $129,463,250 out of $196,000,000 in common stock authorized, and $3,998,700 in preferred stock of $4,000,000 authorized.

DIVIDEND DEFERRED BY SCHULTE-UNITED

Chain Store Corporation to Strengthen Cash Position, Directors Explain.

The Schulte-United 5-Cents-to-$1 Stores, Inc., a general merchandising chain organized by David A. Schulte in January, 1928, announced yesterday that it would defer its quarterly dividend due on Jan. 1 on preferred stock. The directors said the action was taken "to still further strengthen the company's cash position."

A split between the Schulte interests and those of George K. Morrow was indicated in October, when Mr. Schulte and his associates resigned from the Union Tobacco Company, Webster Eisenlohr, Inc., and the Union Cigar Company. The largest interests of Mr. Schulte are now the Schulte Retail Stores Corporation, the Schulte 5-Cents-to-$1 Stores, Inc., and Park & Tilford.

The annual dividend rate on the Schulte merchandising stores preferred is 7 per cent. In the preceding quarters of the year it has paid regular quarterly dividends of 1¾ per cent, so that to date this year it has paid 5¼ per cent. The company is capitalized at $35,000,000.

NO COMBUSTION DIVIDEND.

Company Omits Payment on Preferred as It Did on Common.

Directors of the International Combustion Engineering Corporation omitted yesterday the quarterly dividend of $1.75 due at this time on the preferred stock. This followed the board's recent action in omitting the quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on the common stock. The official statement at that time said that in view of the large amount of business on the company's books and the necessary expansion of activity it had been decided to pass the dividend and conserve the company's cash.

The company has outstanding 100,000 shares of 7 per cent cumulative convertible no-par preferred stock and 1,041,113 shares of no-par common. An initial dividend of $1.75 was paid on the preferred stock on Jan. 2, 1928, and had been paid regularly since that time.

BOND PRICES LOWER ON STOCK EXCHANGE

Domestic Issues Generally Show Declines, but Foreign Loans Average Higher.

LOCAL TRACTIONS ACTIVE

Government Securities Irregular in Lighter Trading—Rails Easier, Convertibles Weak.

Domestic bond prices worked generally lower yesterday on the Stock Exchange, while foreign loans averaged slightly higher for the day. Convertible bonds closed lower as a group, and many of the railroad issues which were in brisk demand earlier in the week softened. United States Government bonds closed irregular in trading lighter than usual.

In the convertible list, American Telephone and Telegraph 4½s and International Telephone 4½s dropped 2¾ points each. Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe convertible 4½s sold off 2 points, and both issues of Allegheny Corporation 5s eased fractionally. Texas Corporation convertible 5s held unchanged, as did New Haven convertible 6s, and Commercial Investment Trust 5½s gained half a point.

New York traction bonds were more active than usual yesterday. Third Avenue adjustment 5s dropped 5⅝ points to 26½, while Broadway and Seventh Avenue 5s of 1943 jumped 5⅞ points. Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit 5s moved up half a point, and Interborough issues finished generally lower. New York Railways income 6s dropped a point to a new low for the year to date at 4½.

Although trading was rather active at times in the rail group, very few issues established new highs for 1929 to date. The active Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific bonds closed fractionally off. Advances and declines in the public utility group were about evenly distributed. Public Service Corporation of New Jersey 4½s dropped 3 points to 180. Industrial bonds were quiet.

The Treasury 3¼s of 1943 featured the government securities with a net gain of 10-32, but the balance of the list finished 1-32 higher to 6-32 lower. All of the issues, however, are selling at levels close to the best prices of the year to date.

Mexican bonds were weak yesterday, closing half a point to 6¾ points net lower. Most of the net changes for the day in foreign bonds were fractional.

MUNICIPAL LOANS.

Announcements of Bond Issues for Bankers—Offerings to the Public.

State of Kentucky.

The State of Kentucky, which failed in its third attempt this week to obtain a bid on its issue of $11,667,000 toll bridge bonds which the authorities considered satisfactory, may elect to endeavor to dispose of the bonds privately, according to private advices received here yesterday. Owing to the inability to distinguish readily between the merits of the various individual issues payable from the tolls of particular bridges, bankers here yesterday expressed doubt that the issues could be sold piecemeal.

Alexandria, Va.

The city of Alexandria, Va., plans to open bids on Dec. 20 on a new issue of $780,000 4½ per cent bonds, maturing serially from Jan. 1, 1935, to 1968. The bonds are issued for annexation, public improvement and funding purposes.

Beaver Falls, Pa.

Beaver Falls (Pa.) School District has called for sealed tenders, to be opened on Dec. 20, on a new issue of $500,000 4½ per cent bonds. The issue will mature serially on Jan. 1, 1935, to 1949.

Miami, Fla.

A block of $392,000 city of Miami (Fla.) 4½, 5 and 5½ per cent bonds, due from March 1, 1932, to April 1, 1938, will be placed on the market today by B. J. Van Ingen & Co. at prices to net 5.50 per cent. The city reported an assessed valuation for 1929 of $535,250,506 and a total bonded debt, including these bonds, of $33,171,000.

Audubon, N. J.

Offering of a new issue of $162,000 Borough of Audubon (N. J.) 5½ per cent sewer bonds, due on Dec. 1, 1939, to 1969, will be made today by Morris Mather & Co., Inc. The bonds will be priced to yield 5 per cent.

Book at Bond Club Wednesday.

Representative James M. Beck of Pennsylvania will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at the Bond Club's luncheon in the Bankers' Club on next Wednesday at noon, instead of yesterday, as was announced erroneously by THE NEW YORK TIMES.

$78,678,000 in New Bonds On Today's Investment List

New securities totaling $78,678,000 will be placed on the market today by New York banking houses and syndicates. The amount will consist entirely of bonds.

The new issues are classified as follows:

Municipal	$65,162,000
Public utility	13,516,000

INSURANCE COUNSEL ELECT.

George B. Young of Vermont Chosen to Head Association.

George B. Young, general counsel for the National Life Insurance Company of Montpelier, Vt., was elected president of the Association of Life Insurance counsel at the concluding session yesterday of a two-day meeting in the Hotel Astor. Francis V. Keesling, vice president of the West Coast Life Insurance Company of San Francisco, was elected vice president and Harry C. Bates and Hilda F. Deyoe, both of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, were re-elected secretary and assistant secretary respectively.

Papers relating to the legal phases of the insurance business were read at the morning session by E. M. Grossman, James C. Jones Jr. and Claude H. Vorhees. William J. Tully presided.

The National Convention of Insurance Commissioners, at a meeting in the Astor, presented a silver beverage set to Colonel Joseph Button, Insurance Commissioner of Virginia, who resigned as its secretary-treasurer.

The executive committee of the Health and Accident Underwriters Association also met in the Astor. Dr. J. R. Neal of Springfield, Ill., presided.

BANKING SEEN IN INSURANCE

Conway Bars Certain Policies That Fail to Meet His Approval.

In a letter sent to all authorized life insurance companies, Albert Conway, State Superintendent of Insurance, announced that he has withdrawn his approval of all single annuity policy forms providing for the return of the entire premium, after minor expense charges, in the event of death.

"In my opinion," Mr. Conway said, "such contracts are in the nature of banking transactions and do not serve any useful purpose so far as insurance protection is concerned. The risk to the company of any loss on account of the death or the continuance of the life of the insured, is practically absent.

"I have decided also to make a ruling prohibiting the simultaneous issue of a life annuity and a separate life contract, with or without medical examination, on the single premium life plan, where the combination of policies results in no risk, or practically no risk, being assumed by the company. Companies cannot use two forms of contracts to accomplish the same results as at present accomplished under one of the above contract forms."

New York Central Gets Authority to Buy New Equipment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The Interstate Commerce Commission granted authority today to the New York Central Railroad to assume liability for not over $5,898,000 of second quipment trust 4½ per cent certificates, to be issued by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York, and to be sold at not less than 97.02 per cent of par and accrued dividends.

The proceeds are to be applied on the purchase of equipment to cost about $7,376,130, including 400 gondola cars, 600 steel auto box-cars, 10 steel dining cars, 25 freight locomotives and 30 passenger locomotives.

BOND FLOTATION.

Detroit Edison Company.

Offering of $13,516,000 Detroit Edison Company general and refunding mortgage 5 per cent bonds, Series A, due on Oct. 1, 1949, will be made today at par by a banking group headed by Coffin & Burr, Inc., and including Harris, Forbes & Co., Spencer Trask & Co.; the Bankers Company of New York; Otis & Co.; the Detroit Company, Inc., and the First National Company of Detroit, Inc. The bonds are secured by a direct mortgage on the entire fixed property and franchises of the company and by the deposit of $13,500,000 first and refunding mortgage bonds. On completion of this financing they will be further secured by the deposit of $13,516,000 more first and refunding mortgage bonds. The bonds will be callable at 107½ on or before Oct. 1, 1934, and at 105 in the next five years. Thereafter the premium decreases at intervals to one-half of 1 per cent for the last two years.

FRENCH STOCKS IMPROVE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 11.—Aside from the Royal Mail statement and its repercussions on shares, today's Stock Exchange showed a firmer tendency. Gilt-edged securities picked up after a quiet opening. The funding loan rose ⅛ to 85¾, while the war loan touched £100 for the first time since the Wall Street slump began in October.

Columbia Graphophone again led the way among the internationals, rising 3-16 to 27¼, with His Master's Voice Graphophone also stronger at 54⅝. International Nickel gained ⅝ to 38¾, International Holding rose ⅞ to 8¾, but Brazil Traction weakened ⅛ to 9½.

Associated Electric rose to 25s 6d. Hydroelectric advanced 2 to 45, but General Electric sagged to 40s 9d. Imperial Chemical rallied sharply to 28s 6d during the afternoon, while American Celanese was strong at £7¼. Tobaccos were quiet and motors were dull.

Rhodesian Coppers improved slightly, notably Bwana which rose 9d to 21s 3d. Oils barely held their own, with Anglo-Persian and Royal Dutch making small gains.

A big gold influx had a bracing effect on general sentiment. From Australia came £1,010,880 in sovereigns while the Bank of England sold £5,118 of bar gold and withdrew £22,000 in sovereigns. The net influx for the week amounts to £3,277,426.

Money was still tight in Lombard Street, with 6 per cent the rate for overnight loans, easing to 5 in the afternoon. The discount market was quiet at 4⅞ per cent for three-month bills. Sterling was slightly easier at $4.88 5-16.

PARIS, Dec. 11.—The financial reforms which M. Tardieu submitted to Parliament were well received on the Bourse. The effect was a steadying of the market, and selling activities of recent sessions ceased. Trading today opened fairly brisk, to subside during mid-session, but the closing came with most stocks strong.

Rentes were stronger throughout and closed as follows: Tax 2 per cents, 81.50; 1918 4s, 97.70; 1920 amortizable 5s, 128.30; 1928 5s, 102.47; 1920 6s, 103.45; 1927 amortizable 6s, 100.

Earlier Gains Lost in Berlin.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 11.—The Boerse today reflected the uncertainty prevailing over the political situation connected with the financial program. After an uneasy opening the market improved slightly, being stimulated by firmness in artificial silks. A. E. G. shares advanced temporarily 3 points to 135, while Bemberg gained 6 points and Berlin Karlsruher improved 4 points.

An unconfirmed rumor that the Reparation Agent had agreed to prolong the old and grant a new temporary credit to the Reich also had a stimulating effect. In the second hour the tendency changed, following a report that the People's party and the Socialists had decided to reject the financial reform plan, and the day's gains were completely lost with the exception of artificial silks, textiles and Berlin Karlsruher. Call money was 5½ to 7½ per cent.

The largest monthly import since the war was £135,056,336, in July, 1920; the smallest, £89,334,057, in February, 1922.

$1,300,000 GOLD SENT TO SWEDEN, IS REPORT

Unofficial reports of the last week's gold movements, published in Wall Street yesterday, listed a shipment of $1,300,000 to Sweden, the first metal to go to that country this year, and a small consignment, about $80,000, to England, also the first sent to that country on the present movement. At the same time it was reported from London that the Midland Bank had been negotiating for $3,000,000 of gold, about $15,000,000.

Shipments made by the Midland Bank in 1928 were arranged through the National City Bank. At that institution it was said yesterday that nothing was known of an impending shipment.

The France and the Berengaria are scheduled to sail at midnight tomorrow and the Bremen at midnight on Saturday. It is considered almost certain that gold will go out on one or more of them.

Sterling developed weakness in yesterday's foreign exchange market. Rates for cable transfers dropped 5/32 cent to $4.88 7/32. The franc, on the other hand, was firmer at $.0393⅞, exactly the commonly accepted gold-shipping point.

The Swedish krona reached a new high for the year at $.2701, a shade better than the gold point, while reichsmarks were easier at $.2395, down one-half point.

Northern Pacific's Plans.

The Northern Pacific may spend more than $50,000,000 in 1930 on new equipment, roadway, maintenance and buildings, according to Charles Donnelly, president. This does not include proposed expenditures for extension of lines. The road has applied to the Interstate Commerce Commission to build a line in Eastern and Central Montana to cost from $8,000,000 to $8,000,000.

EXCHANGE DINES VETERAN WORKERS

Most of 108 Employes in Service More Than Twenty-five Years Attend Function.

SIMMONS GIVES GOLD PINS

They Signify Admission to Quarter Century Club—Rev. F. P. Duffy Is Principal Speaker.

Veteran employes of the New York Stock Exchange were honored last night at a dinner given by the Exchange in its luncheon club. Most of the 108 employes who have been with the Exchange more than twenty-five years attended, as did E. H. H. Simmons, president of the Exchange, members of the governing committee, other officers and department heads.

The Rev. Francis P. Duffy, chaplain of the Sixty-ninth Regiment, was the principal speaker. Edward Doyle, superintendent of the floor department, who has been with the Exchange thirty-five years, was toastmaster. John E. Wilson, secretary of the New York Quotation Company, also a thirty-five-year man, spoke on behalf of the employes. Mr. Simmons presented gold pins to employes who in 1929 have rounded out twenty-five years of service. These pins signified the admission of the recipients to the Quarter Century Club.

Of the 108 members of the Quarter Century Club, eighty-one are still active employes, while twenty-seven are on the retired list. Two women are members. Three employes who have been in the service of the Exchange more than fifty years are Bernard Smith, superintendent of the Stock Exchange Building, who is still active, and John P. Burnes and Joseph R. Mallin, retired. Mr. Smith is the dean of the employes, holding the record for years and length of service. During nearly fifty of the fifty-five years he has been with the Exchange he has been in charge of the building. Until recently he lived with his family in a pent-house on the roof of the building. He is 72 years old and does not intend to retire.

Among the other active veterans who attended the dinner were Duncan MacGregor, manager of the Stock Clearing Corporation, who will complete forty-five years of service when he retires on Jan. 1; Robert Becker, who has been with the Exchange forty-six years and who will succeed Mr. MacGregor, and William S. Foster, manager of the night branch of the Stock Clearing Corporation, who is completing his thirty-eighth year with the Exchange. Also, there were present Richard Campbell and Richard Harkins, doormen, who have guarded the entrances to the Exchange more than forty-five years; James O'Mara and William J. Connaughton, supervisors on the floor who have been with the Exchange nearly forty-six years; Francis S. Ryan and Peter F. Curran, in charge of the delivery department, who also are forty-six-year men; Daniel J. Mahoney, chief timekeeper; John H. Hutchinson, superintendent of the quotation department; William T. Boynon, superintendent of the floor force; William Farrell, head porter, and Oscar Lassen, head carpenter.

RECEIVERS ASK $75,000.

Advise Also $1.50 a Share Dividend by Bankers' Securities Co.

Stockholders of the New Jersey Bankers' Securities Company were advised in notices received yesterday that two receivers and counsel for the company would ask for allowances of $75,000, or $25,000 each to John J. Stamler and Nicholas Levecchia, receivers, and Leber & Ruback, counsel. The notices advised also that the receivers' recommendation for a distribution of $1.50 a share would be considered in Chancery Court in Newark on Dec. 17.

Opposition by New York interests in the disbursing of the $1.50 a share is considered probable.

OVER-COUNTER PRICES EASE IN LIGHT TRADING

Bank Shares Lower Because of Ex-Dividend Sales—Some Commission Stocks Go Up.

Inactivity marked most trading on the Over-the-Counter Market yesterday. A few issues fell slightly in small operations. The downward trend among bank stocks could be attributed mainly to ex dividend sales. Bank of United States and America were the only two that did not go lower. Chase, Bankers and Guaranty were ex dividend and sold off slightly, as did Corn Exchange, Manhattan Company, Fidelity, Chemical, City, Lefcourt and Brooklyn.

In the insurance group Providence-Washington, City of New York, Connecticut-General Life and Fidelity & Deposit of Maryland were lower. Slight losses also were made in the industrial group by Aeolian Weber preferred and Draper, Petroleum Derivatives, Chestnut Smith common and preferred gained slightly.

A few communication issues displayed better prices, although the turnover was small. Bell Telephone of Canada and Peninsular Telephone were slightly higher, along with Peninsular Telephone preferred A. New England Telephone & Telegraph was off at the close.

OUTLOOK IMPROVES IN STEEL INDUSTRY

Trade Reviews Cite Increased Automobile Demand as Factor in Last Week.

ORDERS IN GOOD VOLUME

Highway Projects Require Material for Reinforcing — Foundry Iron Price Drops.

A number of favorable factors, among them a mild revival of demand from the automotive industry, renewed interest in pig iron and important road building projects in the Middle West have improved the sentiment in the iron and steel industry, according to the weekly trade reviews. December is expected to be a poor month both in shipments and production, but this is attributed to the fact that most consumers are reducing stocks to a minimum in preparation for inventory and to the fact that the present price situation is not encouraging to buying. The December situation, therefore, is causing little concern.

The Iron Age summary says in part:

"What has impressed the trade is the reassuring manner in which business has reacted to the stock market crash. Apprehension regarding possibilities has given way to manifest satisfaction with what has actually occurred in recent weeks. Railroad orders, shipbuilding contracts, steel fabricating work and specifications from farm equipment makers have been in consistently good volume, apparently unaffected by Wall Street deflation.

"Among some of the miscellaneous consumers also there have been evidences of a good rate of activity. Wire rope makers are feeling the stimulus of larger demands from public utilities. Hardware manufacturers and steel barrel makers have increased their specifications. Chicago reports crane and shovel builders busy, with books well filled for four months. Nowhere are there signs of a general paralysis of trade such as developed after other stock market panics.

Ingot Situation Unchanged.

"Steel ingot production has undergone little change since a week ago The output of Steel Corporation and Bethlehem plants remains at 68 per cent of capacity. District operations have increased in Alabama to 85 per cent, but appear to have receded at Buffalo and Youngstown, where production is irregular, probably not averaging much more than 40 per cent. The Chicago and Pittsburgh district rates are unchanged at 65 per cent. With the approach of Christmas output is expected to contract further, since year-end mill suspensions are likely to be longer than usual.

"Not the least among encouraging factors is a betterment in demand for automobile steel, and two of the larger manufacturers have put out inquiries for their first quarter requirements in steel bars."

The Iron Trade Review says in part:

"There are indications that iron and steel operating rates will continue substantially as at present until Christmas. The holiday shutdown this year probably will be more complete than usual. Meanwhile, the price situation will have crystallized and by the second or third week of January it is believed the usual first-quarter pick-up will be gathering momentum.

"As in iron and steel, sentiment in the automotive industry has passed the low point. December shipments of pig iron and finished steel to Detroit are exceeding November's. Ford, preparing to build 2,500,000 cars in 1930—70 per cent of them in the first half—is releasing material held up six weeks ago and is making fresh commitments. As a result, some sheet and strip capacity at Youngstown has been put on. Hudson-Essex, Chevrolet, Chrysler and Willys-Overland also have been back in the steel market.

Increase in Tin Plates.

"On the strength of specifications for January shipment tin plate mills at Pittsburgh have increased production to 75 per cent. Plate and shape mills at Chicago have also gone to a 75 per cent rate, following releases from the Milwaukee manufacturer of welded pipe and heavier specifying by car builders. Iowa's 1930 road building program requires 22,000 tons of reinforcing steel, with Minnesota and Indiana promising a like tonnage combined and Illinois also probably a large buyer. A small portion of these requirements already has been placed. Iron and steel scrap prices continue in delicate balance, indicating that liquidation is well completed.

"Steelmaking operations at Chicago and Pittsburgh are at 65 per cent. Youngstown independents are under 50 per cent and Steel corporation plants there at 60 to 70 per cent. Nineteen open-hearth furnaces out of thirty-seven, or three more than on Dec. 1, are active at Buffalo. Steel corporation subsidiaries are at 65 per cent this week and independents 62."

The Iron Age composite prices remain unchanged, pig iron at $18.29 a gross ton and finished steel at 2.362 cents a pound.

A decline in Eastern Pennsylvania foundry iron has dropped The Iron Trade Review composite of fourteen leading iron and steel products two cents to $35.95, a new low for the year.

CHANGES IN CORPORATIONS.

Underwriters Trust, Home Insurance and Bankers Trust Elections.

Charles H. Marshall of Butler, Herrick & Marshall, D. Basil O'Connor of Roosevelt & O'Connor and Benjamin B. Greer, president of the New York Air Brake Company, have been elected directors of the Underwriters Trust Company.

H. Parker Willis, professor of Banking at Columbia University and editor of The Journal of Commerce, has been elected chairman of the advisory board of Shields & Co.

Richard F. Van Vranken has been appointed secretary and general adjuster of the Home Insurance Company.

Porter B. Chase, president of the Bankers Trust Company, has been elected a director of the Phoenix Mutual Insurance Company to fill the unexpired term of the late Winslow Russell.

Hale Holden, chairman of the executive committee of the Southern Pacific Company, was elected a director of the New York Life Insurance Company. He succeeds the late H. Hiram R. Steele, who was a director thirty-seven years.

OTIS ELEVATOR CO. PLANS 4-FOR-1 SPLIT

500,000 Shares of $50 Stock to Be Changed to 2,500,000 of No Par.

WIGGIN IS ADDED TO BOARD

Shares on New York Stock Exchange Close at 309, With 4-Point Gain for Day.

A readjustment of the capital structure of the Otis Elevator Company, providing for a four-for-one split-up of stock, will be submitted to stockholders at a special meeting on Feb. 11. Directors of the company voted yesterday to recommend the plan.

It is proposed to have the authorized share capital increased from 500,000 shares of $50 par stock to 2,500,000 shares of no par stock. It is intended to replace the present 500,000 shares with 2,000,000 new shares, leaving 500,000 unissued and available for future use.

The directors have recommended that the certificate of incorporation be amended so that meetings of stockholders may be held in New York instead of in Jersey City. The executive committee has been increased from six to seven members. A. H. Wiggin was elected as the additional member.

No intimation was given of any proposed change in dividends. Dividends in the current year will amount to $8 a share, including four regular quarterly payments of $1.50 and an extra distribution of $2. The regular quarterly dividend was declared yesterday. In February last the company paid a stock dividend of 15 per cent.

The shares of Otis Elevator, one of the highest priced issued on the New York Stock Exchange, fluctuated yesterday between 300 and 309, closing at the latter figure with a net gain of 4 points.

CORPORATION REPORTS.

Results of Operations Announced by Industrial and Other Organizations.

A. M. Byers Company.

For the quarter ended Sept. 30 the A. M. Byers Company reports a consolidated net profit of $615,849 after depreciation, Federal taxes and other charges, equivalent, after preferred dividend requirements, to $7.81 per share on 386,635 no par common shares. Net for the year ended Sept. 30 was $1,977,196 after above charges, equivalent after preferred dividends to $5.81 per share on the above common capitalization, against $1,577,511 or $5.77 per share, on 100,340 common shares in the preceding year.

Consolidated Film Industries.

Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., for November reports earnings aggregating $212,761. This compares with $148,722 in the corresponding month of 1928. Earnings for the first eleven months of this year totaled $2,264,315, against $1,417,020 in the same period last year, an increase of approximately 60 per cent.

Monsanto Chemical Works.

For the nine months ended on Sept. 30 the Monsanto Chemical Works and its subsidiaries report consolidated net earnings of $1,881,481 after all charges and taxes. Comparative figures are not available because the Rubber Service Laboratories and the Merrimac Chemical Company have been acquired only recently.

Foremost Fabrics.

Net profits of the Foremost Fabrics Corporation for the two months ended on Nov. 30 were $96,065, according to an estimate made yesterday by Benjamin Nathan, chairman. After allowances for all charges, Federal and other taxes, this was equal to 82 cents a share earned on the 100,000 shares of no par value stock outstanding.

Firestone Tire and Rubber.

For the year ended on Oct. 31 the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company reports a net profit of $7,726,670 after all charges, equivalent, after preferred dividend requirements, to $18.35 a share on the stock outstanding during the year and equivalent after the recent 400 per cent stock dividend to $3.27 a share. The consolidated balance sheet shows current assets in excess of $88,000,000 and current liabilities of $8,500,000. Current assets include $50,000,000 in cash investories of $41,000,000, receivables of $17,000,000, with no liabilities except for current accounts payable, taxes and accrued dividends.

WHEAT PRICES FALL AS LONGS SELL OUT

Professional Pressure Puts Quotations at Lowest Marks Since Nov. 18.

CORN IS DULL AND EASIER

Oats Decline in Sympathy With Other Grains—Trend in Rye Also Downward.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—Disgusted longs went out of their lines of wheat today. With free selling by local professionals, prices dropped around 3 cents from the finish of Tuesday to the lowest level since Nov. 18. Quotations at the inside showed 11⅞ to 12¼ cents under the high of last week. Final trades were at net losses of 2¼ to 2½ cents.

Minneapolis December closed at $1.24½, or ½ cent under the figure the Farm Board set as the basis for loans on No. 1 Northern. Winnipeg was off 2¼ to 2¾ cents, Rosario was ½ to 2¼ cents lower and Buenos Aires 1⅞ to 1¾ cents off, the latter rallying a cent from the early low.

It was rumored late today that the Argentine Government was out with an estimate suggesting an exportable surplus of 77,000,000 to 92,000,000 bushels, but investigation showed this was based on a New York report figured on probable yield to the acre.

Liquidation has been heavy in the last few days and most operators have less long grain than for some time. Holders of daily and weekly bids bought on the extreme break, as did several houses that had been bearish recently.

A little hard Winter wheat was sold, but the quantity was not given. Greece, it is intimated, will soon come into the market as a free buyer, and, because of the relatively high price of Manitobas, it would not be surprising if hard Winter was taken. Liverpool closed 1⅞ to 2d lower. Primary receipts were 970,000 bushels; a week ago, 827,000, and a year ago, 1,246,000. Shipments were 522,000 bushels; a week ago, 592,000, and a year ago, 720,000.

The corn market was mostly dull, with the undertone easy, in sympathy with wheat. Net losses were ¾ to ⅞ cent, with December showing the most decline. Most of the trade continued local in character, with the relatively high prices tending to restrict buying. Possibility that the coming government report may suggest a smaller yield than forecast in November prevents selling. The spot basis was ½ cent lower to ½ cent higher, with a fair shipping demand. Sales were 110,000 bushels. Buenos Aires finished ½ cent higher.

Primary receipts were 1,868,000 bushels; a week ago, 724,000, and a year ago, 2,141,000. Shipments were 711,000 bushels; a week ago, 1,147,000, and a year ago, 1,158,000.

Oats broke in sympathy with other grains and closed ¾ to ⅞ cent lower, with houses with Northwestern connections on the selling side.

Cash interests and locals sold December rye, while there was selling of rye also against purchases of wheat. The finish was 2⅝ to 3 cents lower.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

GRAIN EXPORT LARGER.

Outgo Rises 1,841,000 Bushels for Week, 1,321,000 Above 1928.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11 (AP).—Grain exports from the United States for the week ending Dec. 7 were 2,940,000 bushels, as compared with 1,099,000 bushels in the corresponding week of last year and 1,619,000 in the preceding week.

Exports of wheat totaled 2,509,000 during the week, against 1,465,000 in the preceding week; barley, 218,000, against 76,000; corn, 199,000, against 64,000; oats, 11,000, against 12,000; rye, 5,000, against 2,000.

Canadian grains cleared in transit from United States Atlantic ports totaled 1,242,000 bushels as compared to 938,000.

United States wheat flour exported totaled 246,000 barrels as contrasted with 150,000 in the preceding week and Canadian wheat flour in transit amounted to 28,000 as compared with 19,000.

WINTER CEREALS DO WELL.

Crops Are but Little Damaged by the Cold Weather.

The weekly weather report issued yesterday by the government was as follows:

The first part of the week was too cold for picking cotton in the south central and northeastern belt and very little was accomplished.

The latter part was more favorable and considerable of the outstanding crop was gathered.

In the western belt conditions were generally favorable for scraping, and fields have been mostly clean.

The milder weather over the corn belt made much better conditions for housing the crop than have recently prevailed, though the melting snow and thawing soil caused soft and muddy fields in many sections.

In the western belt the weather was generally favorable, with husking and cribbing progressing satisfactorily. Housing is largely completed in many places.

The snow cover that prevailed over the main wheat area last week has largely disappeared and wheat appeared in satisfactory condition with very little damage from the cold weather. There was some injury to oats in parts of the southeast by the freeze, but in general there was not much damage and Winter cereals are in satisfactory condition in the East.

Grain needs moisture and a snow cover in the central Rockies and the great basin, while the far Southwest continues dry. There were general rains in the agricultural sections of the Pacific Northwest, and some wheat will benefit but they probably came too late to be of much help to large acreages.

The weather continued warm for the season in Argentina, the mean temperatures for each zone being 3 degrees above normal. This makes the fourth consecutive week of above normal temperatures in the grain areas. Precipitation was light to moderate, 0.7 inch being reported in the North and 0.2 inch in the South.

Moderate rains fell in Victoria and useful rains elsewhere in Australia. Queensland harvest shows very satisfactory results.

REPORTS IOWA CROP GAIN.

State Official Estimates 1929 Value at $575,463,000.

Special to The New York Times.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Dec. 11.—Total value of all Iowa crops not including live-stock products, increased $12,664,000 in 1929 as compared to 1928, Charles D. Reed, director of the Iowa Weather and Crops Bureau reported today.

Mr. Reed explained that the gain was additionally noteworthy because in reaching a total valuation of $575,463,000 for the year, Iowa crops overcame a $9,000,000 loss in value in corn, the State's outstanding crop.

The largest 1929 gains were made in hay, which showed a value of $14,000,000 above 1928; potatoes, which showed a gain of $5,250,000; oats, which gained $2,500,000, and pasturing and grazing, which gained $1,614,000.

Mr. Reed pointed out that the total value of all crops has increased $94,125,000 during the last four years.

UTILITY EARNINGS.

Public Service of New Jersey.

The Public Service Corporation of New Jersey reports gross earnings of $136,333,125 for the twelve months ended on Nov. 30, a new record, against $124,508,951 in the preceding twelve months. Net income from operations was $41,897,124, against $35,828,730, an increase of $6,068,393. The balance available for dividends and surplus, after all charges, amounted to $30,243,621, an increase of $10,023,919, or 50 per cent.

The income accounts for two years follow:

FREIGHT CAR ORDERS.

21,000 Total Estimated, With 10,000 More Needed by Three Roads.

Pending orders call for 21,000 freight cars, according to estimates by the Iron Trade Review. This total does not include requirements for the Chesapeake & Ohio, Pere Marquette and Hocking Valley, said to approximate 10,000 cars.

The Canadian National Railways are placing orders for 3,400 cars with two Canadian builders. The Milwaukee Railroad is inquiring for 1,450 additional cars. The Burlington has bought twenty-one locomotives. There are inquiries for forty-eight locomotives by the Canadian National, ten for the St. Louis-Southwestern, fifteen for the Milwaukee, fifteen for the Chicago Great Western and nine for the Bessemer & Lake Erie.

MIDWEST BOOM PREDICTED.

Durant Official Says Prosperity on Farms Will Be Felt.

Automobile manufacturers and producers of materials used on farms will find great markets throughout the Middle West next year, R. T. Hodgkins, general sales manager of the Durant Motors, Inc., said yesterday. He has just completed a series of trips into the Mississippi Valley.

"Prosperity is general from Chicago to Denver, from Canada to the Gulf, thanks to the great wheat harvest and a corn crop that in Iowa alone is valued at $800,000,000," Mr. Hodgkins said. "Hence the backbone of America's consuming power is in a buying mood, already evidenced by record-making purchases of radios, farm implements and other articles."

COAL MARKETS IMPROVE.

Industry Stimulated by the Cold Weather Last Month.

A marked increase in the activity in bituminous coal markets was caused by the cold weather which set in near the end of November. There was a definite trend toward the building up of reserve stocks of coal both domestically and industrially, according to The Coal Age.

It is estimated that 45,500,000 net tons of bituminous were produced in this country last month, 5,735,000 tons below October and 1,288,000 tons below November, 1928. The Coal Age index of spot bituminous prices for November is 154 2-5, against 156⅓ in October.

M. each day except Saturday, when the hours will be 9 A. M. to 11 A. M. Admission is granted only by card or a letter of introduction from a member of the Exchange.

COTTON OFF AGAIN AS DEMAND EASES

HIGH GRADES FIRMLY HELD.

Lower Percentage of Crop Meets Government Requirements Than Last Year's Yield.

Following active covering in the last hour on Tuesday, prices on the Cotton Exchange eased again yesterday and ended 7 to 12 points down. With a large part of the floating short interest eliminated and a decline in the grain and coffee markets, demand for contracts was less urgent. Hedging operations from the South continued limited, but absence of active mill buying left an adequate supply of contracts for trade purposes. Sentiment was influenced by foreign advices that a meeting had been called to ballot on shortening operating time among mills using both American and Egyptian cotton.

The chairman of the Federal Farm Board, following a meeting with cooperating associations at Memphis, announced the formation of a government-controlled centralized marketing bureau for cotton similar to that recently arranged for Western grain growers. The bureau will be organized and financed by the board. The fifteen State cooperating marketing associations are to be reorganized and incorporated and regional offices established.

Reports from eastern and western sections of the Cotton Belt reflect the highest basis of the season. Though little new export buying has developed, shippers are filling December engagements made earlier in the season and cotton of better grade is being firmly held. Owing to the large quantity of good cotton owned and stored by prominent spot interests and cooperative associations being supplied with funds by the farm board, the amount being offered at the present market price is unusually small.

While Washington estimates this year's yield at 450,000 bales larger than in 1928, the percentage of deliverable grades of less than 90 per cent, compared with more than 95 per cent the previous season, indicates a smaller quantity measuring up to government contract requirements than in the previous crop. The department states that bales are heavier this year than last, which increases the spread between ginning returns and the official estimate in 500-pound bales.

LIVE STOCK AT CHICAGO.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 11.—While most sales of hogs were at steady prices today, the market closed easy, with some sales 5 to 10 cents lower. Offerings were not large, as packers received 10,000 head direct, and shippers were good buyers early. Sales averaged $9.20 to $9.40, with 250 to 350 pound butchers quoted at $9.40 to $9.50, 160 to 200 pound kinds the same, 200 to 250 pound averages $9.20 to $9.50, and packing sows $8 to $8.55. The top was 5 cents lower at $9.50, and the day's average was steady at $9.30. Packers bought 25,700 head and shippers 4,500, with 6,000 left over. Receipts were 32,000, with 48,000 estimated for tomorrow.

The general cattle market was steady to weak. Some plain steers were slightly lower. A few fancy yearlings were stronger, with sales up to $16. Prime heavy steers sold as high as $14.85, most beef cattle being at $11 to $14. Receipts were 9,000 head.

Best lambs sold at former prices with the poorer kinds weaker. The bulk of the sales were at $12.50 to $12.75, with a top of $13.25. Sheep were steady at $4 to $5.75. Receipts were 14,000.

Coffee.

Coffee futures closed from 25 to 50 points lower in the A contracts and from 38 to 65 points lower in the D contracts on the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange yesterday. Yesterday's prices were the lowest in several years. D contracts sold from 30 to 184 points under the previous lows for the year while A contracts sold from 8 to 50 points below the previous 1929 lows. The turnover in A contracts was 124,000 bags, while that in D contracts was 94,000 bags. The market rallied toward the close and most positions closed above the day's lows. The decline in exchange and the unfavorable financial situation in Brazil were held responsible for the declines.

SANCTIONS ANTHRACITE SURVEY IS ASKED OF HOOVER

Pennsylvania Delegation Calls on President With Story of Possible Depression.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—What was declared to be the prospect of a severe depression in the anthracite coal industry in the coming year was brought to the attention of President Hoover and Secretary Lamont today by representatives of the Anthracite Cooperative Association of Pennsylvania, headed by Roy C. Haines, executive vice president of the association.

The delegation proposed that the Federal Government order an economic survey of the anthracite coal fields, to be made by the Bureau of Mines of the Department of Commerce. The survey, Mr. Haines said, would lead to a reduction in the cost of anthracite to the consuming public.

In addition the delegation asked all possible aid in the way of Federal construction in that section of Pennsylvania to stimulate business conditions.

Mr. Hoover was asked to send a message to be read at the regional economic conference to be held tomorrow at Wilkes-Barre.

The association is made up of the public, the anthracite operators and the miners in those fields, according to its members. Peace and harmony now prevail in the industry and there will be no interruption in the supply of anthracite, Mr. Haines said.

Other delegates were Dr. J. F. Noonan, Mahanoy City, Pa.; Col. E. G. Smith of Wilkes-Barre; Joseph R. Hooker, Plymouth, Pa.; Philip Stranes, Nanticoke, Pa., and M. J. Cosik, representing the United Mine Workers of America.

Lancashire Mills Plan Holiday.

MANCHESTER, England, Dec. 11 (AP).—Because of continued depression in the Lancashire cotton trade, the Master Spinners' Federation has called a mass meeting of users of American cotton for next Tuesday to consider the situation. Members, it was stated, may be asked to agree to an extended Christmas stoppage.

RULES AGAINST BOOK FIRM.

Trade Commission Orders Chicago Concern to Quit Sales Practice.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Publishing a price as a "special introductory offer," or as a reduction from the regular price of a commodity when in fact such figure is the regular price, was prohibited by the Federal Trade Commission in an order issued to David B. Clarkson Company of Chicago, distributers of books at retail.

"Typical of the practices charged against this company," said the commission, "is the representation that the regular price of the 'New Pictorial Atlas of the World' is $8.50, although a 'special offer' of the book in artcraft binding is made at $2.98, and in cloth binding at $1.98."

The respondent sold the atlas at prices ranging from $2.98 to $3.98, the commission said, but has not for two years sold it at a figure other than $1.98 for the cloth binding and $2.98 for the artcraft binding.

Canada Extends Cuban Agreement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—An order in council has been signed at Ottawa extending until Nov. 22, 1931, the agreement between Canada and Cuba, subject to the possible conclusion of a permanent trade convention within that period, according to a message from American Commercial Attaché Lynn W. Meekins at Ottawa to the Department of Commerce. Under this agreement, he said, Cuban products shipped direct to Canada receive the benefit of the intermediate rates of the Canadian tariff, and Canadian goods enter Cuba at the general tariff rates. The agreement has been in effect since Nov. 22, 1927.

Hardware Sales Continue Brisk.

Business in the hardware trade continues very active this week. Retail sales have shown an increase over last week, with Christmas tree light sets and stands furnishing a good part of the trade. Shovels and other accessories for removing snow are selling in exceptional volume. Wholesale hardware dealers are filling orders for immediate delivery for Winter hardware of all kinds. Although orders have been heavy, no difficulties on deliveries have been experienced.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Butter.

Receipts, 9,238 packages. A further concession of ¼c was made on the choice and fancy grades of fresh creamery and on that quarter demand was quite moderate. In some quarters there was considerable pressure to sell. Intermediate and lower qualities show no change of particular note. There was a little better cut-of-town inquiry. Supplies show some increase this week.

"Stabilizing Business" Keynote.

"The Merchant's Part in Stabilizing Business" will be the keynote of the annual convention of the National Retail Dry Goods Association to be held at the Hotel Pennsylvania from Feb. 3 to 7, inclusive, it was announced yesterday by Channing E. Sweitzer, managing director. A fundamental element in this theme, he added, is the development of effective merchandising and efficient operation in meeting consumer demand through "store mindedness." This is defined as coordination and cooperation of retail departments to effect scientific control, reduce expenses and eliminate waste. Some 2,000 retail merchants will attend the convention. As a closing feature will be a fashion pageant on Feb. 7 under the bureau of costume art of the association.

To Maintain Men's Wear Prices.

A resolution declaring that prices on men's wear Spring (1930) woolens and worsteds be maintained at levels already established was passed yesterday by 105 mills at the meeting of the men's wear group of the Wool Institute. The action was preceded by a talk by President A. D. Whiteside, who outlined the need of market stabilization. No formal action was taken on the selection of opening dates for Fall, nor on price levels for that season. These questions will come up for discussion on Jan. 7. Present at yesterday's meeting was W. Pickard, chief of the textile division of the department of commerce. In attendance were 145 representatives of various mills.

Plan Additional Rug Displays.

Many of the floor covering manufacturers who opened their lines last month will display new rug patterns Monday when the balance of the market opens Spring lines. They will adhere to the present price levels. The attendance of buyers at the first showing was a disappointment and the concerns that opened are anxious to attract those who will come here Monday. Officially, the showing of new patterns is attributed by these concerns to the fact that designs were not completed in time for earlier display.

Dress Buyers Not Worried.

The impending strike in the dress trade is not worrying buyers of this merchandise to any extent, if their refusal to place additional business can be taken as an indication. Some buyers were told here yesterday that placing slightly larger orders than usual, to guard against a possible shortage of merchandise during the early part of next month, but most of the buying is no more than normal for this time of the year. There appears to be some confusion among manufacturers as to just how extensive the strike will be. All signs point to a general stoppage, but with only temporary interruption of production by the so-called inside shops. In view of the fact that these make up about 40 per cent of the trade, no general paucity of merchandise is anticipated.

***

Walker to Be Dress Trade Guest.

More than 600 reservations had been received up to late yesterday afternoon for the eleventh anniversary luncheon of the Associated Dress Industries of America, which will be given at the Hotel Astor tomorrow. Mayor Walker will be the guest of honor. Among the speakers will be Judge George W. Simpson, Franklin Simon, J. J. Goldman, Lew Hahn, I. Grossman, M. Mosessohn, Meyer Bloomfield and Erwin D. Davidson, Executive Chairman David N. Mosessohn of the association will preside.

***

Rayon Price Reassurance Sought.

Executives of leading rayon producers declined yesterday to amplify their recent statements that rayon prices would not be reduced. The mills making fine cottons in which rayon is used were reported as not being satisfied that these statements meant that prices would not be lowered before April 1 next. The cotton mills foresaw disorganization of trade in their cloths should rayon prices drop during the first quarter of 1930 and asked reassurance on this score. In some quarters of the rayon trade the view was taken that such reassurance might be made in the next few days, agreement being voiced that lower rayon prices would not increase the demand.

Burlap Buying Very Light.

Buying of burlaps in this market during the past week was the lightest in some time. Buyers showed little interest in spots, in view of cables reporting heavy shipments from Calcutta during November, but prices were fairly steady. Spot lightweights at 5.65 cents were unchanged, and heavyweights at 7.10 cents were off 10 points from last Wednesday's level. All future shipments from December to April-June were quoted here yesterday at 5.70 cents for 40-inch 8-ounce goods and 7.40 cents for 10½-ounce burlaps of the same width. Calcutta was very quiet during the week but steady. Yesterday that market was only slightly easier than on Tuesday. Buyers wanted to purchase futures there at the prices asked here for spots but failed.

Denim Prices Are Reduced.

New and lower prices for standard denims were sent to the trade last night by the Cone Export and Commission Company and Joshua L. Baily & Co., selling agents for the Erwin Cotton Mills, covering January, February and March deliveries. The Cone prices are based on 28 cents for 28-inch 2.20-yard "white backs" and 19½ cents for 36-inch 1.70-yard goods of the same type. The respective reductions are 2 and 2½ cents a yard. The new prices are effective at once. The Erwin Mills 28-inch 2.20s are also priced at 15 cents, against a former price of 16 1/3, while their 36-inch 1.70s have been cut from 21 cents to 19¼. Prices for their double-end-twist goods are based on 15½ cents for 2.40s, against a former price of 15.

Gray Goods Rather Quiet.

Gray goods were rather quiet in this market yesterday, the only feature being the selling of good-sized quantities of 38½-inch 64-60 print-cloths at 6¾ cents for December-January delivery. Other printcloth sales of the day included 38½-inch 80-48s at 5¾ cents and 39-inch 88-72s at 7⅞ cents. Further business in 37-inch 48-square four-yard sheetings was done at 7¾ cents, and there was also trading in 36-inch 6.50s at 8 cents. A few sales of 80-inch 3.25-yard drills were put through at 9¼ cents, with 9½ asked for 37-inch 5.95s. In the fine-yarn goods 11¼ cents was paid for 40-inch 88-80 8.50-yard combed lawns.

REPORTS OF THE LATEST DEALINGS IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

REVIEW OF THE DAY IN REALTY MARKET

Sales Volume Declines, but Brokers Report Many Leaseholds in Manhattan.

15-STORY APARTMENT SOLD

Operators Buy West 79th St. Flat —Colonel Donovan Rents House in East 63d St.

Several transactions involving leaseholds in Manhattan were announced yesterday. Changes in fee ownership, which seem to be occurring with less frequency as the holiday season approaches, were featured by the sale of a large apartment house on the upper west side.

Brokers reported many apartment leases, some of the tenants taking suites for the Winter season.

Mortgage brokers announced new financing on business and housing properties in the metropolitan area.

The upper west side purchase was made by Irving Judis and Joseph Silverson, operators, who acquired the fifteen-story structure at 162-164 West Seventy-ninth Street. The apartment is on a plot 83 by 102 feet and is arranged in suites of two six-room and two four-room apartments on each floor. Himmel Estates, Inc., J. Bernstein, president, were the sellers. The property was held at $1,100,000, according to the buyers.

In Yorkville nearby, a recent purchase by Lee and J. J. Shubert, the apartment house property at 112 East Eighty-seventh Street, was bought by Harriet F. Dillon from Samuel Sason. The building is on a lot 19 by 100 feet, between Park and Lexington Avenues. It was sold through Frank Schwartz, broker.

The building at 967 Lexington Avenue, adjoining the corner of Seventieth Street, was sold by Charles K. Clisby to a client of Potter, Hamilton & Butler.

Colonel William J. Donovan, former United States Assistant Attorney General, has leased from Mrs. Robert G. Reese the furnished house at 160 East Sixty-third Street through Douglas Gibbons & Co., brokers.

Three houses in Henderson Place, near Carl Schurz Park, were leased by Charles K. Clisby. Mr. Clisby rented No. 10 to Archibald MacLeish of Cornwall, Mass. The residence at No. 12 was leased to A. C. Forney of Westport, Conn., and that at No. 14 to Mrs. C. C. Felton of Cambridge, Mass.

Two adjoining four-story houses at 76 and 78 West 105th Street were leased by Michael J. Lawler to Paul N. Monette. The houses are sixty-five feet from the southeast corner of Columbus Avenue and were bought last week by Mr. Lawler through P. M. Hughes & Sons, Inc., brokers, who also negotiated the leases yesterday in conjunction with Joseph V. Lichell.

Alice S. Gerard leased to Manus McFadden the three-story dwelling at 32 West Eighty-fourth Street. Jones Sullivan was the broker.

REAL ESTATE NOTES.

The New York Real Estate Securities Exchange, Inc., announced yesterday that its membership had been brought up to 191 by the election of Ira Haupt, Harry A. Seay, Frank E. Garnon, Moses J. Siepack, John R. Newman, John Nelson Cole, Milton S. Steiner, James P. Radis and Abram Feist.

At its recent annual meeting the United Real Estate Owners' Association re-elected the following officers: Stewart Browne, president; Charles W. Eidt, chairman; Ernest N. Adler, treasurer, and Isaac Hyman, secretary.

Allen Tucker, former architect and landscape painter, bought from the plans an apartment of twelve rooms and five baths in the 10th per cent cooperative building at the northwest corner of Eightieth Street and Lexington Avenue from the Calvin Morris Corporation. Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co. were the brokers.

Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co., recently appointed agents for the Chrysler Building, have opened temporary renting quarters on the second floor of the Central Terminal Building, 415 Lexington Avenue, corner of Forty-third Street. The brokers expect to occupy permanent quarters in the Chrysler Building in about two weeks.

An auction of Bronx properties scheduled for yesterday afternoon is to be held next Saturday at 2:30 P. M., according to George W. Coughlin, the auctioneer.

NEW BUILDINGS FEWER, BUT ARE MORE COSTLY

Manhattan Plans Filed This Year Call for $206,296,620 Above Aggregate in 1928.

Plans for 805 new buildings to cost $534,480,965 were filed with the Manhattan Bureau of Buildings during the eleven months just ended, as against 901 to cost $328,184,345 filed during the same period of last year, a report yesterday by Charles Brady, superintendent of the bureau, reveals. The figures show ninety-six fewer buildings projected but a gain of $206,296,620 in the cost total.

Applications for making changes to 2,646 old buildings at a cost of $45,379,677 were filed, as against 2,761 costing $35,416,573 during the same period last year. This is a loss of 115 in number of buildings to be changed but a gain of $9,963,104 in money involved.

During the past month plans were filed for the construction of thirty-three buildings to cost $18,192,365, as against forty-seven to cost $17,208,385 in the same month last year, thus showing a loss of fourteen in number but a gain of $984,000 in expenditure. During last month applications were filed for making changes to 216 buildings at a cost of $7,844,860, as against 203 costing $842,400 in the same month last year. This shows for last month a gain of thirteen in number of buildings to be altered and a gain of $7,002,460 in cost.

During last month plans were filed for twelve tenements, one other residence building, two stores and loft buildings, nine office buildings, two factories and workshops, one school, two places of amusement, six stables and garages and six other structures.

Building Permits in November Dropped 29% From Year Ago

Building permits issued in 587 leading cities and towns in the United States last month showed a decline of 29 per cent from the total in November, 1928, according to a survey by S. W. Straus & Co. The drop from October of this year was 23 per cent. Permits issued last month in the fifteen largest cities of the country were 23 per cent less than in November, 1928.

"While these losses on their face are somewhat distressing," the survey says, "the fact should be borne in mind that they very largely reflect the full impact of the stock market crash. The climax of the Wall Street débâcle was not reached until the beginning of the midmonth period. The various stabilizing and stimulating forces that since have swung into action could scarcely have been expected to exert any great measure of effect on the building situation prior to the end of the month."

LEASE SKYSCRAPER FLOOR.

J. A. Sisto & Co. Obtain Quarters in New Manhattan Company Building.

The eleventh floor in the building being erected for the Bank of the Manhattan Company at 34-42 Wall Street and 25-39 Pine Street has been leased by the 40 Wall Street Corporation to J. A. Sisto & Co., investment bankers, whose principal office is now at 68 Wall Street.

The term begins on May 1 of next year, or on such subsequent date as the floor is ready for occupancy, and ends on April 30, 1936, the annual rental being $4.575 a square foot for the gross number of square feet of the floor, this area being computed as all the space within the exterior walls except stairways, approaches, &c.

A private entrance on Pine Street, at either 25 or 27, and a private passenger elevator are provided for the exclusive use of the lessee, the rental for these being $8,600 a year additional.

The lessee has the option to renew this lease for ten years on the same terms.

It is agreed in the recorded lease that if the lessor shall erect on the property now occupied by the United States Assay Office, adjoining on the west, a building of such height and design that it shall contain space adjacent to the eleventh floor, the lessee shall have an option to lease all or any part of such adjacent rentable space for a term ending April 30, 1946, the rental for which shall not exceed $6.25 a square foot.

Sales Help Wanted—Male.

SPECIALTY SALESMEN.

Here is an opportunity for three men who want to go in business for themselves, but who are prevented from doing so through lack of capital.

If you have initiative, willingness to work hard, a real ambition to succeed, and can handle and train men, there is an opening for you in this organization.

We furnish our men with every possible sales cooperation, use full page advertisements in the Saturday Evening Post, Ladies' Home Journal, Collier's, Literary Digest, Good Housekeeping, &c. and distribute all leads to our men.

We are one of the largest manufacturers in the country, rated AAA-1 in Dun's and Bradstreet's and have grown from an obscure company to an $18,000,000 corporation in the short span of 9½ years.

Our product is used and endorsed by the U. S. Government, State and Municipal Institutions, Public Utility Corporations, Steamships, Banks, Stores, Hospitals, &c. Prominent Medical Authorities are enthusiastic as to its hygienic merits.

Regardless of your present vocation or past experience, we can place you where your earning power will be far above the average. You will be required to sell in the field for a period of 30 to 45 days after which time you should be ready to assume the responsibilities of an executive position where the pay runs into big figures.

Our unusual plan of compensation of liberal advanced commission and bonus enables us to boast of one of the highest paid electric specialty organizations in America.

SEE MR. BARRETT, ROOM 720, 205 EAST 42D ST.

SHIPPERS IN CLASH ON STORE-DOOR PLAN

Brooklyn and Queens Protest Over Limiting of Test to Manhattan Below 60th Street.

MOORE QUITS COMMITTEE

Conference Asks Railroads to Provide New Service, but Does Not Try to Fix Costs.

The Shippers' Conference of Greater New York voted yesterday to ask the railroads serving New York City to start a so-called store-door system of collecting and delivering carload freight in the Manhattan area south of Fifty-ninth Street as an experiment to determine whether the abandonment of waterfront piers by the railroads is possible. This substitute for the present system, in which shippers and consignees deliver or obtain freight at the railroad piers on the waterfront, will be extended to all parts of the greater city if successful, the conference agreed.

Although united on the value of the experiment, the conference was sharply divided on borough lines as to the scene of the first trial. When the vote favored confining the experiment to Manhattan in lieu of a committee's report favoring the inclusion of Brooklyn and Queens, P. W. Moore, representing the Queens Chamber of Commerce, announced his withdrawal from the conference committee which studied the matter.

Under the store-door delivery system the railroads would employ trucks and add a cartage rate to the regular New York freight rate. These trucks would transport all freight of carload volume at a cost "that will prove attractive to the shipping public." The handling of less-than-carload freight at inland stations which will be built by the Port Authority, and a successful store-door system for carload freight would remove the need for the railroad piers, shipping men believe.

The shippers' representatives and railroad officials held several conferences in an attempt to reach a common ground for an experiment with store-door delivery. The railroad lines have objected to assuming responsibility for the sections of truckment in the delivery of freight.

A committee of the Shippers' Conference headed by W. J. Mathey of the New York Publishers' Association presented the report calling on the railroads to put the system into effect experimentally in a zone extending from Sixtieth Street, Manhattan, to the St. George terminal of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and the New Jersey terminals of the various railroads which serve the greater city.

In this area Manhattan, Brooklyn and Queens would benefit. No attempt was made to fix the rates to be charged, the report confining itself to the statement that "it must be obvious that the charges will have to be somewhat below the current trucking rates from piers stations in order to make the plan a success."

Immediately on the presentation of the report William H. Chandler, chairman of the conference, offered a substitute report favoring store-door delivery but confining the experiment to Manhattan below Fifty-ninth Street. He argued that the first experiment must be made where it has the best chance of success if the entire city is to obtain store-door delivery as a permanent service.

Mr. Meore contended that deliveries to sections of Queens, including Long Island City, required only two miles of trucking as opposed to four miles in parts of the area laid down in Mr. Chandler's plan. He contended that the triborough plan would benefit a larger group without lessening the attraction of the experiment to the railroads. Mr. Chandler's plan was adopted over protests of Queens and Brooklyn interests.

SHIP GAINS DAY ON RUN.

Southern Prince Averages 17 Knots on Voyage From South.

The new Furness-Prince motor liner Southern Prince arrived yesterday twenty-four hours ahead of her schedule, having made an average spee dof seventeen knots on the passage from Buenos Aires, Santos, Rio Janiero, Bahia and Trinidad. The ship landed sixty-six passengers at Pier 74, North River. Captain John Reed reported excellent weather all the way.

The Southern Prince recently entered service as one of the four new vessels built by the Prince Line for its trade between New York and South American ports. The other liners are the Northern Prince, Eastern Prince and Western Prince. The fleet operates in a fortnightly service.

JERSEY BOARDS MEETING.

The State Association's Convention Begins in Atlantic City Today.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Dec. 11.—L. T. Stevenson of Pittsburgh, a director of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, will be one of the speakers at the thirteenth annual meeting of the New Jersey Association of Real Estate Boards, which opens tomorrow morning in the Ambassador Hotel. His subject will be "What Is in Prospect for 1930."

John R. M. O'Connor of Montclair, president of the State association, will speak at tomorrow's session, at which a report of the nominating committee will be made and resolutions will be submitted by the resolutions committee. Mr. Stevenson also will speak.

On Friday evening there will be a five-minute intercity speech contest for the Atlantic City Real Estate Board Cup. The convention will continue until Saturday noon.

Marshal Gomes da Costa Very Ill.

LISBON, Portugal, Dec. 11 (AP).—The condition of Field Marshal Gomes Da Costa was extremely critical tonight. He had breathed with difficulty throughout the day. The veteran soldier has developed pulmonary congestion. The Premier and the Brazilian Ambassador were among the distinguished visitors today at the home of the marshal.

Women Hear Discussion of Theatre.

To provide a balanced review of the various arts connected with the theatre the Women's City Club of New York, 22 Park Avenue, arranged a discussion in conjunction with a dinner yesterday. Mrs. Bella L. Isaacs, editor of The Theatre Arts Magazine, was principal speaker. John Mason Brown, dramatic critic of The New York Evening Post, and Rose Mitchell, author of "Creative Theatre," spoke of the arts of the theatre. Harvey Officer gave an outline of the "Dance as Drama," while C. Carmer made a plea for "Standing Room for Poets."

SHIP BOARD GRANTS FREIGHT REVISIONS

Five Agreements Cover Rates and Transhipment Charges on Intercoastal Cargo.

CALMAR LINE FILES THREE

San Domingo Rates From Here Are Raised 20 Cents Above Porto Rico Tariffs.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—An agreement between the Calmar Steamship Corporation and the Crowley Launch and Tugboat Company was approved by the Shipping Board today covering through shipments between North Atlantic ports and Mare Island, Cal., with transhipment at San Francisco. West-bound rates are to be local rates of Calmar, out of which that carrier is to absorb transhipping charges and Crowley the local rate of 8 cents per 100 pounds on lots over 30,000 pounds and 10 cents on lots under that weight. East-bound rates are to be a combination of local rates of the participating carriers, plus cost of transhipment. Crowley vessels are to call at Calmar piers for lots of cargo of 5,000 pounds or more, thus eliminating drayage charges.

Other agreements approved by the board were as follows:

NEW YORK AND PORTO RICO STEAMSHIP COMPANY with AMERICAN HAWAIIAN STEAMSHIP COMPANY—Through rates on canned goods, dried fruit and board from the Pacific Coast to Santo Domingo, with transshipment at New York, based on direct line rates are 20 cents per 100 pounds higher than rates to Porto Rico, plus tonnage and wharfage fee of $1.40 per 1,000 kilos. Hawaiian's proportion is to be 60 per cent. Transfer charges are assumed on the same basis. Minimum bill of lading charge of $7.20 to be apportioned $3.50 to the on-carrying line and $3.70 to the intercoastal carrier.

CALMAR STEAMSHIP CORPORATION with AMERICAN MAIL LINE—Through rates from Far East ports to Atlantic and Gulf ports, with transhipment at Seattle, are in accordance with direct line conference rates on traffic from Oriental ports to North Atlantic ports, subject to minimum through rate of 39 per ton. Rates and transshipment costs are to be apportioned equally between the lines. On cargo originating at Oriental ports beyond American Mail loading ports that carrier is to receive expense of transporting shipments from point of origin to shipside before through rate is apportioned.

CALMAR STEAMSHIP CORPORATION with KINGSLEY NAVIGATION COMPANY, LTD.—Through rates covering shipments from Victoria and Vancouver to North Atlantic ports via San Francisco are to be Calmar rates from San Francisco to North Atlantic ports plus Kingsley rate of 20 cents per 100 pounds. Inward tolls at San Francisco are to be absorbed by Kingsley and outward tolls by Calmar, while each is to assume half the cost of drayage and of in-transit entry charge except when shipments exceed 100 tons, when Kingsley vessels are to call at Calmar pier and each is to absorb half of inward tolls and Calmar is to absorb outward tolls and entire cost of in-transit entry.

OCEAN DOMINION STEAMSHIP CORPORATION with LUCKENBACH STEAMSHIP CORPORATION, INC.—Through rates from Pacific Coast to Demerara and Georgetown, British Guiana, and Trinidad to be apportioned as indicated in tariff attached, subject to minimum bill of lading charge of $12.50, to be apportioned $4.50 to Luckenbach and $8 to Ocean Dominion, the latter to absorb cost of transhipment at New York. Shipments to Demerara are to be subject to additional charge of $1.75 per ton to cover landing tax.

APPROVES NEW PLANS FOR JERSEY BRIDGES

War Department Consents to Fixed Structures to Span Passaic and Hackensack.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The War Department approved today an application of the New Jersey Highway Commission for revised plans for a bridge across the Passaic River between Newark and Kearny, about 900 feet above the Lincoln Highway bridge.

The plans provide for a high level fixed bridge having through steel trusses supported on masonry piles. One span 550 feet long will extend across the river between the pierhead and bulkhead lines and will provide a clear channel width between piers of about 530 feet measured at right angles to the channel. The vertical clearance under the channel span at high water is 135 feet.

The department also approved an application of the New Jersey Highway Commission for approval of revised plans for a bridge across Hackensack River between Jersey City and Kearny, about 3,000 feet north of the Lincoln Highway bridge.

The plans provide for a diagonal high level fixed bridge, with steel trusses supported on masonry piers. One span 550 feet long will cross the 300-foot government channel and will provide a horizontal clearance between piers measured at right angles to the channel of about 340 feet.

The overall length of the span adjacent to the channel span is 350 feet, providing a clearance between piers of about 180 feet. The vertical clearance at high water under the channel span is 135 feet, and under the span immediately west of the channel span it varies between 75 and 100 feet.

Ship Board Asks Bids on Vessel.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—Bids returnable on Jan. 8 were invited by the Shipping Board today for the sale for dismantling of the steamer Orion, a former German vessel laid up in the James River near Norfolk. The ship is a steel cargo steamer of 5,160 deadweight tons, equipped with reciprocating engines and Scotch coal-burning boilers. It was built in 1902.

FERN LINE QUITS SHIP GROUP

Is Second to Withdraw From Far Eastern Conference.

Tramp steamers operating between the Gulf ports and the Far East have caused an upset in the Far Eastern Conference, comprising in its membership the most prominent "regular" ship lines operating in that service, and has resulted in the resignation of two ship lines in the last two days, it was learned yesterday.

The Fern Line followed yesterday the American Gulf Orient Line, which announced Tuesday that it had resigned from the conference because of its failure properly to regulate cotton rates. The tramp steamers, which are not subject to the rate agreements and regulations of the conference, have cut into the trade of the conference lines by taking on cargoes of cotton at prices that bring profit and are still below the conference rates, the conference lines say.

Dissatisfaction with the failure of the conference to curb the practice has existed some time and will result in further resignations, shipping men say. The American Gulf Orient Line is owned by the Shipping Board and operated by the Tampa Interocean Steamship Company.

CITES FORD YACHT CAPTAIN.

Federal Service Orders Anderson to Trial in Loss of Vessel.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 11 (AP).—Official charges of negligence were preferred today by the Federal Steamboat Inspection Service against Oscar E. Anderson, captain of Edsel Ford's new $450,000 yacht Sialia, which grounded on Hens and Chickens Reef off New Bedford on her maiden voyage from the builders' yard Friday morning.

He was cited to appear for trial at 10 o'clock Friday morning at the Federal Building here. The trial will be public. The charges against Captain Anderson, it is understood, centre around the contention that he sailed the craft too close inshore.

Canadian Pacific Liner Sets Record.

MONTREAL, Dec. 11 (Canadian Press).—What is declared to be a new record for the distance was made by the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of France in steaming from Hong Kong to Liverpool in twenty-two days. The steamer, under command of Captain E. Griffiths, left China on Nov. 16 and reached Liverpool on Dec. 8.

SAYS NAVY NEEDS SMALL ARMS WORK

Chief of Operations, in Report, Asserts That Opportunities for Practice Are Few.

LANDING PARTIES IMPEDED

Admiral Hughes Stresses Necessity for a Radio-Controlled Target Ship for Gunnery Training.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 11.—The frequent calls for landing forces in disturbed regions such as Nicaragua and China have stressed the necessity for small arms training, and the forces afloat have taken advantage of every opportunity to train before the call comes, Admiral Charles F. Hughes, Chief of Naval Operations, said in his annual report today for the fiscal year 1929, published today.

There is seldom an opportunity, Admiral Hughes said, for training after arrival on shore.

The Chief of Naval Operations also reported progress in gunnery exercises.

"Practically all vessels in commission," he said, "completed the full schedule of firing for the year. In the practice firing, under the same conditions as in previous years, there was general improvement. Several of the modernized ships, by improved performances over last year, showed the benefit of continued training. In the new practices the scores indicate that the fleet maintained a very satisfactory battle training.

"The experimental firings held by the various types of ships gave very valuable information on developments in advanced fire control methods, and furnished data for further research and improvements.

"A radio controlled target ship is urgently needed for the investigation and solution of many problems."

Says Nicaragua Is Quiet.

Admiral Hughes reported satisfactory work by the navy in protecting Americans in both Nicaragua and China. In Nicaragua, a peaceful condition has been restored, he said, and such outlaws as remain are poorly equipped and poorly led. He estimated their number on June 30, 1929, at between 150 and 200, mostly confined to the jungle area of the North.

Vessels maintained in full command during the year included sixteen battleships of the first line, two cruisers of the second line, ten light cruisers of the first line, three light cruisers of the second line, two aircraft carriers of the first line, one aircraft carrier of the second line, 103 destroyers of the first line, six light mine layers, forty-seven submarines of the first line, twenty-nine submarines of the second line, four fleet submarines of the first line, two Eagle patrol boats, twelve gunboat patrol boats, five converted yacht patrol boats, six destroyer tenders, six submarine tenders, one aircraft tender, two repair ships, two store ships, one collier, nine oilers, one ammunition ship, three cargo ships, two transports, two hospital ships, seven ocean tugs, twenty-seven mine sweepers, and five miscellaneous craft. There were 281 aircraft attached to the forces afloat at the end of the fiscal year.

Admiral Hughes reported that progress had been made in preparing for accidents to submarines. Among the improvements has been the installation of range lights on all submarines to diminish the possibility of collision. Four vessels were equipped for rescue and salvage operations, and there is now to be one of this type present with each major submarine force. Salvage pontoons also are being constructed for distribution in the various operating districts.

"Work loads at New York," he said, "cannot be as evenly distributed throughout the year as is desirable, but the quantity of work, together with new construction or modernization in hand and other conditions, make the disturbing effects of this variation of work load less detrimental than would be the case at some other yards."

MOTHER OF THREE IS HELD.

Accused of Abandoning Son Here and Going to Albany.

Mrs. Mary Chester, 21-year-old mother of three children, was held without bail yesterday by Magistrate Goodman in Yorkville court for examination tomorrow on a charge of abandoning her 3-year-old son, Raymond Jr., on Oct. 9. Earlier this year she was accused of deserting her 5-weeks-old daughter Doloris in an alleyway in the Bronx, but was subsequently freed by Judge James M. Barrett in Bronx County Court. Her husband, Raymond, is awaiting trial in Yonkers for failing to support his family.

Mrs. Chester was arrested Tuesday night in Albany. The police say she left her son with Mrs. aKte Lunet of 402 East Twenty-fourth Street, paying two weeks' board in advance. When she failed to return and the child became ill he was taken to Bellevue Hospital and later was turned over to the Children's Society. In court yesterday Mrs. Chester said she had understood her father-in-law would pay the boy's board. The third child, Evelyn, 2, is in St. Barnabas Home. Doloris is in the New York Nursery and Children's Home.

Mrs. Chester said that when she was previously charged with abandonment her father-in-law, Raymond Chester of 336 East Twenty-ninth Street, had obtained her discharge by promising to look after her and the children, but had failed to keep his promise. She was earning $12 a week in Albany, she said.

STATE UTILITY BODY SUBJECT OF INQUIRY

Legislative Commission Hears Accusations Against Members of Public Service Commission.

HARNED GIVES EVIDENCE

Secret Session of Board Indicates It Finds Allegations More Serious Than Expected.

For three hours yesterday the legislative commission on revision of the Public Service law in its first executive session listened to serious charges against members of the Public Service Commission and discussed the policy to be pursued.

Although no member of the investigating body would talk about the secret proceedings, there was every indication that the accusations as made by Daniel De V. Harned, attorney for the Community Councils of New York City, were much more significant than expected. Although the majority of the legislative commission had expected no concrete evidence and had been inclined to pay scant attention to personal insinuations, Mr. Harned presented sufficient material to cause the investigators to decide upon further executive sessions.

The meeting was held in the Bar Association Building at 42 West Forty-fourth Street. In addition to Mr. Harned, two members of the Public Service Commission were closeted later with the legislative group. They were William A. Prendergast, chairman, and George R. Van Namee, both accused by witnesses at public hearings of espousing a viewpoint of regulation more acceptable to the utility companies than to the consumers.

Commissioners Not Questioned.

Joseph A. McGinnies, Speaker of the Assembly, acting chairman of the legislative commission, said: "They just dropped in. They were not questioned. There was no star chamber proceeding."

Another executive session was held in City Hall in the afternoon, but at its conclusion Mr. McGinnies announced that no decision had been reached. It was indicated elsewhere that the immediate question under consideration was whether to continue this angle of the inquiry in view of the protest of some members that the charges were little more than "gossip" and not pertinent to the matter of revision of the Public Service law.

Later at the end of a public hearing before the commission Colonel William J. Donovan, counsel for the investigators, added to the mystery by announcing that he had just received a paper of some importance from Mr. Harned.

"I have here a document which the witness has handed to me which may have a bearing on our inquiry," he said, "and I shall need time to study its implications."

Harned Calls for Lower Rates.

Mr. Harned, the only witness at the public hearing, concluded three days of testifying by calling for a reduction in electricity rates by the vigilant regulation by the Public Service Commission that would "lead rather than follow the utilities."

"The alternative to effective regulation is public ownership," he said. "The commission's own figures show high utility profits justifying considerable rate reductions. A majority of the electrical producers in the State appear to be making excessive profits."

Mr. Harned declared that costs warranted a maximum rate of not more than 5 cents a kilowatt-hour in New York City and suggested that the average cost to domestic consumers could be reduced to 3½ cents with the increase in consumption that would follow lower rates.

Contrasting public ownership rates in Ontario with rates here, he said that a domestic consumer using 30 kilowatt-hours in a six-room house would pay $1.50 in Buffalo and $2.69 in Rochester, but only 95 cents in Hamilton, Ont., and $1.03 in Toronto. The public hearing will be resumed this morning in the Bar Association building.

ASKS BODY TO PASS ON MERGER PLANS

Colonel Donovan Urges Federal Agency to Rule on Legality of Agreements in Advance.

DEFENDS SHERMAN ACT

Tells Trade Board Administration of It Is at Fault in Prosecuting After Fact Is Accomplished.

Colonel William J. Donovan, former Assistant United States Attorney General, urged the creation of a Federal agency to determine officially the legality of proposed mergers and trade agreements before they are consummated, in an address yesterday at the monthly luncheon of the New York Board of Trade.

In explaining the need for such an agency, Colonel Donovan declared that much of the criticism leveled at the Sherman Anti-Trust law should more properly be leveled at the administration of that law. The principle of the law, and the existing legislation, he said, was entirely appropriate and an excellent thing for business. But whether it serves as a good rather than an evil depends largely on the manner of administration, he declared.

The original method of enforcing the Sherman act—that of prosecution after the fact—worked severe hardship on business generally, Colonel Donovan said, because by the time such prosecution was undertaken the specific merger or agreement had already been in effect for some time, and had become a part of the economic fabric of the country.

In contrast to this system of administration, he pointed to that in effect for several years past, in which the Attorney General, as a matter of procedure rather than of law, had undertaken to pass on the legality of such combinations in advance.

Colonel Donovan specified that the agency he proposed should not be framed so as to make recourse to it in advance compulsory upon business. Business needs a traffic policeman rather than a detective so far as its regulation by government is concerned, he said, and the more the relationship between government and business remains voluntary and cooperative, the better for all concerned. The value of the agency would be that it could, if created by law, give an official opinion in advance, whereas the present opinions of the Attorney General are a matter of his personal responsibility.

ASKS CARDS FOR VETERANS

Curtis Urges Public to Send Holiday Greetings to Disabled.

A plea to the public to remember at Christmas time disabled veterans in government hospitals throughout the country was made yesterday by Monroe Curtis, State Commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. "Remember the boys in the veterans' hospitals when you are sending out your Christmas greetings," said Major Curtis.

"To these men a card may bring a thrill of joy which we can hardly comprehend. It tells them they are not forgotten in the world to which they hope eventually to return."
